"REFLECTIONS"
FROM NCCU
BY
MARY BOHANON

To me, poetry is feeling, a universal characteristic of all animals. When we begin to restrict feelings to a people of particular color, race or creed, we verge on logic tight compartments of reason which may lead to an obsession whose potential is insanity. All ethnic groups are made up of individualities doing that which is most applicable to their own potential. My code is to place all people in a single group, that group being humanity itself, with all the frailties and strengths thereof. My prayers are always "Let me not pretend to judge the actions of others, rather let me make all efforts to understand them."

The following poems are opinions, not judgements. Please read them as such. Many people have been of great encouragement to me, in fact, so many, that to mention them would be to embarrass them. Let me thank every one of you—son and daughters of the Great Image.

Mary Bohanon

MY SON
Cherubs are in heaven, I have one beside me. His soft plumpish hands Cup my face as I lay him close, Then slowly closing his eyes, Spreads his lips to a relaxing high, Tilts the corners to the sweetest smile, My baby is going to sleep. One day, breaking into a pixie grin, A tiny tooth sitting like a pearl! He cooed, went on grinning. Now, he's looking for adventure, Determined on riskier Rather than crawling on fours: Grasping a chair's leg, he stands, Hesitates. In a moment a shaky Right foot lifts forward, gripping The floor in a wobble. The left foot Bolts from behind settling beside The other! Delightment collapses As he tumbles with a thud, wonderment. No whimper. Reaching his heaven— He seems to whisper, "Tomorrow I will try."
—Linda McGloin

EMPTY MEMORIES

She drifts, Descending deep into her reservoir Of empty memories To wander through wastelands of past vanity. Her life was fruitless, futile. Her veined hands Cupped her nodding head As her thoughts of the past Faded into dreams of what could have been.

WILLIE MEBANE

$750 Broadcast Scholarship Given UNC Jr.

CHAPEL HILL—Willie Mebane, Jr. of Durham a junior at the University of North Carolina is the winner of the $750 Southern Broadcasting Scholarship for study in the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures at UNC.

A dean's list student, Mebane is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie H. Mebane of 704 Philmont St. He is the newly elected president of the Black Student Movement on the campus, an office he will hold for the 1973-74 academic year. In the fall, Mebane also will be a resident advisor in a residence hall.

His other activities have included membership on the freshman soccer team, broadcaster for WCAR campus radio station and production assistant at WUNC-TV. He plans a career as a motion picture or television producer-director. The Southern Broadcasting Scholarship is presented annually to a UNC student majoring in radio, television or motion pictures. The award by the High Point company is based on academic achievement and evidence of interest in the field of broadcasting.

Americans eat more than one fifth of their annual milk supply as butter, and the long downward-trend of butter use in this country has leveled off.
