

N. C. Mutual Elects 2 New V. Presidents

Joseph W. Goodloe, president and chief executive officer of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, announced the Board of Directors' election of two officers to vice presidencies at the January meeting. They are: Louise T. McCrae, Corporate Secretary and Murray J. Marvin, Director of Corporate Planning.

In making the announcement, Goodloe recalled that he originally recruited both the new vice presidents for employment with North Carolina

Mutual. And, in his former position as personnel officer has had a close association with them in their professional growth and development. It was his feeling that their new positions of responsibility will afford them additional opportunities for broader work and service.

"Mrs. McCrae's career," Goodloe pointed out, "spans a period of twenty-seven years. In her progress through the ranks she chalked up several trail-blazing 'firsts' here in our Company. She began her career as a stenographer in the Industrial Department in 1944. By 1950 she had advanced to the position of 'acting chief clerk.' A year later she became chief clerk and in 1952 became the first woman to serve as department manager in our Company. Later, the same year, she was appointed administrative assistant to the corporate secretary, a position she held until she was appointed assistant secretary. (First woman in the Company's history to hold this post.) In 1967 she, again, became the first woman in a job. She was elected corporate secretary. Now, in her latest position, she became the second of her sex to be elected as a North Carolina Mutual vice president.

Louise McCrae is a graduate of North Carolina Central University's Business Department and is an "associate" of the Life Office Management Institute. She is currently enrolled in the Institute's courses in "administrative management" and "personnel administration" leading to the coveted designation as a "fellow" in the life management institute. Mrs. McCrae's husband is a detective in the Durham Police Department.

"My working relationship with Murray Marvin goes back over twenty years," Goodloe continued. "I got to know him and his wife, Delores, while serving as convention chairman, board member and later as president of the National Insurance Association. They had their own consulting firm of Marvin & Marvin in Chicago. The present NIA National Office operation is based on a report-study they prepared. Several projects they designed and structured during their eleven years with the NIA are still operative. In 1958, during my tenure as NIA president, I encouraged Murray to seek his master's degree in business administration under the Executive Program of the University of Chicago. In 1960, when I learned he was planning to leave the NIA to accept employment with another company, I interested him in em-

Wilkins Sounds Optimistic Note At N.A.A.C.P. Annual Meeting

NEW YORK — In a wide-ranging review of the 1970 activities of the National Association of Colored People and of developments on the racial front generally, NAACP Executive Director Roy Wilkins, sounding an optimistic note, cited as highlights of the year Negro participation in the November elections; positive legislative action; the emergence of the NAACP-sponsored National Afro-American Builders, Inc.; the struggle against continuing Jim Crow in housing, employment and education; defense of black servicemen; and multiple programs carried out by local NAACP units throughout the nation. Reporting to the membership on the "State of the NAACP" at the Association's 62nd annual meeting here, January 11, Mr. Wilkins said that results of the elections revealed that "the overwhelming majority of Negro Americans have chosen to work within the framework of the American system. They have grievous complaints. Some of them are being harassed, persecuted and murdered because they fight for their rights with vigor, determination and skill in the courts, in protest demonstrations and at the ballot box."

Nevertheless, he said, "they are forging ahead. They used the election last November to signal that they have not withdrawn from the contest. They marshaled the voter strength and sentiment needed to reject the nomination of Judge G. Harold Carswell in a campaign spearheaded by the NAACP with the aid of labor and other groups active in civil rights."
