Restaurants' Right To Refuse Race Service is Questioned

PRAISED — Officer Garland Spangler of the Durham Police Force recently received praise for his services "beyond the line of duty" by two Charlotte women for whom he changed a flat tire. Mrs. C. E. Royster of Charlotte, in a recent letter to City Manager George Rull, told of the service and politeness offered by Officer Spangler when she experienced tire trouble while visiting in Durham. See detailed story on page 1-B.

Police Halt Movie Pickets Temporarily

Durham police halted the picket lines in front of the Center theater briefly Friday night, but after a conference with an adult advisor to the group and Negro city council member J. S. Stewart, permitted the pickets to resume. The incident occurred around 7:30 Friday night as a long line of movie goers queued up outside the theater awaiting the start of the next film program. According to Robert Riley, one of three youths picketing the theater, the ticket lines from the Center box office had covered most of the sidewalk and made it necessary for the picketers to almost enter the streets in order to pass. Riley said he, his brother, Walter, and Bernice Tommer were

A prominent North Carolina attorney called for the state to declare discrimination in all forms of public accommodations illegal in an address in Durham Sunday night.

Businesses like restaurants which serve the general public and which must be licensed and serviced by state facilities should be required to serve alike members of the public without regard to race or religion, said Marion Wright.

Wright, who is a member of the N. C. Advisory Committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights, said such a law declaring discrimination illegal is just one example of the kind of fight against tyranny which must be faced in the next decades.

"... the task of the future shapes up. It will not be so much the job of getting the law properly declared. It will be the much more exacting task of getting men to behave honestly and decently with each other. The form of tyranny against which we now protest is the form which corrupts the character of those who inflict it and leaves scars upon those who endure it."

Addressing the Durham Community Fellowship Forum on the "Right of Protest," the Linville Falls attorney said it is the duty of all men to resist tyranny whenever it appears.

"From the Egyptian days to the present, many of history's brightest chapters have recorded man's resistance to authority. Where authority is evil, or evilly exercised, failure to resist it becomes an evil."

Wright traced the history of the operations of tyranny in the past and concluded that the suspension of constitutional rights was one of the key factors in the entrenchment of tyrannous government.

He declared that such a phenomenon is taking place in the South and in North Carolina in the area of race relations.

"The constitutional right of school attendance in North Carolina has not been suspended by any edict. It has been suspended by evasion. The men who have suspended it are the ones who are responsible. See RESTAURANTS, page 6-A" question and answer period and a member of the fellowship Forum. Wright emphasized in his speech that the state should make it illegal to deny any form of public accommodation to any person because of his race or religion.

GETS STATE POST — John C. Jones, Dean of Students and instructor in history at Fayetteville State Teachers College, last week was appointed by Gov. Terry Sanford to membership on the Advisory Board of Corrections and Training. His appointment is for a two-year term. See story on 1-B.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Wilma Rudolph Marries Former NCC Student; DuBois Joins Party

NASHVILLE, TENN. — Wilma Rudolph, Olympic track star from Tennessee A. and I. State University, confirmed Tuesday she was secretly married last month to a fellow member of the school's track team.

Wilma, 21, said she was married Oct. 14 in a civil ceremony at nearby Franklin to William Ward, 25, of Linden, N. J., a former North Carolina College student who transferred to A. and I.

NEW YORK — Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, outstanding figure in American letters, and long-time crusader for the independence of African peoples, this week joined the Communist party of the United States of America.

In a letter to the Communist party, Dr. DuBois declared that he had arrived at the "firm conclusion" that "Capitalism cannot conform itself" to that "No universal selfishness can bring social good to all."

Shopping Center Construction Near

From all appearances, construction on the new College Plaza Shopping Center will begin before the year is out.

Abe Greenberg, promoter of the enterprise, has reportedly secured all the necessary legal permits to begin construction, and at present, the 7.35 acre area on Fayetteville Rd. near Mutual Heights is being cleared by bulldozers.

Reports hold that first to be built in the center is a bowling alley. Other businesses will include a supermarket, restaurant and other service establishments.

MAYS SETTLEMENT ANNOUNCED

SAN FRANCISCO — Willie Mays, San Francisco Giants star, negotiated a settlement with his estranged wife, Marguerite, and thereby won an edge in their marital tiff. The settlement announced last week calls for a $10,000 annual payment to Mrs. Mays and $5,000 yearly for support of their adopted son, Micheal, 3. She also gets the family's cream-colored Cadillac. The settlement is confidential. See NEWS BRIEFS, 6-A

JOINS PEACE CORPS — I. G. Newton, professor of political science at North Carolina College, has been named a staff consultant for the Peace Corps. His assignment will be in the University Division of the Corps. This unit's job is to select possible training sites for Peace Corps units. Newton, a veteran faculty member of N. C. C., will serve on a part-time basis through a special arrangement with the college.

'I Couldn't Keep The Money,' Says Domestic

There are still some honest, God fearing people in this world... you can be sure of it.

