Houseboat Sinks; Three Rescued

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Three persons were rescued from the sinking 34-foot houseboat Sunday by charter boat fishermen from Rudee Inlet.

The houseboat sank inside the inlet as it was being towed by Capt. J. T. Haley of the charter boat Sea Gull.

Robert Martin, 25, of Aberdeen, Md., owner and operator of the houseboat, said he and his two passengers, Debbie Schupe, 16, of Arlington, Va., and Donald Ashford, 18, of Aberdeen, were on a short vacation and trying to find a place to dock here.

He said he had tried twice earlier Sunday to get into Rudee Inlet but turned back both times because he wasn't familiar with the channel. He said he headed south from the inlet after the second try.

Martin said he was about four miles south of the inlet and about 1 1/2 miles offshore when he smelled propane gas. He went topside to cut off the propane tank, he said, and as he started down, he noticed the bow was dipping heavily into the water.

He opened two forward hatches, Martin said, and found the hull was filling with water.

He put out a distress call about 2:15 p.m. and the Coast Guard responded, closing him pumps from a helicopter, but he couldn't get them working. The closest cutter was about two hours away, and the Coast Guard asked Virginia Beach police for help.

Police said they refused to let a 23-foot police boat assist because of heavy seas, and the Coast Guard asked any nearby vessels for aid. Haley and William Meredith in the Wahoo II responded from a marina at the inlet.

Charter boat Capt. John Pierce, who was with Haley, jumped overboard to help remove Martin and the teenagers from the houseboat.

Haley put a line on the houseboat and started for the inlet. It sank just inside the mouth of the inlet, and salvage attempts were begun Sunday night.

"My home and all my worldly possessions are out there sunk," said Martin, a Civil Service employee at Aberdeen Proving Grounds. He said he had owned the boat — which he valued at $12,000 — about a year. He said it was his only home.

Travel Ban — The Pakistan government has banned travel abroad—except for business and specialized study—as a means of preserving foreign exchange.

The First Psalms

By DONALD LOVE

Sometime back I had something to say on the Twenty-third Psalms. I do hope you were able to grasp what I tried to say in relation between animal, man and God.

God gave man dominion over the fish of the sea, over the fowl of the air, over the cattle and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

From this part of God's creation stands for reasons. God intended for man to observe the obedience of these creatures to Him more so than man.

David had grown old and had been the leader of both animal and man. He knew animals were more obedient than man.

Why not take time out, read Genesis, the third chapter, the curses God handed out? The sheep were not included but they; not only they, all other animals have obeyed God from the beginning of time and have not done anything He said not to do, the serpent is included. Man is the trouble maker.

David was able to see as a shepherd, how dependent the sheep were on him. He was also able to see as an anointed King by God, to be the shepherd of man and how rebellious he was.

There is so much to be learned from these creeping things. My wife has chickens, she knows their every sound. Sound of friendliness, hunger, danger and even when strangers appear.

What ever God gave them, they have used it from the beginning and are yet using it and have not tried to change it, not even just a little bit.

Man with his intellect feels changes are necessary for his own benefit, so he changes things.

In order to remind man of his duty and his obligation to God, he started off in the first Psalms by charging him: Blessed (or happy) is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

What he is really saying is anyone is much happier and there is consolation when he refuses to accept advice from a sinner. He is referring to spiritual counseling. How can a sinner give spiritual advice? By taking advice from spiritual leaders, he will not be a stumbling block for sinners nor will he stand on the side lines despising or sneering at others.

During the life of David, law was the key then, as grace is for us today. So he is referring to the key here, man whole interest rather than anything else, think on, meditate on, eat and sleep on

Press Panned

WASHINGTON — Martha Mitchell, wife of Attorney General John N. Mitchell, deploring publication of a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war, said: "I deplore the indiscreet judgment, that smells of political implications, on the part of the press, which has reached such an extent that it may result in complete suppression of the press — in which event it will have caused its own death."

FTC, FDA Rules Set On Products

WASHINGTON — How good a bargain is 5 cents off regular price? How new is an introductory offer? And just what is economy size?

The American buyer should be able to get solid answers to these questions beginning next year under rules published Friday by the Federal Trade Commission and the Food and Drug Administration.

The two agencies, acting under provisions of the Fair Labeling and Packaging Act, issued the rules for food, drugs, cosmetics and household commodities, including packaged appliances.

After the rules take effect Dec. 31, commodities offered for sale with any amount off the regular price must in fact be sold at so many cents or dollars off.

