

Two youths from the John Avery Boys Club in Durham left the city last Friday for New York where they will attend a new boys camp, Boy's Harbor, at Long Island. The two Boys Club members are shown above with John Avery Boys Club director, Lee W. Smith, who accompanied the pair on the trip to N.Y. On the left is Roosevelt Hairston, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hairston of 114

E. Piedmont Avenue and, right, Leroy Saunders, 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Saunders of 807 Glenn Street. Saunders and Hairston were selected to attend the camp, sponsored by Anthony Drexel Duke, philanthropist, on the basis of their club attendance, activity participation, school attendance and general character.

Both boys are active members of the club. Hairston, tenth grader at the Hillside high school, is a ping pong champion at the club, and is catcher for the club baseball team. Saunders, an eighth grader at Whitted school, is a pool champion at the club, was manager for the basketball team last year and plays second base for the club baseball team. Their selection to attend the camp won for them an expense-free trip and a month's stay at the new camp, located in East Hampton on Long Island.

Dr. E. Y. Floyd, director of the Plant Food Institute of North Carolina and Virginia, who called the group's attention to the importance of directing the farmers in carrying on a bal-anced agriculture program with emphasis on soil conservation and pasture improvement and A. L. Teachey, state supervisor of Vocational Agricultural Educa-tion, who challenged the teach-ers to accept their responsibil-ities and provide the leadership that the rural youth and adults of North Carolina need. He gave examples of the number of suc-cessful farmers located all over the state, and the improvement of leadership as a result of vo-cational agriculture. Nathan Yelton, executive secretary, State Teachers Retirement Sys-tem, Raleigh, discussed the ad-vantages of the retirement sys-tem and urged them to take ad-vantage of its benefits.

A. & T. Host To Vocational Agriculture Meet

GREENSBORO One hundred twenty-five teach-ers of agriculture of North Carolina participated in the annual state conference held at A. and T. College July 13-16.

In welcoming the group to the campus, Dr. F. D. Bluford, president of the college, remind-ed the teachers that their re-sponsibility was to guide the rural youth in selecting a desir-able occupation for which they are best suited.
