

The Lack of Solidarity in Greensboro

On May 7 appears to us to give the Negro voters of Greensboro an opportunity to express their feelings against the present City Council and the treatment they have received from the type of Negro leadership they now have in their city. They cannot achieve such ends, however, unless they stand together at the polls. Complaining and whining will not solve the problem. The solution is in the proper use of the ballot for both white and Negro candidates who will at least give respectful attention to their wishes in such an important matter as the location of a hospital plant that, for the time being, will serve only members of their own race. Tuesday, May 7, is their day of destiny. On that day they, and they alone, will have the opportunity to chart their own course.

survived the primary to place in the first 14. He finished 13th, with a total of 1,832 votes. Taylor is a retired Boy Scout executive.

Falkener fell into disfavor with Negro residents of Benbow Park area when he voted for rezoning of the area in order to locate the proposed new hospital there. The proposal passed the City Council. Residents of the section are opposed to the location of the hospital in the area and many were openly disappointed when Falkener voted for location of the hospital in Benbow.

to the principal's office by a teacher who heard him curse a boy who had taken a pair of sunglasses from him. Trice was said to have left school Monday and returned on Tuesday when he ran afoul of school discipline again. Detectives W. H. Upchurch, T. A. Hicks and A. L. Hight, who were assigned to investigate the fire after arson suspicion arose, said the boy reported that he got into East End school and set a small blaze in a cloak room around eight p.m.

The fire apparently smoldered in the air tight room for nearly eight hours before it broke loose. Flames virtually gutted all of the interior of the old, main section of the building which contained 16 class rooms and all of the school offices. However, city officials who inspected the burned building late Wednesday expressed the opinion that the walls could be used in rebuilding the gutted portion of the structure.

In the wake of the disastrous flames, East End teachers and students received an unexpected holiday. Supt. L. W. Hannen announced late Wednesday that preparation were underway to clean up water and smoke damage in the new additions so that classes could be resumed by Monday at the school in the new wings.

Hannen said the school probably would operate on double sessions until the end of the current term. The school had an assignment of 700 pupils.

nities for Negroes in journalism, Stanley said, "All you need is preparation, education, and the ability to achieve."

The Louisville Defender, under Stanley's editorship, has attained national rating among the top ten community newspapers in the nation. It has won 31 national awards during the past decade.

Six newspapers and four year-books won high ratings in the annual judging of publications. First Class newspaper honors went to The Chronicle, Hillside High School, Durham.

-Muslims

This was the position of "Malcom X," number two man in the national black muslim movement in America, in a debate with Attorney Floyd B. McKissick in Durham last week. McKissick, who crossed swords in similar debate last year with "Kenneth X," another Muslim leader agreed with Malcom X over the numerous grievances of the black man in America, but they disagreed on the techniques of solving the problem.

The attorney, who is prominent in NAACP and civil rights movements, said Negroes and whites must work in harmony because the race problem is everybody's problem. He pointed out the need for love and understanding of each other.

-Elections

The list of others include:

- Rev. L. H. Wade, Oxford, city council;
- Rev. J. W. Morrison, Graham, city council;
- Mrs. Lattice Vickers, Carrboro, board of Commissioners, and
- J. Eley Reid, and Shelton Simmons, Winton, Town Council.

In addition to these, incumbents in two other North Carolina cities have announced their intentions of seeking re-election. These include Councilmen John Winters, of Raleigh, and Waldo Falkener, of Greensboro.

Also in Durham, the Rev. R. L. Speaks is running for an at-large seat on the Council. Durham's incumbent Negro Councilman John S. Stewart is not up for re-election this term. Parham's entry in the mayor's race in Henderson is believed to mark the first time that a Negro has run for mayor of a North Carolina city since Reconstruction.

His close supporters view his candidacy as a realistic political move. They feel he has a good chance to win. This view is bolstered by the fact that four other white men are in the race which will be decided on the basis of plurality.
