THEME: SCOUTING TODAY IS MORE THAN YOU THINK

RALEIGH — A cast of 10,000 Boys Scouts, Cub Scouts and Explorers will dramatize "Scouting today is more than you think" at the biennial Oconeechee Council Scout-O-Rama scheduled for the North Carolina State Fairgrounds here on Saturday, April 18.

The boys participating will represent over 900 Scouting units from 12-country area. Attendance is expected to be over 40,000.

This year's Scout-O-Rama is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Raleigh. Mr. Vernon B. Mountcastle is the General Chairman of the event. Tickets are being sold by Scouts in every neighborhood of the 12-county Oconeechee Council area including Chatham, Cumberland, Durham, Franklin, Granville, Harnett, Lee, Moore, Orange, Vance, Wake and Warren.

This is the 15th such Scouting Exposition held by the Oconeechee Council. Scouting Officials say each event has been highly successful. Chairman Vernon Mountcastle says, "It is Scouting's best foot forward, and the public has reacted enthusiastically."

Demonstrations and exhibits the usual spectator thrills. Leathercraft exhibits, electronics, hobbies, first aid, physical fitness and other activities will be seen in the arena exhibit booths.

"Scouting is a growing, dynamic force in the lives of young boys, Chairman Vernon Mountcastle said, "And the Scout-O-Rama gives us the opportunity to show how the Boypower of today will be tomorrow's Manpower."

Souped-Up Ossobuco Is Super Italian Stew

CLASSIC ITALIAN OSSOBUCO is quick and easy when you use canned minestrone as a starter. Veal shins are the inexpensive meat that makes this one-dish meal. For a cool, fresh taste, serve with a colorful tomato aspic.

NEW YORK (ED)—Ossobuco, made with meaty, inexpensive veal shins, is an Italian delicacy often considered too time-consuming for busy American homemakers to prepare. But it needn't be. Not if a good, rich canned minestrone is used as a base.

The soup replaces chopping the traditional onion, carrot, celery and garlic mixture and preparing the brown veal stock, and turns the dish into a delicious, flavorful Italian stew that practically cooks itself. A tossed green salad and some Italian bread will be plenty to complete the menu, but if you want to add a surprise, prepare a tomato aspic in advance and serve it with the Ossobuco. You'll have a veritable Italian feast!

SOUPED-UP OSSOBUCO
 1/2 cup olive oil
 6 veal shins, 4 inches long and well covered with meat flour
 salt and pepper to taste
 1 bay leaf
 1/2 cup white wine (optional)

2 20-oz. cans Progresso Minestrone (1 lb. 4 oz.)
 1 clove garlic, crushed
 1 tsp. grated orange rind (no white part)
 1 tsp. grated lemon rind (no white part)
 Heat olive oil in casserole over fairly high heat, until golden. Dust the shins with flour, and brown them on all sides in the oil. Season with salt, pepper and basil, add the bay leaf and the wine, and cook until liquid has evaporated. (The flavor will be absorbed by the meat.) Place the veal bones upright in the casserole, so that their marrow will not fall out. Add the minestrone, bring to a boil, reduce the heat and simmer for one hour. About 5 minutes before the meat is done, add the garlic, grated orange and lemon peel and raise the heat to reduce the liquid slightly. Serves 6.
