

DAILY LIVING

WRONG IMPRESSIONS CAN BE FORMED TOO QUICKLY

By WILLIAM THORPE

Have you ever thought about how easy it is to get the wrong impression of other people and to carry them throughout life unless some experience comes along to throw new light on things and cause us to realize our mistake? Sometimes the realization comes too late for us to make atonement, as some of those concerned have left this life. All we can do is to only hope that the lesson taught us has borne fruit in our relations with others.

Yes, wrong impressions can be formed about our loved ones as well as friends and strangers. At times, the impressions we hold of them may not represent what they are at all. It probably would be wise to school ourselves to be open minded and tolerant and to give to others the benefit of the doubt when things happen that might be disturbing and which we do not, at the moment understand.

It's bad enough not to be able to adapt ourselves to others just because their physical appearance antagonizes or repels us for no reason. But when we permit ourselves to get mentally and emotionally disturbed because of the imagined wrong attitude of love ones or friends toward us, this can probably prove even more damaging and regrettable.

Some of us probably have heard a person say: "He or she acts alright, but I just don't like the way he or she looks!" That's one example of getting the wrong impression of a person, and not realizing that the same person can turn out to be one of the best friends he has ever had.

In my opinion, never judge other people only by their looks and hold a wrong impression of them, wherein it may cause us to react too quickly, make snap judgment concerning them, and say things which can hurt instead of aiding the situation, because one of the real and lasting values of this life is the love and understanding of our fellowman.

Finally, looking back on my adventurous life, I am so thankful that I was spared, early in my youth, from developing and carrying a wrong mental image of people just because they looked different and acted differently from what my environment and experience had caused me to picture.

First Hercules Radial Belted Tire Sale Ever! ... At Rigsbee Tire Sales!

ARE THE ADVANTAGE OF RADIAL-PLY CONSTRUCTION RIGHT FOR YOUR KIND OF DRIVING?

Radial-ply construction for tires was known in the 'gay '90s' but it had to wait until 1950 to become a practical construction for passenger cars; and it was not until 1965 that the first radial tire suitable for about any American car was introduced to the public. As a concerned tire buyer, you may ask: "What are the advantages of radial tires?"

Here's what one leading tire executive, whose company makes all types of tires, told a group of professionals about radial tires. "They flex more softly, roll more easily, and grip the road better than other tires. And, most important, they give the longest wear life and the most fuel economy of any type of tire. They also provide better load-carrying capacity, improved traction, and the highest brake resistance of all passenger car constructions in general use today."

A major testing organization recently showed that radials were among the least expensive tire to drive per 10,000 miles.

Are the advantages of radials right for you? Perhaps! If your car's suspension is suited for radial use; if you do a lot of highspeed free way driving; if you want economy for your tire dollar; and if you don't mind the larger initial investment for radials. (Radials should be mounted only in sets of four.)

If you are a particular type of driver, radials are possibly the best tire buy for you. With radials you will get all the advantages of better performance and save money over the long run.
