-NCC Hopes-

Blunt, who is expected to assist NCC's football coach Herman H. Riddick with drills starting in early September, is a native of Methuen, Massachusetts, who received a bachelor's degree at St. Augustine's College, and later earned a master's degree in health and physical education at Boston University.

The office of NCC President Alfonso Elder announced Blunt's contract as of one year's duration. He is a temporary replacement for L. T. Walker, professor of physical education and head track coach, who has a one year's study leave to do doctoral work at New York University. In joining the Eagles' grid staff, Blunt will be associated with Coach Floyd Brown, the youthful basketball mentor, who is backfield coach; James Young, Riddick's administrative aide, and Benjamin F. Whaley, line coach. Blunt's duties in football were not immediately defined.

Famous Hurt-Hill Combine Still Around To Woes Of CIAA Mentors

BALTIMORE, Md.

The same Hurt-Hill combination that's guided Morgan State College football squads to thirteen national championships will be in the saddle again this year when the Bears kick-off against Central State College of Xenia, Ohio here September 26.

Coach Eddie Hurt and Talmadge L. (Marse) Hill, whose coaching careers at Morgan together total forty-nine years, will team up with Coaches Alvin M. (Boo) Brown and Kenneth Brown to round out the four-man mentoring squad that's been intact for the past five years.

The '53 season will begin Coach Hurt's twenty-fifth year at Morgan. His companion will begin his twenty-fourth year as part of the inseparable team.

In line of service, Coach Ken Brown comes next, with six years of coaching the Bears behind him. Coach "A" Brown, as he's known at Morgan, has five years to his credit.

Hurt, who's just finished coaching Morgan thirly to one of the college's greatest years in track, will start the season in his usual position as head football coach. Marse Hill will be back in his customary spot on the line with Coach Ken Brown as his assistant.

Hurt and Hill have often been referred to as one of coaching's most celebrated teams. Hurt is regarded as the calm, analytical strategist and mathematician who plots the plays, and Hill as the complementing "fire" who warms the boys up to a passion to play the game hard.

It was Hill who sparked Morgan to her first big football win as a student at the college in 1927. He returned to Morgan in 1930 as assistant coach to Hurt who'd joined the staff one year earlier after leaving a coaching post he'd held for four years at Virginia Seminary and College at Lynchburg, Va.

Both the Browns are proteges of the hurt-Hill system.

film project. Again, this year the library will receive six films monthly from the University of North Carolina Bureau of Visual Education. These films are to be used at the library and for circulation to organizations, churches, schools, or any group that may have a need for free adult films.

In addition to the six films received regularly each month, there is available at the library, a list of films that might be borrowed from the University of North Carolina Extension Division through the Stanford L. Warren Public Library.

These films will be of interest to those groups that might have a need for films on special subjects. More information on the film program may be secured by asking at the Library information desk or by telephoning 4-4764.

Last week, it was announced in the TIMES that W. A. Clement, associate agency director for the company, was designated to receive the Certified Life Underwriters award.

This week, announcements from the company's home office revealed that Sloan was scheduled also to receive a certificate in Life Insurance management.

Both men were to have received the awards from the American College of Life Underwriters at the college's 26th conferment in Cleveland, Ohio on August 26.

Sloan, who began his career with the company in 1938 has served as agent, special ordinary agent and assistant manager. He was one of the first two Negroes to receive the Certified Life Underwriters award and is the first Negro to get a certificate in Life Insurance agency management.

Clement, who started with the company in 1934, has been assistant to the agency director, having been elevated to his present position as associate agency director last March.

Delegations from Durham, Raleigh and Winston-Salem are expected to attend the meet.

Michaux also serves as chairman of the board of directors of the newly established United Publishers Corporation, publishers of the CAROLINA TIMES.
