

HOW TO AVOID FINANCIAL FIGHTS AT HOME

Wife and strife may rhyme all the time, and when it comes to money, there are times when dispositions are far from sunny among persons who ordinarily call each other "honey." Some families wait until it's almost too late to avoid financial arguments.

But, just as love is a many-splendored thing, the family budget is a money-splendored thing. And by putting into effect the best methods of household money management, finance rhymes with romance.

In order to live safely within an income and get the most value out of money spent, it is necessary to formulate a careful plan of spending and saving.

This is known as budgeting. There are not set rules for the use of income, since the needs and requirements of people in various communities and income groups differ greatly. There are, however, certain general rules that should be followed if a budget is to be successful.

Married couples who budget to improve their financial management design their own budgets, based on their goals and circumstances. They also stand ready to review their budgets from time to time. Deciding your goals is a matter for husband-wife consultation.

Before allotting your income, you must know what the income is. Under today's method of payment, take-home pay is the amount customarily left to the discretion of the individual. Federal income taxes, social security taxes, some state income, insurance payments, union dues, payments to professional associations and pension-fund contributions something involve money management. The term scares some people. It really isn't because it's not that complicated. All money management means is that you try to keep the amount of money coming in from every source roughly equal to the amount going out for every purpose. Most people do this even though they may never realize it. And by doing that they don't have to be so concerned with cash on hand before deciding "Can I afford it?"

Bank charge cards such as Master Charge provide a means of not only controlling expenditures by the husband and wife, but also of enabling you to get more for your money by taking advantage of the time value of money. The calendar date when you make a purchase, for example, can make a considerable difference in dollars and cents in many ways.

First, it puts money in your hands when you need it—for example, to take advantage of a special sale you might have to take money out of a savings account and lose interest. Yet, by using a Master Charge card and paying for your purchases within the specified period you lose no interest and pay no interest. In effect, you are getting free use of someone else's money for almost a month. You also receive an accurate record of your expenditures in one monthly bill.

Husbands and wives, taking advantage of this procedure, can give each other full credit for intelligent money matters. And they'll never consider their mate a louse as a spouse.

Springtime Re-Decorating with Color

With the change of season come thoughts for a change of surroundings. The easiest way to change your immediate surroundings is with a change of color and with create-it-yourself color accents. Tie-dye is the way for you to create original and unique accents for color re-decorating.

The magical effects of tie-dye are easy to do for such items as curtains, pillow covers, bed spreads, fabric coverings for boxes, waste baskets and lamp shades and for striking wall hangings. The ancient art involves use of fabric, rubber bands and all purpose dye. The process is really simple, tie the fabric, then dye it. The ties resist penetration of dye resulting in pattern lines on a dyed background.

The choice of colors and pattern effects are up to you. The results will be creative and original as no two tie-dyes are exactly alike. You can dye any washable material except for some of the polyesters and acrylics and glass or mineral fibers. Material can be white or light colored. You may want to experiment first to test color results and determine the best patterns.

For a striking sunburst wall hanging: Start with a large piece, about 54 inch square, of fabric such as cotton sailcloth. After laundering, lay wet fabric out flat. Mark a point for center of sunburst. Pick up point and secure tightly just below point with rubber bands. Holding center, twist and smooth remaining fabric down, securing tightly at frequent intervals.

Prepare dye solution (starting with lightest color to be used first) by mixing 1/4 cup liquid or dissolving 1/4 package powder Rit all purpose dye into 1 quart hot water. (Increase amount of dye solution as needed using a container large enough to avoid crowding.) Heat to simmering. Immerse tied fabric into solution and stir for about 15 minutes. Remove ties and rinse well in cool water.

Starting at same center point, retie as before, twisting fabric so that undyed or lightly dyed areas are on the outside. Immerse into next dye solution. Continue this process, using remaining dye solutions, until there are no undyed areas remaining. Rinse well after each dyeing. When finished, untie and rinse again thoroughly under running water until water runs clear. Hang to dry and iron while still slightly damp.

To mount your new wall hanging, stretch it over a wooden frame and secure with staples. Finish edges with tape or hem on all edges and hang by dowel sticks through top and bottom. Send post card request for free leaflet on tie-dye with pattern suggestions adaptable for curtains, pillows and other items to color coordinate with your new wall hanging: Fancy Fabrics, Dept. The Soviet record was nearly 10 percent more than its previous high in 1968 of 74 missions, and nearly 180 percent greater than the U.S. mission rate in 1970. The number of U.S. space missions is declining at a time when the Soviet Union is accelerating its space exploration program.
