

Duke Medical Center to Focus On Problems of Adolescent

By JOE SIGLER

If you're anywhere beyond your teenage years you may remember adolescence as a time of some physical and emotional frustrations and social embarrassments.

It's not the easiest time of life because it marks the transition from a child to an adult, which doesn't always go smoothly.

Looking at it from a doctor's viewpoint, it's not the easiest time of life to treat, either. Dr. Sam Yancy, a Duke University Medical Center pediatrician, put it this way: "Many doctors just don't feel competent handling adolescents. These youth come at an age between the pediatrician and the internist. Some doctors feel that most of their problems are emotional and it's frustrating sometimes to deal with them."

Recognizing the problem, which might be called an "adolescence gap" in the doctor-patient relationship, Duke has taken steps to help correct it by establishment of an adolescence clinic.

The clinic, which has been in operation since October, has received all its referrals so far from other clinics within the medical center. Besides pediatrics, it is supported by the departments of psychiatry, internal medicine and obstetrics-gynecology. Yancy is director.

"The emphasis," Yancy explained "is on behavioral orientation, or what is called the 'second diagnosis.'"

The second diagnosis, he said, grows out of a legitimate physical complaint "which is used as a ticket into the doctor's office to discuss the real problem."

The Convocation speaker, who is the senior partner in the law firm of Frye and Johnson in Greensboro, is a native of Ellerbe, and received the BS degree in biological sciences from North Carolina A. and T. State University. He attended Syracuse University in 1958 and was awarded the Doctor of Law degree from the University of North Carolina Law School, Chapel Hill. He was admitted to the North Carolina Bar in November of 1959.

He served as U. S. Assistant District Attorney from 1963 to 1965 and was professor of law at North Carolina Central University from 1965 to 1967.

He is active in several civic, religious and state organizations and is a member of the Greensboro, American, National, North Carolina, and North Carolina Black Lawyers Bar Associations.

Mr. Frye is a member of board of directors of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company and is president of Greensboro National Bank.

He is serving his second term as a member of the N. C. House of Representatives where he is vice chairman of the Education Committee and of the Judiciary II Committee. He is a member of five other House committees, including Appropriations, Alcoholic Beverage Control, Constitutional Amendments, Higher Education, and State Legislative Districts.

He is married to the former Miss E. Shirley Taylor of Freeport, N. C. The Fryes have two sons, Henry, Jr., age 12, and Harlan, age 10. They reside at 1920 Drexmore Ave. in Greensboro.

dent; Misses Sylvia Berry, a senior of Windsor, secretary; Jane Harp, a junior of Raleigh, treasurer; Esther Boyer, a senior of Raleigh, marshal; Glenda F. Dunston, a junior of Rahway, New Jersey, assistant historian; and Dr. Thelma Roundtree, chairman of the English Department.

The FBI has reported that some 125 local, county and state police officers were slain in 1971. The report said that 48 policemen were killed in the South, 28 in the North Central states, 26 in the Northeast and 23 in the West.

John Lucas Durham's Black Super-Star

Mothers and grandmothers, chances are that you're so busy keeping up on the job and house work, you seldom get the chance to enjoy sports anymore. Perhaps, you're not very interested.

Whether you are interested or not, you may rest assured that you will be touched by this phenomenon. Especially, if there are young people in your household, from the tender age of six on up.

The name is repeated again and again; during breakfast, lunch, dinner, telephone conversations, showers, and sometimes, immediately following the bed-time prayers.

Finally, you decide to take the verbal plunge and ask, "What in the world is Luc?" (pronounced look) It is quite possible that you'll quickly be regarded as an image of retardation.

Then, one afternoon, you drive up to the Seven-Eleven. Suddenly, there's screaming, shouting and squirming from each child in the car. All the young eyes are staring out. A little nose presses against the fogging window pane and somebody signs. You wonder if you've done something wrong. They you hear these words, "Wow! Luc is bad!" (That means extraordinary) Next, you see a small, red car and out of it comes a handsome, black face and it goes up, up, up. Six feet-three inches. It's John Lucas, a senior at Hillside High School. The miraculous performer of basketball and tennis. That's Luc. The window, zips down. Hands wave and greetings flow, delightfully. You remember the song lyrics, "... young, gifted and black; that's where it's at." You feel so proud.

Frye Founder's Day Keynote At Livingstone

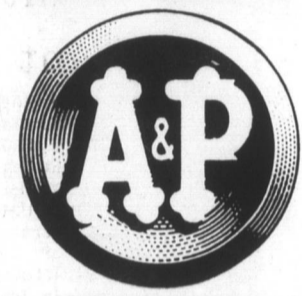

SALISBURY — Attorney Henry E. Frye, representative from the 26th N. C. District to the House of Representatives of the North Carolina General Assembly, will be the Founder's Day Convocation speaker at Livingstone College on Thursday, February 10, as the college observes the 118th birthday anniversary of its founder and first president, the late Dr. Joseph Charles Price.

The announcement was made today by Dr. F. George Shipman, president of the college. He noted that the Convocation will take place at 2:30 p.m. and will be preceded by a 10:30 a.m. memorial assembly to be conducted by students. The Annual Procession to the founder's mausoleum on the campus will follow the morning assembly.

Open House will be observed in all campus buildings from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. on that date. Dr. Shipman, stated, adding that special emphasis will be on visitations to the new Student Health Center and the new Men's Dormitory, both of which have just been completed and furnished at a cost of around one million dollars.

A special service will be held in the evening at 7 p.m. in the chapel of Old Hood Building by Dr. Andrew Wesley Mapp of Jersey City, N. Y., who will be the visiting minister for Religious Emphasis Week which will be observed on the campus what is the definition of a private brand?

To some people, it is a retailer's own brand created with selling price first in importance and quality second.

To us at A&P, it's the opposite.

Quality comes first. Value...the best for the least is the rule for our private brands.

If this wasn't true, how foolish we'd be to invest as we have, literally millions of dollars in processing plants and testing laboratories.

If all we wanted were products we could sell cheaply without quality control, anybody could produce them for us.

The idea of quality private brands isn't new at A&P. As a matter of fact, it's one of our oldest policies—and by golly, we're proud of it.

Are A&P Private Brands a good reason for shopping A&P? They're one of many.

If It's "Super-Right" It's Sure To Be Delicious!
