"Why does skin wrinkle?" the Catholic Digest asks.

Wrinkling was once thought to be caused by changes in a material in the connective tissues called elastin. It is now thought that wrinkling is caused by the loss of hyaluronic acid, which has an ability to hold water. Connective fibers of the skin move closer together, thus reducing the firmness of the skin.

Civil Rights Association Seeks Strong Housing Legislation

WASHINGTON — Anticipating and counteracting the powerful real estate lobby against the fair housing section of the pending civil rights bill, the NAACP and the affiliated organizations in the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights brought 1,000 representatives from 23 key states to Washington to visit their congressmen urging them to vote for a strong open housing provision.

The civil rights lobbyists gathered for a brief session Tuesday night July 26 and heard addresses by Roy Wilkins, Conference chairman and NAACP executive director; Clarence Mitchell, legislative chairman of the Conference and director of the NAACP Washington Bureau; and other civil rights leaders.

The following day the delegates went to the House Office Building button-holing their Representatives in a concerted effort to gain their support for a meaningful fair housing law, minus the exemptions proposed by Congressman Charles McC. Mathias.

Meanwhile, Mitchell disclosed a copy of a bulletin sent out by the National Association of Real Estate Brokers to its 83,000 members throughout the country calling upon them to generate grass-roots opposition to any open occupancy provision in the bill. The real estate bulletin condemned not only the original strong version of the bill but also the weakening Mathias amendment.

Despite the frenzied opposition of the real estate lobby, Mitchell, on July 29, expressed the conviction that "we are in striking distance of success."

The House vote on this section of the bill, Title IV, is expected on Wednesday, Aug. 3.
