

Lou Krefetz's 1955 Fall Edition Top Ten Rhythm And Blues Review To Be In Raleigh Monday, October 3

RALEIGH Promoter Joseph Winters announced this week that he has set a date with the Lou Krefetz's Top Ten Rhythm and Blues Review for the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. Promoter Winters stated that after long and much talk terms has been agreed upon where by the show will play a one night Show and Dance date in Raleigh on Monday October 3rd.

Winters pointed out that this long and much talk was due to the large cast in which the show is featuring this year causing the price to be higher and Winters wanted to hold to the line of the old admission prices. The show having the largest total cast is costing more than any of the other shows to play in Raleigh. "It was after much talk that I was able to get a price that I could charge the same advance sale and general admission," said Winters.

The Big Five of the first Top Ten Review will return with this show. They are: The Clovers, that Shake a Hand girl, Faye Adams, that Shake Rattle and Roll man, Big Joe Turner, Bill Doggett and his great combo, and Mr. Huckle-buck Paul Williams and his big band. New members to make the show are Bo Diddley and his great group, Gene & Eunice; that sensational vocal group, The Five Keys, Etta James and the peaches, Charlie & Ray. Other members from the first review include that great sing group of "Hearts of Stones", The Charms and that sensational master of ceremonies, Al Jackson, formerly of Patterson and Jackson.

The show is a three hour production. Because of the large cast, there is no way to cut it shorter and present all members of the cast. Doors of the auditorium will open at 7:30 sharp. The show will hit at 8:15, on time, sharp. There will be dancing after the show for what little time there is left; but because of the long show, there will be little dancing. However for those who wish to dance there will be dancing until 1:00 a.m.

Mail orders and tickets sale will be filled by Thiem's Record Shop from their new location in the Ambassador Theatre building on Fayetteville Street and Hamlin Drug Company. There will be only a limited number of advance sale tickets.

Orientation At Shaw University Comes To End

RALEIGH Orientation activities for new students, which began at Shaw University on Thursday, September 15, ended Friday of this week. An extensive and well planned program to acquaint the incoming freshmen with various phases of life at Shaw University was carried out.

The program began with the usual registration procedures, which included payment of fees at the Business Office and room assignments by the Personal Deans.

Lectures were given by various university officials, and each freshman was required to take an English examination and psychological test.

Entertainment for the week included such features as a Get Acquainted Social in the Student Center, sponsored by the Student Council, a theater party, courtesy of the Ambassador Theater, the annual Talent night, tour of Raleigh, and the University Reception in Spaulding Gymnasium.

Services were held in the University Church Sunday morning. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Moses N. DeLany. Sunday evening the Student Christian Association sponsored the services with Dr. W. R. Strasser giving an address on "The Spirit of Shaw University."

New Manual For Driver License Applicants Now Available

RALEIGH The State Department of Motor Vehicles said a new manual for driver license applicants will go into use throughout the state tomorrow.

The text of the publication will emphasize proper driving attitude. Unchanged will be the four essential tests for beginning drivers—eyesight, sign recognition, written test and road test.

In commenting on the new manual Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheldt said, "The manual will point out for beginning drivers that knowledge and skill alone will not make a proficient driver. Careful study of the text will, on the other hand, reveal for the applicant that proper attitude while driving a motor vehicle is of the utmost importance for safety."

The new manual, considerably rewritten and enlarged will replace an earlier edition first issued in 1947, later revised in 1951. Questions and answers at the end of each chapter in the current issue will help beginning drivers to pass their examination, the vehicles chief said.

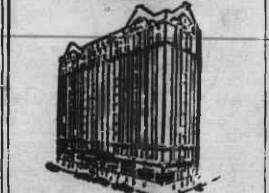

"In fact," he added "A thorough study of the manual is recommended officially for all beginners. The information it contains will be invaluable in helping them to successfully complete the license examination."
