

NCCU Coed is Woman Athlete Of the Year

At the recent Women's Athletic Association Sports Day meet at North Carolina Central University, students from five colleges and universities -- Hampton Institute, Virginia State, Bennett, South Carolina State, and NCCU -- were competing for the highest athletic award given during the year to the most outstanding woman athlete.

The coveted award of the Women's Sports Day Association, "Woman Athlete of the Year," 1971, was won by Miss Margartha Chambers, a native of Winston-Salem. Miss Chambers grew up in Winston-Salem, where she was reared by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha G. Vinson. She is the daughter of Mrs. Bertha I. Eason of Bridgeport, Conn. and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Alston of Durham.

Miss Chambers has been an outstanding performer and leader in the NCCU Women's Athletic Association for her entire four year college career. She has served both as president and secretary of the NCCU WAA. For three years Miss Chambers has been a member of the WAA Championship Team. This is another distinct honor which is very noteworthy. Her leadership and athletic skill have been key factors in the championship play of the teams on which she has participated.

Miss Chambers has also exhibited leadership capabilities in her professional organization, the North Carolina Central University Physical Education Majors Club. She has been an active participant for four years and has served as secretary for two years. She also is presently the Editor of the NCCU

PEM Newsletter. Other activities for Miss Chambers include participation as a member of the NCCU intercollegate Volleyball and Basketball teams.

Miss Chambers, a major in the Department of Physical Education is currently serving as a student teacher at Githens Junior High School in Durham County. During her junior year, she served as a volunteer teaching assistant in physical education at R. N. Harris Elementary School.

Because of her most outstanding leadership, participation, cooperation, and dedication, Miss Chambers is also scheduled to receive an additional award prior to her graduation on May 30. The NCCU PEM Club award, "PEM Club Major of the Year" will be presented to Miss Chambers as the climax to a tremendous four years career as a major student in the Department of Physical Education. Her participation has been most outstanding in both athletics and professional activities, a combination which will surely mean continued success for Miss Chambers in her many future endeavors.

Life is the only game in which each individual player makes his own rules.

Planning for the future is the only way to improve the future.
