ROBERTS

NCC Husband-Wife Team To Be Heard in Joint Recital May 1

On Friday May 1, at 8:15 p. m. the Durham alumni chapter of Delta Sigma Theta sorority will present Doris Galiber, mezzo soprano, and Howard Roberts, tenor, in a joint recital.

The two artists are in private life Mr. and Mrs. Howard Roberts. Miss Galiber, one of the stage's most versatile performers, has just completed a year's run in the successful Broadway musical "Jamaica." She is an opera and concert singer, an accomplished dancer and has been seen in several other Broadway musical productions.

Roberts, also a concert artist and veteran of stage productions, is currently teacher of voice for the North Carolina College music department.

He was well received in his debut on the local concert stage in February, 1958. However, the May 1 performance will be the first local appearance for Miss Galiber.

The couple will sing works of Handel, Brahms, Schubert and Faure, among others, will duet in excerpts from "Porgy and Bess" and sing the final scene of "Carmen Jones."

A native Virgin Islander and graduate of Howard University, Miss Galiber's professional experience includes singing with the New York City Center and Amato Opera companies.

In addition to the recently closed "Jamaica," she was seen in "The King and I," "Show Boat," "Kiss Me Kate," and "Arabian Nights."

Roberts also has many credits to his career, numbering among them musicals, opera and concerts. He has been soloist with the Robert Shaw Chorale and created the role of "Robbins" in the 1952 revival of "Porgy and Bess."

Last November, Washington Post music critic Paul Hume said of him:

"Howard Roberts is the rarest of men: a singer who is a complete musician, a vocalist of almost faultless habit, a stylist of rarest distinction and a tenor."

Family Court Model Ready

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Publication of model State legislation which would abolish separate juvenile and domestic relations courts and establish family courts as new divisions of existing courts of high jurisdiction was announced this week.

The model legislation—entitled Standard Family Court Act—is the culmination of a four-year project. It was developed by the National Probation and Parole Association with the cooperation of the Children's Bureau and the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges.

Text of the proposed legislation is published in the current issue of the Journal of the National Probation and Parole Association, a national voluntary organization of probation and parole officers.

Mrs. Katherine B. Oettinger, Chief of the Children's Bureau, in commenting on the new family court standards, said, "The organization proposed in the new standards would make it possible, for the first time in the Nation's history, to provide family court services for every county in the country."

Set-up of Today's Supermarkets Makes Shopping Planning a Must

The vast array of cans, glasses, jars, and packages that line the shelves of today's supermarket would truly astonish our forefathers.

The average supermarket presents to the customer between 4,000 and 6,000 different items. The modern shopper has a wide variety of choices at her disposal. No longer do we hand the clerk our shopping list and tell him to fill the order.

Today the food shopper must pick and choose from among the many articles waiting for her. During recent years much more consideration has been given toward determining why shoppers select various foods, not only by Government agencies, but by private firms as well. Today management in modern day supermarkets must consider such things as adequate parking, easy accessibility to the store, well stocked shelves, ease of movement through the store, and attractive eye-catching displays.

Since the average shopper makes a shopping trip once a week and spends over 20 minutes choosing among the various alternatives, it is no wonder that today food shopping has become a big job.

Of the original 37 state troopers who began patrolling the roads in 1929, only nine remain on active duty. One is the present commanding officer, Colonel James R. Smith.
