

the reason some parents no longer LEAD their children in the RIGHT DIRECTION is because the parents aren't going that way themselves.

Work is the YEAST that raises the Dough.
Don't let yesterday use up too much of today.

The Carolina Times

THE TRUTH UNBRIDLED

GOOD READING IN THIS ISSUE

YOUR MIND By William Thorpe
CHEYENNE SCOUT CORNER By E. L. Kearney
DURHAM SOCIAL NOTES By Mrs. Symmer Daye
WRITERS FORUM By George B. Russ
PREGNANCY PLANNING & HEALTH By G. Riggsbee

THEY'RE OUT TO KILL SCHOOL INTEGRATION

Politicians Hoping To Ride To Re-Election On Anti-Busing

School desegregation is under attack in many parts of Congress.

The latest move to use the furor over busing as a means of blocking further integration of the public schools is now underway in the House Education and Labor Committee. There, members are considering a bill the President wants. Under the guise of setting "guidelines" for courts and federal agencies to follow in school desegregation cases, the bill, among other things, would virtually foreclose busing to desegregate kids in the first six grades; put new restrictions on the remedies courts can order; and make it possible to reopen school cases already decided.

Meanwhile, the House rules Committee has a "stop integration" program of its own. The Committee's chairman, Rep. William Colmer (D., Miss.) has already announced that when his committee meets again, he will try and take away from the House Judiciary Committee another of the President's bills - one that would set a moratorium on further busing until Congress enacts desegregation guidelines. Colmer may even try to take the Constitutional amendment on busing away from Judiciary.

The name of this game is Politicking, 1972. President Nixon took the lead by making it abundantly clear that he intends to use busing as a major campaign issue. The others are following him. Both Gambrell and Griffin are up for reelection this year. And so is every member of the House. You can expect more of appearances before the House Labor and Education Committee. National, state and local leaders of the Association testified before the committee bluntly branding as anti-Negro proposals to curb busing as a means of achieving school desegregation. Opening the NAACP attack was Clarence Mitchell, director of the Association's Washington Bureau, who, in testimony before the Committee on July 25, charged that support of the bill was "close to the brink of inciting racial hatred." He further told the committee: "As a person who was present at a lynching in 1933, I see no difference between the mood of the mob

What You Must Do
Wire. Write. To members of the House Education and Labor Committee, first, but to House and Senate members after that. Tell them one thing: to vote against all anti-busing bills and all anti-busing amendments. Get your friends to write. Get your organizations to issue resolutions to Congress. Unless we act and act at once, unless we bury them under an avalanche of mail, we can lose on this issue. And the damage done will be to more than school desegregation; these political maneuvers threaten to undermine the civil rights progress of the past two decades. So please get busy.

In a vigorous effort to prevent enactment of anti-busing legislation by the Congress, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has conducted a sustained attack upon the pending bill, H. R. 13915, in a series of appearances before the House Labor and Education Committee. National, state and local leaders of the Association testified before the committee bluntly branding as anti-Negro proposals to curb busing as a means of achieving school desegregation. Opening the NAACP attack was Clarence Mitchell, director of the Association's Washington Bureau, who, in testimony before the Committee on July 25, charged that support of the bill was "close to the brink of inciting racial hatred." He further told the committee: "As a person who was present at a lynching in 1933, I see no difference between the mood of the mob

One Million To Aid Blacks In Health

In launching a major effort to increase the number of Blacks in the health professions, the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) awarded ten grants totaling more than $1 million to schools and organizations in eight States.

