

Funeral Services Held For Durham Resident Of 72 Years

Funeral services for Mrs. Corina Bailey, a resident of this city for 72 years, were held at the West Durham Baptist Church, Monday, June 10, at 2:30 P.M.

MRS. CORINA BAILEY

Mrs. Bailey, born September 16, 1872, was a native of Person County. She died Thursday, June 6, at a convalescent home, 1117 Roxboro Street, after a long period of declining health and a final illness dating from last December.

At the age of thirteen, Mrs. Bailey came to Durham and, not long thereafter, joined the New Bethel Baptist Church.

She later became a member of the West Durham Baptist Church in which she held membership for about 60 years until her death.

She was an active worker in the church, until incapacitated by ill health, and was a member of the Ladies Aid Club and the Missionary Society.

Mrs. Bailey was the widow of the late Thomas Bailey. They had one child.

Officiating at the services was the Reverend T. C. Graham, the minister of the West Durham Church, who delivered the eulogy.

He was assisted by the Reverend J. Z. Siler, pastor of the Mount Olive A. M. E. Zion

Church.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Florence Jones, Durham; eight grandchildren: Mrs. Zelma Clark, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Lena Jones, New York; Miss Florrie Elizabeth Jones, Durham; Robert and George, Durham; William, Philadelphia, Pa.; Charles, New York, and Philip, serving with the armed forces in the Philippine Islands; five great-grandchildren, three nieces and one nephew.

Interment was in Beechwood Cemetery.

"Freedom of speech, thought and action ring out the cause of the Senate's high stand. Tension reduced, interracial confidence and goodwill advanced. Thanks to God, praise to our Senate."

Chairman of the Greensboro NAACP Executive Board, Rev. Melvin C. Swann, wired the TIMES:

"The Greensboro chapter of the NAACP wishes to commend the Senate of North Carolina for its statesmanlike action in defeating House Bill No. 984 and No. 1133 designed to intimidate NAACP supporters."

In Durham, Atty. C. O. Pearson, chairman of the state legal redress committee of the NAACP said:

"It is my feeling that the recent action of the State Senate in killing the anti-NAACP bills reflects the general feeling and thinking of the people throughout the State of North Carolina. It is the step forward and in the right direction. It is further an indication that the pendulum is swinging in the opposite direction of the anti-feeling of many people in the State toward the Supreme Court's decision on public education and the role played by the NAACP and other organizations in implementing the Court's decision."

"The thinking people of both races of our State should feel highly indebted to those courageous white people who appeared before the committee in opposition to these bills. Rev. Finley of Pullen Memorial Baptist Church of Raleigh; Rev. Raymond Bost of the North Carolina Council of Churches and Mrs. Catherine Adams as a citizen."

Rev. William H. Fuller, president of the Durham NAACP, asserted:

"In my opinion, the members of the Senate, in voting against the bills to tighten laws against 'barratry' and to require the NAACP to file membership lists and other information with the Secretary of State demonstrated their belief that all citizens should enjoy the same freedom."

Rev. R. L. Speaks, pastor of St. Mark A.M.E. Zion Church of Durham and an outspoken member of the Ministerial Alliance on the segregation issue, stated:

"Those of us in North Carolina who believe in Christianity and freedom for all people are very gratified with the Senate action killing the proposed legislation designed to destroy the NAACP. It is encouraging to know that the flickering flames of democracy and common sense are not entirely extinguished in the Old North State."

Nathaniel B. White, a leader in several civic organizations in Durham, said of the action:

"By not submitting to the wishes of our politically astute governor, the General Assembly has given a glimmer of hope that North Carolina will not retreat to the Dark Ages."

(Continued from page Five) slowest times in the finals were 100-97; 220-21.7; 440-48.7; 880-1; 54.8; 120 high hurdles-14.7; mile-4:28.6. Fantastic! Winning times were even more astounding. Even I could be a great College coach out here.

Both the N.A.I.A. and N.C.A.A. championships should produce some great races. In the N.A.I.A. (San Diego) and N.C.A.A. (Austin, Texas, June 14-15) only 2 of a second will separate the number one and number ten sprinters. There will be four high hurdlers who have run 13.8 or better. Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian and Lee Calhoun of N. C. C. are Olympic champions in these events. Though both are dog tired and are showing the strain of a year and six months of continuous running. I'll stick with the champs when the running is for the blue chips. A tired Morrow and Calhoun are still running 9.4 and 13.5. That's good enough for me and also good enough for new N.A.I.A. and N.C.A.A. records.
