

A new and more powerful vaccine against tuberculosis is being developed at the research center of the North Carolina Sanatorium System in Chapel Hill. Above are scenes from the testing center in Chapel Hill. Although the testing program is incomplete, the new vaccine, R1 Ro vaccine has proven effective in a majority of guinea pigs tested at the center. The research is made possible through funds provided by the Medical Research Committee of the American Trudeau Society, Christmas Seal sales, and the Ruth Coltrane Cannon Research Fund. The research project at Chapel Hill is directed by H. Mac Vandiviere, director of laboratories at the Chapel Hill Center.

Trial-Ridden Love Of White, Poppy Cannon Told In Ebony

CHICAGO The heart warming love story of NAACP's Walter White and his white wife, Poppy Cannon, is featured in the January EBONY. The story, taken from a book written by Miss Cannon and finished prior to White's death, is entitled The Love That Never Died. It describes the joys and heartaches the two endured during their seven-year marriage.

They first met in 1929. Poppy was 20--White was 35. Despite infrequent contacts, a warm attraction developed between them. They fought against it and for one period went ten years without seeing each other. Then in 1944 they met at a luncheon and resumed their friendship. It was three years before they were divorced and free to marry each other, she writes in EBONY. In July, 1949, 20 years after their first meeting Walter White and Poppy Cannon were married.

She writes that even though White never admitted it, she knew that their marriage added to his problems in the NAACP. Powerful forces within the Association wanted to oust him. He was told before the marriage, that Negro women would severely criticize him. They learned that it was Negro women who supported them most. Famous people like Mary McLeod Bethune and Lena Horne stuck by the Whites and dispelled the myth.

When White and Poppy were married he had already suffered many heart attacks. After they had been married for a few months, the attacks were more frequent. Poppy tells how she vainly pleaded with him to slow down. He promised to slack off, but events made it difficult for him to keep his word. In the spring of 1955, after a siege of illness and seven years of mar-

Morgan Honors Founders On Its 90th Birthday

BALTIMORE, MD. Morgan State College celebrated its ninetieth birthday here last week, paying tribute to the little band of Methodist churchmen who founded the institution almost a century ago. The Founders' Day address was delivered by James H. Carter, a 1916 graduate and now Assistant to the President, Dr. Martin D. Jenkins. Mr. Carter is now in his forty-first year as a Morgan employee.

Morgan was founded in 1867 as the Centenary Biblical Institute, named Morgan College in 1890 and became a state institution in 1939. It has grown into one of the largest Maryland institutions of higher learning, servicing more than 2,000 students yearly with a regular faculty of 136 and buildings and grounds valued at an estimated 10 million dollars.