Special Health Career Opportunity grants were awarded to:

- University of Alabama in Birmingham, $102,524.
- University of California at San Diego, $46,808.
- Xavier University of Louisiana, New Orleans, $106,048.
- University of Maryland, Baltimore, $59,425.
- Mississippi Valley State College, Itta Bena, $292,959.
- Rutgers, The State University, New Brunswick, New Jersey, $117,483.
- Temple University Health Sciences Center, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, $107,255.
- University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, $15,768.
- Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee, $325,020. (two grants)

Meharry received a $220,229 grant to support its Biomedical Sciences and Dental Admissions Program. The Biomedical Sciences program, for college students interested in health careers, strives to increase the number of minority students enrolled in health professions schools and to improve their performance in classes. The dental program provides supplemental training

Continued on page 9A

DETROIT — Jean and Melvin McNair along with their two children Ayona (L), 1, and Yahari, 2, were identified by the FBI as members of the "family" that hijacked a Delta

Airlines jetliner 8/1 to Algeria with $1 million in ransom. The McNair family along with two escapees from a New Jersey State Prison and another woman have been charged in Miami with armed hijacking. At present there still is no word from Algeria on the five's fate or of the ransom money.

DETROIT — The FBI identified two of the hijackers of a Delta Airlines jet to Algeria with $1 million in ransom as escapees from a prison in New Jersey. An FBI spokesman identified one of the alleged hijackers as George Edward Wright (left), 22, who escaped from a Leesburg, N. J. prison in 1970. The other alleged hijacker identified was George Brown (right), 44, who escaped from the same prison.

Whitney Young Nominations Now Open

Nominations for the New York Urban League's Second Annual Whitney M. Young, Jr. National Memorial Award are now open to the general public throughout the nation, according to an announcement by Lemuel M. Wells, director of Public Affairs for the League.

The award will be presented during the halftime of the second Annual Whitney M. Young, Jr. Memorial Football Classic, featuring Gambling College of Louisiana and Morgan State College of Baltimore, Maryland, on September 9,

Lawyers Urged To Expand Role By Hud

Black Lawyers not involved in housing and land development law are missing unlimited opportunities to help their communities as well as their own careers, a Department of Housing and Urban Development official said in Miami Beach, Fla., this week.

Addressing members of the National Bar Association (NBA) attending their annual convention in that city's Fontainebleau Hotel, HUD General Assistant Secretary Samuel C. Jackson noted that the Administration's efforts have substantially increased the involvement of black attorneys in

Continued on page 9A

All Baptist Meet To Bring 3,000 To Raleigh

The 106th year old General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, Inc., will assemble all of the auxiliary bodies of the convention in all Baptist Assembly August 14-18, in the capital city.

The convention is headed by Dr. C.R. Edwards of Fayetteville and Dr. O.L. Sherrill, Executive Secretary.

The Woman's Auxiliary is headed by Mrs. Vera M. Slade of Ahoskie and Mrs. M.A. Horne, Executive Secretary. The other auxiliaries of the convention are: Sunday-School, J.W. Martin, President; Baptist Training Union, Clifton Stone, President; Laymen League, Frank Marshall, President; and ushers' Arthru Williams, President.

Approximately 3,000 delegates will come to Raleigh and center their attention for the entire week around the theme: "A United Witness for A Confused World." The opening assembly will begin Monday evening, August 14 in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium with music furnished by the combined choirs of Raleigh.

The feature address of this session will be given by Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, President Emeritus of Morehouse College. Dr. Mays is one of the most respected educators, preachers and authors in America and the world. Other feature sermons and addresses will be delivered by Dr. O.B. Burson. A Former North Carolina pastor and currently the pastor

Rev. Sherrill

Dr. Edwards

Continued on page 9A

Black Americans Asked To Have Faith In ARBC

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Roy L. Brooks, 22, of Storrs, Connecticut, a Member of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission (ARBC) testified before a Senate subcommittee reviewing the status of Bicentennial planning this week on behalf of the five Black members of the Commission. Brooks was recently sworn in by President Nixon as one of eight new members of the Commission of whom three were Black, bringing Black representation to 10% of the total Commission membership.

Brooks stated in response to criticism of lack of "meaningful employment" of Blacks on the ARBC staff that "This is a problem which can only be dealt with effectively by the Black Commission Members." Said Brooks, "Quite frankly, I feel that it is far more important that we hire a person whose thinking is compatible with the thinking of Black people in general rather than hiring a Black face."

