Personally Yours

answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. I'm confused about how much jewelry to wear on a date. I've been watching other girls, and some wear necklaces and pins, bracelets and rings, while others wear no jewelry at all. What's right?

A. Depends on the occasion, the outfit, and you! Clothes with self-accessories such as collars, cuffs, lace or bows can be fashion-right with no jewelry at all, while simple jewel-necked dresses and blouses become more interesting with a pin or necklace to brighten them. Soon you'll be able to tell what jewelry to wear when, by looking at yourself in the mirror.

Q. If they gave a prize for morning clumsiness, I'm sure to win first place. I'm always dropping lipstick, spilling cologne, or splattering something all over my dresser, then spending all kinds of time cleaning up the mess. Short of turning the day around so I can get ready in the evening, what do you suggest?

A. Maybe you really should get ready in the evening — the evening before, that is! Before going to sleep, be sure all jars and cans are tightly closed, so they can't possibly spill by accident. Then lay colorful Kleenex Designer Line paper towels — with pink and gold or blue and green borders — on the dresser. They'll protect it from spills the next morning and take splashes and dribbles with them to the wastebasket.

Q. I'm going to spend a weekend with my sister at college, and I can't wait! Her roommate will be away and she's letting me use her bed. Should I take my sister's roommate a thank you gift?

A. How very nice of you to think of her! Take a gift if you like, but don't feel you have to. One gift that's inexpensive, practical and pretty, is a box of French blue Kleenex tissues to brighten the room. (Maybe your sister would like a box, too.) Whatever you decide about the gift, be sure to write them each a thank you note when you get home. Have a great weekend!

NURSERY PUPILS ENJOY TOURS

College View Nursery School staff took advantage of the spring like weather last week by taking the pupils on a trip to the airport. The children marched up the steps to the observation platform where they could very easily see all the activity around them. There were squeals of delight and faces were radiant with excitement as the planes roared upward or glided smoothly in. On their return, the kindergarten class put on paper what they saw at the airport.

The following day, the two and three year olds were taken on a trip to the Cookie Cottage in Cary. They were served cookies and the response was "Whee! a cookie party." Prior to these trips, the children visited the fire house, police station and the Symphony Concert for children at Duke University. In the near future, they will attend the Puppet Show and the Children's Museum.

Play Your Cards Right! Card playing is a party pleasure and many evening get-togethers are specially designed to become card-parties after dinner is through. Invited guests should know that this will be the evening's activity.

As a hostess you should — if space allows — set up card tables in advance with spankingly fresh decks on them. Also gather a good supply of sharpened pencils, score pads, coasters.

It's my experience that men are inveterate gin rummy stalwarts. So that their wives and dates don't become forlorn gin rummy widows, provide separate games for them. Ladies love canasta, bridge, Scrabble, anagrams and board games.

If you're hosting a card-playing evening, stop the activity about half way through with a little pre-warning: "We're having refreshments in about 15 minutes, so don't start a new round." Serve little cakelets, or assorted cookies and have coffee, tea or soda on hand. Card players usually like soft drinks while they're intent on their game, so always keep a good supply of refreshing chilled Pepsi-Cola in the refrigerator.

There's nothing wrong with playing for money, if everyone agrees on the stakes. Don't think that an evening of cards is less than an evening of conversation. It can be a good "deal" if you make it so.

NCM Retirement Club in Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the N. C. Mutual Retirement Club was held Thursday afternoon January 16 in the dining room of the Harriett Tubman YWCA. The President of the Club, C. M. Palmer presided and the following persons attended:

Mesdames Nola Cox, Merma Dunigan, Consuelo Foreman, Sophronia Green, Fannie McLean, Charity Rivera, Celeste Smith.

Messrs. W. L. Cook, R. C. Foreman, C. C. Smith, Jr., J. S. Strickland and Wendell White.

The dinner hour was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present, and added zest was given to the occasion by a program feature that could be called Fun and Frivolity of the first order. What some one might call a Grab Bag of humorous and delightful short readings really turned out to be a Give Bag from which each received a reading to be presented with little or no benefit of review or rehearsal. The readings and the contents could be classified as instant fun, and the thanks of the whole group went to Mrs. Nola Cox and Mrs. Celeste Smith for handling the "Bag."

President Palmer expressed his appreciation for the size of the attendance at the meeting and read a statement that he had prepared covering aims and objectives of the club, and a brief summary of the activities and various events in which the club has participated since its organization in 1964. The members of the club, as Palmer pointed out included former employees of the North Carolina Mutual Life Ins. Co. both in the Home Office and the Durham District Office, together with wives and/or husbands who share the fellowship, recreation, and other activities of the club.

Palmer expressed his regret over the loss of four members by death during the 1965-66 period and indicated that recent retirees have come to enlarge the membership to a count of approximately 20 active members. Included in the President's report were some ideas to be considered in the future and comments about the need for ways and means to take care of certain obligations that arise from time to time. He closed his statement with an expression of thanks for

"loyal and sincere attendance, and services during the past years."

The next regular meeting of the Retirement Club will be held Feb. 23, 1:00 p.m., YWCA Dining Room.

IF A RELATIVE DIES OUT OF TOWN, WHERE SHOULD SERVICES BE ARRANGED?

A death in the family always imposes many burdens for which most people are rarely prepared. When death occurs away from home, the most natural impulse is to rush to that city at once. This requires last minute plane or train reservations which are often difficult to obtain. In a strange city, with many details demanding attention, these burdens become even more numerous as well as perplexing. We sincerely believe it best not to add to the burden and expense of such a trip at an already trying time. We at the Scarborough & Hargett Funeral Home are well established and highly rated internationally. We at the Scarborough & Hargett Funeral Home have many times arranged through our wide contact, and our network of associates worked out the necessary details, and most often funeral services were conducted locally within 48 or 72 hours.
