Livingstone Col. Cagers Hoping For Good Year

SALISBURY—The only place for the Livingstone College cage team to go this year is "up", following a dismal campaign last season. Last year the Blue Bears lost 20 while winning only 4.

Head coach Walter E. Brown, Jr. looks forward to an improved team for 1969-70, but he is realistic enough to admit he will be up against virtually the same tough schedule that caused the failure of his team a year ago.

"Though most of the team is made up of freshmen, these fellows have shown very good attitudes and plenty of hustle in preparation for the upcoming season," says Brown. The Blue Bears will have only two seniors on the team. One is Terryson Wright a 6-2 guard from Aiken, S. C., who is expected to provide the Bears with the leadership they will need. He is also expected to direct the backcourt attack. The other senior is 6-3 John Allen of Charlotte, who, according to Brown, has improved a lot during practice sessions thus far. He is expected to provide some of the shooting talent as well as some of the rebounding strength the Bears will definitely need.

"We are not a big team," the coach continued, "with our tallest player being Soph William Ferguson at 6-6, but we will try to make up in speed what we lack in height."

Ferguson, the talented forward from John F. Kennedy High in Canton, Ohio, was his team's second leading scorer last season, while also holding a top place in the CIAA point-getting race. It is also hoped that he will do a good job off the boards.

Junior forward Archie Dawson, 6-5 from Kinston, was a starter as a freshman and is a seasoned performer. He, along with Wright Ferguson are the only starters back from last season.

The fifth spot on the starting squad could possibly be a toss-up between a junior John Shearin of Franklin, Va., and Tyrone Ricks of Kinston, an up-and-coming freshman.

Finding a replacement for top scorer James Berry of Pinnacle, who graduated last year will be a difficult job.

Local Sorority Features Dr. Paul Earls

"Turkish Folk Music" was the 1969 theme for The National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa Beta Zeta's Chapter Teach-A-Rama. The activity, presented by Dr. Paul Earls, was held on the East Campus of Duke University Sunday, November 23.

Dr. Earls, Associate professor of music at Duke University, gave an introductory sampling of recorded Turkish music with commentaries and also displayed instruments made and used by the natives.

The recording samplings presented were acquired by Dr. Earls during which time he spent in Turkey on a Fulbright fellowship.

The main focus was on the flute. "This instrument, found in all parts of Turkey, has a variety of sizes and shapes," said Dr. Earls. "The playing technique is quite oriental. A musical note is never held straight. It always has frills and inflections. It is always used in wedding ceremonies."

One startling statement revealed by Dr. Earls is that, "at communal dancing, the men dance together and that women rarely take part in outdoor exercise."

Special guests were Dr. Earls' students.

During the social hour, following the discussion, tea and cookies were served.

Mrs. Martha H. Johnson is Bastileus of the local chapter.

Million Measles Deaths Are Prevented By West African Vaccination Program

ATLANTA, Ga. — An on-going common measles immunization program in 20 West African countries will have prevented an estimated 1 million deaths from the disease by Nov. 30, according to an announcement today by the U. S. National Communicable Disease Center (NCDC) here. The Center is the U. S. Agency with operational responsibility for implementing the West African program.

New shipments of single-shot, Schwarz-strain common measles vaccine — brandnamed Livugen — will be made shortly to West African distribution points under a contract for 1.5 million doses awarded recently to The Dow Chemical Com-

Interesting Notes From the Bowl Bound N. C. C. University Eagles

There are two variations of football excitement, and the two North Carolina Central University teams since Coach George Quiett took over have provided both in abundance.

Last year, the Eagles offered Thurman Jones, Jones was a fullback punter and lineman, and he bulled his way to a school season scoring record of 62. The excitement was the slow, grinding battle for ten yards, four yards, a few inches, that characterizes a ground game.

On occasion there was the flash of a breakaway run by halfbacks Roy Anderson, Willie Ray Taylor, and Ollis Carson, and there was always the threat of pass-receivers Carson, Terry Cole, and Julian Martin.

Carson, Cole, and Martin made the ground game possible, forcing coverage by linebackers and secondary. This year, the ground attack threat of Carson, fullback Roger Foust, and halfbacks MIK Carter, Gilbert Smith, and Moses Bryant has made an aerial attack possible.

Passing makes for excitement for most fans. The ball hangs in the air on a long pass, the receiver stretches his legs at a full run, and defenders hang alongside him. It's complete, it's a touchdown—but just slight inaccuracy in the throw can turn the pass into an interception.

That has been the Eagle game this year. In the last several games, virtually every pass caught by Julian Martin has been for a touchdown. The fleet-footed New Bern end has caught 13 touchdown passes this season, and has broken Jones' scoring record. Since October 25, he has caught 8 passes for 5 touchdowns.

Quarterback Herman Mathews has been the key figure in this year's attack. Mathews throws with 64 per cent accuracy, completing 94 of 149 attempts. His passing has netted 1,378 yards and sixteen touchdowns.

Martin has caught 38 passes for 732 yards. Carson has caught 31 passes for 441 yards and two touchdowns and freshman end Mahlon Williams has caught 16 passes for 150 yards, and one touchdown.

Carson has rushed for 454

Roger Foust for 290 yards, Gilbert Smith for 240 yards, Mike Carter for 208 yards, and Jefferson Inman for 134 yards to lead Eagle rushers.

Carson and Carter, who is a substitute halfback, are averaging 7.0 and 7.1 yards per carry. Foust is averaging 4.3 yards per carry at fullback. Smith has an even 6.0 yards per carry average, and Inman is averaging 4.9 yards per carry as the substitute fullback.