In noting that his comments covered the period since his active participation on the Commission, Brooks said that he sincerely felt that the Commission was now making powerful attempts to become a more active and more responsive body, but that the most serious problem was a lack of sufficient funds. He went on to contend that serious criticisms directed against the ARBC are unfounded with respect to the original legislation and are based upon misinformation and/or incomplete information, particularly in areas where the ARBC had insufficient funds to carry out planned programs.

He cited Congressman Fred Schwengel (R. Iowa) who has criticized the ARBC for "neglecting the historical aspect of the Bicentennial" and noted that in his remarks to Congress on June 19, Schwengel stated the aims of the Bicentennial celebration to be to "cultivate, recall and promote the history of this great country," and further that the

Continued on page 9A

Thalhimer's To Build New Store At Northgate

Announcement was made here Tuesday that the formal lease has been signed for a new and greatly enlarged Thalhimer's store at Northgate Shopping Center. The joint announcement was made by W. Kenan Rand Jr., president of Northgate Shopping Center, Inc., and Charles Thalhimer, executive vice president of Thalhimer's.

Thalhimer said that the new 57,000 square foot, one-level store, replacing an existing 20,000 square foot unit in the center, will open in August 1973.

He explained that his firm's confidence and enthusiasm for the new Thalhimer's Northgate store is based on the fact that the existing Northgate unit has achieved the highest dollar per square foot production of any unit in the cooperation and continues to grow faster than the average store. In addition, Northgate Shopping Center is being expanded greatly and improved by the addition of the major new Sears store for Durham which will anchor the center on the West, the opposite end of the proposed new mall from the Thalhimer unit on the East.

Increased parking will be provided by both the expanded acreage of the center, as

Continued on page 9A

Jackson Co-ed Vies For Miss Black America Crown

Jackson, Miss. — Beautiful and vivacious Carolyn Elaine Coleman has her mind set on sunny California these days, and with good reason. August 25 marks the opening of the Miss Black America Beauty Pageant to be held at the Hollywood Paladium and Carolyn is a contender for this crown.

Having won the title of Miss Black Mississippi earlier this year, Carolyn is anxiously looking forward to the Miss Black America Pageant. The 5'5 1/2", brown-eyed beauty is a native of West Point, Mississippi and a Junior English Literature major at Jackson State College. Carolyn is the youngest of three daughters born to Mr. & Mrs. John Milton Coleman of West Point.

She attended South Side and North Side Elementary Schools and Fifth Street Junior-Senior High School. In 1970, Carolyn graduated with honors from West Point High School.

Learning of the Miss Black Mississippi Pageant while studying at Jackson State College, Carolyn became inspired by other contestants to enter the Pageant. (Miss Black Mississippi '70, Montie Davis and Miss Black Mississippi '71, Stella Davidson were also students at Jackson State College). However, beauty pageants are not unfamiliar to the 18-year old co-ed. In 1968, Carolyn was selected first alternate in the Miss Elks Pageant.

After graduating from Jackson State College, Carolyn anticipates a career in television announcing. She would also like to be a free lance writer. States Carolyn, "My total objective is to acquire a job that is developing-one that constantly involves me with people."

Continued on page 9A

LEFT TO RIGHT are Charles Thalhimer, executive vice president of Thalhimer's Stores; W. Kenan Rand, Jr., President, and Hubert H. Rand, executive vice president of Northgate Shopping Center, Inc., displaying the artist's rendering for the new 57,000 sq. ft., Thalhimer's expected to open at Northgate in late summer of 1973.

MAJOR GENERAL DANIEL (Chapple) James, Jr., USAF, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs), receives the stars of his new rank from his son, Air Force Captain Daniel James, III (left), and wife Dorothy

(right). Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird assists Mrs. James during the Pentagon ceremony last week.