But he warned that he saw "no miraculous conversion" in Alabama.

"I never knew how the jury would react. The verdict strengthens my faith in the possibility of the South solving their problems and dealing with them honestly and justly," he went on.

Wreck

smashed through a wall of underbrush, and travelled several yards down a creek bed before slamming into a thicket.

The automobile was declared a "total loss."

Phillips blamed excessive speed for the accident. "They must have been doing close to a 100," he theorized.

The highway patrolman said Bowling had been removed from the wreckage when he arrived, but a search had to be undertaken for Thompson's body.

It was discovered by deputy Sheriff Joe Biggers in two feet of water in the stream, approximately 40 feet from where the wreckage had come to a stop.

County Coroner Dr. R. P. Perry said Thompson suffered multiple injuries. But he said death came instantly from a fractured skull.

Phillips pointed out it was not determined immediately who was driving the car at the time of the accident. But he explained that Bowling's mother, Mrs. Ethel B. Holloway, told him that her son did not have an operator's license, and, as far as she knew, had never driven.

The automobile was reportedly owned by Thompson's mother Mrs. Ruby Thompson, of 607 South Mangum street.

According to witnesses, the two youngsters had just left Grill 55, an establishment located about three miles south of Durham on the Apex road. They were thought to have been headed home.

Bowling is a senior at Hillside who was scheduled to receive his diploma at the end of the summer term.

Thompson would have been a senior at the beginning of the next school term.

Funeral services for the youth have been scheduled for Monday at the St. Joseph's A. M. E. Church.

TO PROMOTE TOURISM

Joe Louis' Relations With Cuba Explained

NEW YORK—A public relations firm issued a statement this week denying newspaper statements that Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion has signed a contract with Cuban premier Fidel Castro.

The statement explained that Louis is a member of the Louis, Row, Fisher and Lockhart Enterprises, a public relations firm which has signed a $287,000 agreement with the Cuban Tourist Commission to stimulate Negro tourist trade to that country.

M. A. Lockhart, account executive for the firm, also declared that Louis was not used to obtain the agreement and added his services will not be used for the account "until Cuba's political life is straightened out."

The announcement of the agreement between the firm and the Cuban Tourist Commission was greeted by many newspapers with the headline: "Joe Louis Signs Contract With Castro."

Louis and New York columnist Billy Rowe, also a member of the firm, were members of a group which invited several Negroes to Cuba last winter where they were welcomed by Castro.

The statement explaining Louis' connections with the firm issued this week said:

Recently, daily papers throughout the world carried a front-page headline story concerning a $287,000 contract the firm of Louis, Rowe, Fisher, Lockhart Enterprises, Inc., had signed with the Cuban Tourist Commission. Unfortunately, some of these publications did not take the time to investigate the facts and captioned their story "Joe Louis Signs Contract With Castro."

This, of course, is a misrepresentation of the truth.

The facts are that Louis, Rowe, Fisher, Lockhart Enterprises, Inc., a public relations, publicity and advertising firm, signed a $287,000 agreement with the Cuban Tourist Commission on February 4, 1960 to stimulate and develop tourism among Negroes, in a country that offers them the opportunity to enjoy their vacation time without fear of discrimination or segregation. The firm's country to extend a welcome to the Negro tourist.

The agreement was signed by M. A. Lockhart and duly registered with the United States State Department. Lockhart is the person, who initiated the contract and serves in the capacity of Account Executive. He has stated that until such time that Cuba's political life is straightened out relative to the United States, Joe Louis' services will not be used on this account.

There was no question of using Louis to obtain the agreement. The agreement was never discussed with Dr. Castro, on our part nor did he discuss it with us. It was first discussed with Senor Enrique Benavides, head of the Special Market Department of the Cuban Tourist Commission. Subsequently, the agreement was signed by Dr. Baudilio Castellanos, National Director of the Cuban Tourist Commission, and M. A. Lockhart, representing Louis, Rowe, Fisher, Lockhart Enterprises, Inc.

Under the terms of the agreement, the concern's annual fee is $25,000. The remaining $262,000 is budgeted for advertising and promotion in the Negro market. A breakdown follows: Negro newspapers, $80,000; Negro magazines, $50,000; Radio — (Negro appeal), $40,000; Special material, including convention speakers and miscellaneous, $52,000; Direct Mail, $25,000; Point of sale, window cards and etc., $10,000; Contest, $5,000.
