Allied Arts Summer Slate Is Announced

Allied Arts will offer its largest summer schedule ever this year, it was announced by the Arts Council's Education Committee.

Eleven faculty members will instruct classes in art, music, dance, crafts, and photography. In conjunction with these classes, two exhibits will be shown in the gallery of the Allied Art Center. Featured in the opening summer show will be photographs by Caroline Vaughn, noted local photographer. Over thirty-five photographs are included in the exhibit which will be on display through July 15. A special touring exhibit will be featured in August, sponsored by North Carolina National Bank. This exhibit of Botanical Prints will be seen in major cities across North Carolina.

The educational schedule will offer daytime courses as well as evening courses with particular emphasis on activities for children. These classes include general art instruction with an introduction to various media. A special new course in sculpture for ages 8 to 12 will be taught by staff instructor Beth Baylin. Adult classes include oil painting and water color, taught by Lucille Cole

"FASHION OF FLOWERS" was a very beautiful yet delicate display of spring and summer fashions for the lady with a view. It was recently presented at a Luncheon by Women's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of Eastern Pennsylvania. The show featured fashions for every

Wilkins, Davis of Washington, D. C. (crutches and all) President of the Auxiliary; Ms. W. Hall, winner of the Perk; Violet B. Johnson, Proctor representative from Mark Hyman Associates, and Ms. George J. Amonitti, president of the local auxiliary.

intermediate students experience in composition and darkroom work. Diane Neumaier whose work has been seen in New York at Exposure Gallery will instruct these photography classes.

For the first time, complete class schedules in both ballet and modern dance are being offered. Laura Walker formerly with the Dallas Civic Ballet and the Oklahoma City Ballet will instruct the ballet classes which are designed to introduce new students to the basic aspects of ballet and to give continuing students an opportunity for intense study. Betsy Rowland, former dancer and choreographer for the Agnew Scott Dance Group, has joined the Allied Arts staff as instructor of modern dance. Her evening courses will give beginners, intermediate and advanced students an opportunity to explore the elements of dance such as rhythm, space, and form. Registration for all Allied Arts classes begins Monday, June 11 and runs through Friday, June 15.
