

Two Meharry Medical Students Cited for Nutrition Survey

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Two Meharry Medical College graduating medical students yesterday were cited for "meritorious team work in the nutrition survey" they conducted during the summer of 1968 in Beaufort County, Bluffton and Hilton Head Island areas of South Carolina, dean of the School of Medicine, Dr. Ralph J. Cazort, announced.

The Bordon Medical Science Award, sponsored by the Bordon Foundation, Inc. and presented at Meharry for the first time this year, went to Lucius Eddie High, M.D., of Spartanburg, S. C. and to James Lewis Wilson, M.D., of 2017 Manor St., Detroit.

Both students performed physical and clinical examinations of pre-school children of low-income families in the South Carolina area, gathering information about the high rate of parasite infestation and obtaining data concerning the nutritional levels of the families which later was brought to the attention of the McGovern Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

Meharry Nutritionist and Biochemist Dr. Edward G. High, in recommending the students for the award said, "It was due greatly to their pioneering efforts that national attention was focused on this remote rural area, and as a result, programs have been started to improve the nutritional and health conditions of these children and their families."

Dr. Doris Wright, associate professor of medicine, assisted in getting the students started in preparing and obtaining specimens and setting up the clinical aspects of the survey for nutritional and worm infestation analysis, High said.

High, the awardee, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius High of 131 E. Clement St., Spartanburg. He received the B.S. and M.S. degrees from A & T State University of North Carolina. He also attended Claflin College. He is a member of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. and participated in the Student American Medical Association and the Student National Medical Association while at Meharry. He will serve his internship at Hubbard Hospital of Meharry Medical College. He and his wife have two children.

Wilson, the son of Mrs. Lucille Wilson of Detroit, received the M.T. degree from Sinai Hospital School of Medical Technology and the B.S. degree from Tuskegee Institute.

HAMPTON JAZZ FESTIVAL TO THUR., JUNE 26

HAMPTON, Va.—Second Annual Hampton Jazz Festival will open with a concert of gospel music in Hampton Institute's Ogden Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 26.

The concert will open with songs of the Rev. Mr. Gary Davis, who for many years was a street singer and preacher. In recent years he has been hailed by some musicians as an "extraordinary guitarist" and a "powerful singer." Several of his songs have been recorded by other artists, including "If I Had My Way", which was made popular by Peter, Paul and Mary.

One of the world's leading female gospel soloists will be featured on the concert.

Marion Williams was for many years a member of the well-known group, The Stars of Faith. As leader of the singers she was featured in the production "Black Nativity" which was termed a great success in New York and later toured the world, receiving much acclaim. Miss Williams performs now on her own, and few performers are her peers in the world of gospel music today.

Rounding out the program of gospel music at the Hampton Jazz Festival will be the House of Prayer Gospel Choir of Newport News, Virginia, which has over 100 voices and is considered by many musicians to be one of the best choirs in Tidewater, Virginia.

According to George Wein, director of the festival, gospel music has always had a strong influence on jazz, and the Hampton Jazz Festival, in this concert, is acknowledging the long standing debt of jazz to gospel music.

Naval Training Center for Recruit Training.

Burrell Reports On Black Bus. To U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Without doubt, Government has the responsibility of easing social pressures where business fails. Government should work with the business community that needs and would welcome its subsidy for the good of the nation — and that business is small and black!" Berkeley G. Burrell, President of the National Business League, told the Select Committee of the Senate on Small Business today that Government seemed to overlook those who genuinely seek its assistance.

He reported Black businessmen have never benefited from substantial Government subsidy as has others. He cited, "... oil depletion allowance or investment credits, nor has it (Black business) polluted either our air or our water. We are about to eliminate smoke stacks and Blacks never owned one, yet all of the air polluters are rich industrialists who can now afford a social conscience!" He continued, "Gentlemen, there are no Black citizens receiving $100,000 from our Government in subsidy money for not growing cotton or other agricultural products!"

Burrell, spokesman for 10,000 Black businessmen, was invited to appear before the Bible Committee for his appraisal of small business in America, and particularly to give a status report on Black business. He stated that the problems of small minority businessmen of the country are legendary, mainly because of color. He said, "For generations majority America pretended that neither they (Blacks) nor the people they served existed."

Moherer said, "Doubts are more cruel than the worst of truths."

When a man says he does not care for the society of women, you know that he has tried and failed.

Some women are naturally straight-forward and prefer to possess a dog rather than a husband.
