

THE FAMOUS MOONGLOW QUARTETTE

Sarah Vaughn Will Co-Star Moonglows In Aug. 4 Show

Seldom can a quartet boast of having four men who can sing the blues in four languages such as the Moonglows who are co-starred with Sarah Vaughn in the star-studded Pop, Rhythm and Blues Show coming to the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium on Thursday August 4th. While in high school in their hometown, Louisville, Ky., each studied a different foreign language and at the end of every show they break it up when they sing in Spanish, German, French and Italian.

Their current Chess records of "Most of All" and "Sincerely" are heard blasting from every jukebox from coast to coast these days. Two of the members of the Moonglows recorded separately from the big group within a group. Organized in 1951, this foursome has come a long way, however their many hit tunes on Chess label are keeping them in front of all imitators of their wonderful style. Their singing of their hit tune "Sincerely" won the praise of Arthur Godfrey in his TV show and has been recorded by other top artists.

On the bill with the Moonglows and the Moonlighters will be Sarah Vaughn, Al Hibbler, Nappy Brown, The Cardinals quartet, Muddy Waters and his Quintet and Red Prysock and his Big Orchestra. All this make up the Pop, Rhythm and Blues Show coming to the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium for one night only Thursday night August 4th. Thiem's Record Shop and Hamlin Drug Company will handle the mail order and ticket sale for this grand affair. Doors will open at 7:30; the show will hit at 8:15 sharp.

Jean Leon Destine, center, "Haiti's Greatest Dancer," is shown here in a scene from "Voodoo" one of the dances that was performed in Duke Auditorium at North Carolina College recently.

Chester Seveck, full-blooded Eskimo from Kotzebue, Alaska, will be the lay deputy from Alaska at the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Honolulu, September 4-15. For twenty years he has been a volunteer lay reader in Arctic villages, among tenders of reindeer herds.

Bus Incident Complaint Heard

WASHINGTON, D.C.
The Inter-State Commerce Commission heard last Thursday, July 21, the complaint of Miss Sarah Keys, a former member of the Women's Army Corps who was abused and arrested in Roanoke Rapids, N. C., in 1952 for refusing to move from a bus seat when ordered by a driver.

She was traveling in uniform and was en route from Fort Dix, N. J., where she was stationed, to her home in Washington, N. C. A joint line ticket was issued to her for transportation over three bus lines, Safeway Trails, Virginia Trailways and the Carolina Coach Co. She had no difficulty until she reached Roanoke Rapids, a station stopping point, at 12:20 a.m. on Aug. 2, 1952, where there was a change of bus driver.

Upon noticing that she was sitting in the third seat from the front, the driver ordered her to move to the back and

NEGRO MAKES ROCKEFELLER'S CATTLE RANCH A SHOW PLACE

CHICAGO, Ill.
James E. Hudson, a Negro, is the person responsible for making Winthrop Rockefeller's modern cattle ranch, Winrock, a showplace of all Arkansas. The wiry, balding Negro has been Rockefeller's right hand man since the two first teamed up as young men in New York City 18 years ago.

Back in 1933 when the young millionaire decided to invest $1,500,000 in a cattle ranch, he called on his old friend, to whom he always refers as "my associate," to be the superintendent in charge of the 64 full-time workers employed there. Today Winrock is a modern miracle with a beautiful, lush-green farm

The driver then consulted with the dispatcher regarding the situation. He returned and told all of the other passengers (Continued on Page Eight) in the Ozarks where once the soil was considered worn out. "This is a lot different from when I first came here two years ago," general superintendent Jim Hudson said. "The view was beautiful for a homestead but it didn't look too good for farming."

That was in June, 1953. Rockefeller told Hudson that he planned to have cattle there by the next spring and the ex-Wilberforce grad met the challenge.

A few years after the two men began working together in New York, both were called on to serve in World War II. Jim came out a Coast Guard chief petty officer and Rockefeller, an Army lieutenant colonel. After the war ended, the two men teamed up again and broke down discrimination in Williamsburg, Va., the colonial town which is being restored through the Rockefeller Foundation Fund.

Through the years this relationship has developed into a warm friendship and mutual trust that is evident to all visitors and neighbors of Winrock.