Introductory offers, say the regulations, must be limited to new products, and economy size packages must be bigger and sell for less per unit of measure than regular size.

The FTC regulations cover household commodities such as soap or appliances while the FDA's rules cover food, drugs, cosmetics and medical devices.

Under the FTC rules, commodities offered with cents-off prices must have been recently sold at regular price, must in fact be a reduction in price and must show on the package or label the regular price, the number of cents or dollars taken off and the new price.

The rules prohibit so-called introductory offers unless the product is new, has been vastly changed or is being introduced into a trade area for the first time.

The producer must also intend to sell the product at regular price "for a reasonably substantial period after the promotion."

To label a product economy size, a manufacturer must also have another size package of the same product to offer consumers. Only one package of the brand of product may be labeled economy size and it must give consumers a reduction in price per unit of measure of at least 5 per cent below the price of other size packages.

The FTC said its rules will take effect Dec. 31 unless it receives "valid objections by adversely affected packagers and labelers."

Blacks' Political Potential Indicated in Census Data

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of the Census released data Monday that indicates the immense potential political power of blacks in the South.

The latest findings, drawn from the 1970 census, show that all 102 counties in the country that are at least 50 per cent black are located in 11 Southern states. The states are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

The data also show a dramatic increase in the number of cities where Negroes are at least 50 per cent of the population. In 1960, only three cities with populations of at least 25,000 were 50 per cent or more black. The three were the District of Columbia, Charleston, S. C., and Bessemer, Ala. Today the total is 16, most of which are small cities.

Significantly, the list of the 102 counties did not change over the period between 1960 and 1970. And ironically, all but three of the counties lost percentage points — some as much as 10 points — indicating that blacks were still leaving the South, as the Census Bureau had previously reported.

However, in the context of the radically improved political climate for Negroes since 1960, a census official said, "The political potential for blacks is tremendous." That potential can already be seen in the fact that more than 200 blacks are running for office in Mississippi this year.

The 102 counties form almost a contiguous band stretching from South Virginia to Louisiana. Only one county in Texas, Waller, is predominantly black, while two in Tennessee and Florida, three in Arkansas and nine in Louisiana are mostly black.

Tests Show Low Rate Of Addiction

SAIGON — Initial results of new tests devised to weed out and rehabilitate the heroin addicts among home-bound GI's disclose an addiction rate of only two per cent, military sources said Monday.

Previous estimates of the number of heroin addicts in the U.S. expeditionary force ranged to 10 per cent or even higher.

However, some experts question the effectiveness of the tests. Outside observers on the spot have reported that some GI addicts have slipped through the net despite the tests and others have passed them by "drying out"—breaking their drug habit—temporarily.

Nevertheless, military sources said that, based on the findings of urinalysis testing of about 5,000 servicemen since the new tests were put into effect June 18, drug usage is well below feared levels.

Factors Cited

Military officials said that Vietnam-wide crackdowns on narcotics distribution and an increasing number of soldiers volunteering for military-run amnesty programs could be major factors in reducing the number of heroin users before they were tested at the end of their year's tour of duty in Vietnam.

The U.S. command has so far declined to issue official figures on the new drug-detecting program in order to provide a more balanced picture over a longer term.

Three specially-developed machines were flown to Vietnam last month for the start of a program to test every serviceman or woman leaving the war theater. A second, more precise test is given any person with a positive reading.

Confirmed users of opiates—heroin, opium or morphine—are placed in quarantine in Vietnam for between five and seven days and then flown to the United States in medical evacuation aircraft for up to another six weeks' rehabilitation at military installations.

Drug users are not punished and findings are not placed on a GI's service record, though are listed on medical records.

Agnew Sees Aid to Hanoi In News Media Reports

SINGAPORE — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Monday that if the North Vietnamese launch a successful isolated attack in South Vietnam as U.S. troops withdrew, the American news media will unintentionally aid Hanoi by portraying the enemy victory as a failure of the Vietnamization program.

Agnew also said the media misrepresented American foreign policy to world leaders by giving the impression "the isolationist attitude" will win out in the United States.

Attack Possible

He told reporters that North Vietnam might take advantage of U.S. troop cuts to launch a pinpoint attack on the South Vietnamese that, while resulting in high enemy casualties, will give Hanoi "a public relations coup."

He said that portraying the Nixon administration's Vietnization program as a complete failure "is easily achieved because so many of our people in the national media are too ready to assist the North Vietnamese by their overemphasis on what's taking place."