A recent case in point occurred this week as a young Durham matron (whom this paper will not identify) dropped a wallet containing approximately $40 on a city bus and did not discover the loss until after she had left the bus.

The young lady, a North Carolina Mutual employee, had no idea she would ever see the money or the wallet again. However as a last resort, she dispatched an appeal to a local radio station.

Much to her surprise, the appeal was answered by a mother of four children who had every use for the money, particularly with the Christmas season approaching. The woman had found the wallet on the bus and kept it, hoping to find some identification in order to return it.

When the young matron came to the mother's house to claim the wallet, she found everything intact just as she had lost it. A $10 reward was given to the mother.

DUKE U. vs. NCC?

NCC Eagles Not Going to A Bowl

The possibility of North Carolina College's undefeated grid team participating in the Orange Blossom Classic in Miami, Fla. against Florida A. and M. University was brushed away this week as the host Florida team chose Jackson State College, Jackson, Miss., as their opponents.

The announcement of the invitation of the South Western Athletic Conference champions was made public this week and killed the hopes of many a NCC fan who had hoped the Eagles would be asked to participate in the post-season game.

However, all possibilities for bowl activity are not lost yet. North Carolina College has received an invitation to play in the Prairie View Bowl in Prairie View, Texas. College officials had made no decision at press-time.

Any bowl bids for NCC now would in all probability be anti-climactical after its defeat over rival A. and T. College on Thanksgiving Day, and with the copping of the second consecutive CIAA championship.

In addition, the Eagles would have no reason to cry, after experiencing the school's first undefeated season since the "Bald Eagle," head coach Herman L. Riddick took the reins.

Davis Gets Trophy

NEW YORK — Ernie Davis, Syracuse University's All-America halfback who eclipsed the school's rushing records set by the great Jimmy Brown, Tuesday was named the winner of the 1961 Heisman Memorial Award as the outstanding college football player in the country.

The Syracuse star was the 27th winner and the first Negro of the Heisman award.

Indications For Action From Washington Seen

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Indications were strong here this week that President Kennedy may be ready to issue an executive order affecting racial discrimination in housing.

Although the White House has been comparatively silent so far on this subject, reliable sources reported that there is growing evidence that the President may take action on this issue soon.

Ample precedent for such action has already been set. President Truman was the first of modern day chief executives to use the executive power against racial discrimination when he banned segregation in the armed forces by executive order.

The Kennedy administration was voted into office on a strong Democratic party civil rights plank. The President picked a Negro, former NAACP board member Robert Weaver, to be chief of the federal housing administration.

Kennedy has so far declined to seek additional civil rights legislation from Congress, preferring instead to use enforcement of pre-

All dressed up with nowhere to go. These seem to be the cases of the North Carolina College's undefeated grid team and the "other" Durham football power the Duke University Blue Devils.

Despite their good records, post season play seems to be out of the picture for both clubs at present.

NCC had their hopes knocked out from under them this week with Florida A. and M.'s announcement that they had chosen Mississippi's Jackson State College for the Orange Blossom Classic.

And Duke hasn't received a bid to play in a major post season game, although they are being considered for several small bowls.

So it looks as though the Durham powers just might have to settle for watching bowl action on TV.

Just as food for thought, what do you suppose would happen if See DUKE-NCC, 6-A

Mrs. McCauley Succumbs To Short Illness

RALEIGH — Mrs. Mamie Roberts McCauley, wife of Dr. L. E. McCauley of Raleigh, died at her home, 8 North Tarboro St. 5:45 Thursday morning, Nov. 23, after a brief illness.

Mrs. McCauley attended the Raleigh public schools. She graduated from Shaw University with a B.S. degree. Before her marriage to Dr. McCauley she taught at Shaw University, in Fayetteville and Ahsokie.

She was a member of St. Paul A. M. E. Church, serving as president of the Emergency Club for more than 15 years.

Her affiliations included the AKA Sorority, The Links, and the YWCA.

Survivors are her husband, Dr. L. E. McCauley, a sister, Mrs. Amelia R. Hamlin of Hampton, Va., a nephew, Dr. V. C. Hamlin of Raleigh, a niece, Mrs. Mae Hamlin Scott of Newport News, Va., and several great grand nephews and nieces.

Services were held at the St. Paul A.M.E. Church Sunday, November 26 at 1 p.m. with Rev. L. S. Penn officiating. Interment followed in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Active pall bearers were Trustees of St. Paul A. M. E. Church; honorary pall bearers were members of the Scruggs Medical Society; flower bearers were members of the Emergency Club of St. Paul.

DURHAM EDUCATOR GETS AWARD

J. W. Davidson, principal of the Pearsons town school, accepts a bronze plaque from North Carolina College president Dr. Alfonso Elder during the annual Resource-Use conference held at the college recently.

The plaque honors Davidson for his achievements in public education and applications of the resource-use philosophy. E. J. Batts, 22 year veteran educator who is principal of E. J. Phillips high, of Battibore, received the only other such award given during the meeting. Davidson is prominent in Durham education and civic affairs.
