North Carolina Masons Honor Three

Dr. Wheeler

RALEIGH — In order that history might properly record the activities of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Grand Lodge, Prince Hall Masons, Jurisdiction of North Carolina, observed here recently, special awards were given to three of its members, along with due recognition of the first Grand Master, Bishop J. W. Hood.

John H. Wheeler, Durham banker and national business leader, was given the "Distinguished Citizen Award". The committee on awards selected Mr. Wheeler for his outstanding achievements in the field of business, government, politics and religion.

Clark S. Brown, who has served the organization, as the head, since 1959 was given an award for the forthright leadership he was given the 27,000 member organization. Even though the organization has been active in every facet of the state's program, the Grand Master has pounded away on the matter of registering and voting. He has constantly kept the Central Orphanage, Oxford, before the members.

The third award went to Dr. R. Irving Boone, whose work as director of public relations and editor of the Masonic Journal has kept the
