Burton Elementary School Holds Awards Day

Scholarship, attendance, art, physical fitness and other meritorious services by teachers and students received special recognition at the annual Awards Day ceremonies held May 24, at Burton Elementary School. The Reverend W. C. Turner of Duke University, also assistant pastor of St. Joseph's AME Church, was the speaker for this occasion, spoke on the subject "The Meaning of Award". Scripture was by Sheila Griffin, prayer was given by Waunda Ceres, music by the fifth graders. Michael Hayes won the school's highest award, "The Louise E. Burton Award". Warren Williams and Acquilla Rogers won "The E. W. Midgette Award" for being the most gentlemanly and lady-like. The safety and pride patrols was also recognized. Special helper in teacher-trainee, William Walker, received loud claps for services rendered to the Burton School. Physical Fitness Awards were given by W. J. Hayes, City Recreation Department. Approximately 84 sixth graders were transferred to junior high school. Super-special awards were given to Mrs. Jessie M. Kelly and Muriel Wong for Art Exhibit judged by top state artist. The Meritorious Award was given to Mrs. E. B. Pratt for 41 years teaching services with over twenty years spent at Burton School. She received a standing ovation and was wished a very happy and enjoyable retirement by the principal, faculty and former teacher, Annie Dunigan. The "Elizabeth B. Pratt School Patrol Award" was established at this time, for outstanding safety patrols. "The J. C. Scarborough, Sr. Award", named for one of the Durham pioneer's, was also established this year. It was given to Micheal Gay and Andrea Reams for Humane and outstanding services rendered while working as safety patrols. The school year closed out with a film shown on Ecology by Miss Wong's fifth grade class. The class was trying to determine mutual relations, through fear over the summer months. Mr. Midgett gave remarks for the closing and wishing each one a very pleasant and happy vacation.
