All You Need To Know About Ways To Boost Return

A new firm specializing in foreign finance counseling has opened offices in Wichita.

The firm, International Monetary Advisors, is headquartered in the Union National building.

Jimmie E. Grey, managing partner, said the firm will deal exclusively in depository accounts, equities and joint ventures, industrial development, government securities, real estate investments and commercial financing outside the United States.

It was formed, Grey added, to provide corporations, financial institutions, and individuals the opportunity to secure significantly higher rates of return on their investments than are available in the United States.

"IMA will act in an advisory capacity on the variety of investments which are available, their rates of return, and the security of funds which are invested," Grey said.

Application is currently being made with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission for registration under provisions of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

Grey is well known in the Wichita business and legal community. A graduate of the University of Kansas with a degree in economics, he holds a Bachelor of Law Degree from the University of Kansas Law School.

He was previously corporate counsel for Jack P. DeBoer Associates, the Coleman Company, and in private practice.

THE EMPEROR'S CHOICE

If fragrance is important in your flower garden, the Mignonne should be on your list of flowers to grow from this year.

Mignonne, a sweet-scented annual flower, has a romantic history few other flowers can match.

The famous French Emperor, Napoleon, saw the plant growing along the banks of the Nile during his attempted conquest of Egypt. He was fascinated by its delicious fragrance, and collected some seeds to send to his Empress, Josephine.

She was an avid gardener and grew the new plant under her bedroom window in a window box. She loved its unusually strong fragrance so much that she made it fashionable throughout France to grow the new plant, and soon it was made popular throughout the world.

Mignonne is not a display flower, but its distinctive fragrance is good enough reason to grow it. Plants grow 12 to 18 inches high, and although it prefers full sun, it will tolerate a little shade.

Sow seeds directly into the garden after danger of frost, and plant in patches among non-fragrant annuals, in a windowbox, or near a doorway. Bring the fragrance into the house by cutting bunches and arranging in a bowl. They last about a week and mix well with more colorful annuals such as marigolds and zinnias.

Green Thumb Tips

Want a quick, temporary hedge in your garden? Kochia, or burning bush, is a fast-growing foliage plant resembling an ornamental evergreen. But the remarkable advantage is that it can be easily grown from seed to form a lovely hedge three feet tall in a fall, it turns red, and is killed by frost, but while it lasts, kochia makes a beautiful background for flowering annuals.

Young cactus plants regularly sell for a dollar each, but did you know that they are fun and easy-to-grow from seed, and a 50¢ packet will grow dozens of different kinds? Cactus like a sandy starting soil, and a little patience, since the seed is sometimes slow to germinate, but it's a fascinating sight to observe the baby cactus sprout perfectly formed from those inexpensive seeds.

Do you know why seedsmen are breeding all-female cucumbers? Because on a normal cucumber plant only half the flowers are females capable of producing fruit. On an all-female cucumber plant all the flowers can yield fruit. It just needs one normal cucumber plant to be grown near the all-female "parent" for pollination of the all-female flowers.

If you have space in your garden, then seedless watermelons are worth a try. They're a little more trouble to grow than regular watermelons, but well worth it, and once you've been successful you'll never want to try any other kind. The seed needs starting indoors in a temperature of 70° and a normal watermelon must be grown nearby to ensure pollination.
