New York City. Although About to be promoted to Detective-Lieutenant, Andy resigned from the force to become Nina's personal manager, thereby enabling them to avoid the intermittent and often prolonged separations that are a part of show business. Today they live in a large, but comfortable three story, nine-room house in Mt. Vernon, N. Y. and their daughter Lisa Celeste who was born in the fall of 1962. Nina's great capacity for love and need expression have found a tremendously rewarding outlet in her role as a mother. Whenever possible, she takes little Lisa with her on out-of-town engagements since the idea of being separated from her daughter for a career—or anything—does not appeal to Nina. It appears highly possible that Lisa may be a young extension of her mother's talents. At eight months she was banging the piano unreservedly and, not yet three, she shows a remarkable sense of timing and harmonics for one so young.

Nina has a passion for interior decorating and her imaginative hand and faultless good taste is evident throughout her home. She is also fond of swimming, scuba diving and bicycling. She reads voraciously, studies interpretive dancing and writes songs. She has written many tunes and does her own musical arrangements which are inventive, skillful and, as her many best-selling records attest, most pleasing.

On stage, her competence as a performer well may be a by-product of her integrity as a person. The intensity of her performance transforms, for the audience, a night out into a highly satisfying emotional experience.
