Ga. Girl Gets Farm Award

SAVANNAH, Ga.

Dr. William K. Payne, president of Savannah State College, presented the Durr-Schaffner Hatcheries of Atlanta, Georgia, award to Miss Nadine Cooper for her outstanding work in poultry production.

In 1952, there were 10,640 4-H Club members enrolled with poultry projects. Out of this number, 8,520 completed their projects. As a result of district and state eliminations, there were four girls who were outstanding in their poultry work.

In checking the records it was found that Miss Cooper, of Sumter County's 4-H Club membership for the last six years, rated above the other three. Miss Cooper did her work in poultry with a small flock. She has been instrumental in building a small poultry house which is far above the average on farms today. Her hens led the community in egg production.
