TODAY'S SCENE AT HILLSIDE

By Karen Oldham

KAREN OLDHAM

Today's young people, though often condemned by the older generation for their impetuousity, are in fact proving to be the most intelligent generation by far. This generation of youth demonstrates an incredible insight into the problems facing today's society.

Accordingly, four "now generation in the know" Hornets were selected to give their views on the subject "The Black Man in the White Society."

Senior panelists this week are Jacqueline Duryear, 18; Edward Boyd, 17; Darlene Sanders, 17; and Aaron Moore, 18. Each is active in school activities. Darlene, Aaron and Edward are members of the Student Council, and Jacqueline along with Edward are members of the National Honor Society. Recently, Edward was also the recipient of a $1000 scholarship to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Asked whether they felt the Klu Klux Klan is a threat to the black man, two of the panalist felt not necessarily so. Edward emphasized the fact that "the hypocritical white race is more to be feared than the KKK because we do not know exactly how much they hate us." Aaron adds: "You have to fear the silent whites because they don't let you know what they are planning and the one who speak out (KKK) give you the plans, so you know what to expect."

The girls were basically agreeable on the roles they thought the Black Panthers and NAACP play in America. Darlene feels the Black Panthers and the NAACP stand firmly for what they believe and are Continued on page 8A
