WATER PAGEANT
 The Hillside Life Saving Corp presented its '56 Water Pageant, Wednesday, August 22 at the Hillside Swimming Pool. The story was centered around the life of the American Indian. The Corp led the audience down an imaginary trail to a Cherokee Indian Village nestled at the foot of a lofty mountain in Western North Carolina. With wigwags, Indians and a very colorful background, the story began with the rendition of "The Indian Love Call," sung by a beautiful Indian maiden and a young brave with soft combo music for background.

The hundreds and hundreds of people that lined the banks of the pool were delightfully entertained by the participants in the pageant. There were acts in the water and on the stage — Quartette singing, Indian maidens doing modern dancing, swing band music, solos, different patterns formed in the water rhythmic and synchronized swimming.

A clown act by Apple Jack Moore and Company, and the swimming clowns doing all kinds of acts. There were precision diving and life saving demonstrations by the Life Saving Corps.
