OVER $10 MILLION IN GRANTS GO SCHOOLS FOR LIBRARY MATERIALS

A total of $10,031,128 in grants to 2,044 of the Nation's higher education institutions to acquire library materials was announced today by HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

An additional $74,318 in grants went to 17 public and non-profit library institutions whose primary function is to provide colleges and universities with library and information services on a regular, cooperative basis.

Eligible institutions each received a $5,000 grant except for those that estimated library resource expenditures of less than that amount during Fiscal Year 1973.

The grants were awarded under Title II-A of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended, for the improvement of services to college and university libraries. No matching funds are required.

Institutions of higher education receiving grants offer at least one full year or more of postsecondary education. Recipients are located in every State, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

The awards are used by higher education and library institutions for the acquisition of materials such as books, periodicals, documents, other printed and published materials, magnetic tapes, phonograph records, and audiovisual materials.

Francis Galton, an Englishman, established the importance of fingerprints for identification purposes.

Are You A Good Shopper?

Self evaluation has always been a Plus Factor towards self-improvement. Kraft Foods' Home Economist, calling on 48 years of experience is serving the consumer, have found this test effective in evaluating one's shopping skills.

Do you prepare a shopping list for weekly food purchases? Do you check specials advertised by different retailers, and plan your shopping trip to take advantage of these? Do you look for unadvertised specials while shopping? Do you store your food at home quickly after purchase? Are you sure of what the proper refrigerator temperature should be? Do you read labels as you purchase food products? Are you familiar with the Basic Four Food Program publicized by the United States Department of Agriculture? Do you buy cuts of meat or poultry with a plan to use leftovers in following meals, particularly when a special price is offered? If you've answered yes to all nine questions, you could write a book; six to eight, you've made a good start, but have room for improvement. Four to five yes answers suggest that you need to sharpen your skills, and one to three indicate you have a great deal to learn about the skills of supermarket shopping.

Retirement Announced At Lincoln High School

CHAPEL HILL — The alumni, teachers and friends of Lincoln High School paid tribute Saturday evening, June 30, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McDougle, veteran educators, who announced their retirement at the close of the past school year. It was a means of saying "thank you" to the McDougles for their tremendous influence, devotion to duty and the contribution you have made to the educational aspirations and achievements of the students in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. McDougle, with combined service in the schools of this community of over fifty years, have worked in both teaching and administrative positions.

The program, held at Culbreth Junior High School, was entitled "This Is Your Night", and followed the format of the popular television show, "This Is Your Life."

Among relatives who shared in the occasion were; the son and daughter of the McDougles, Mrs. Margaret Charlene McDougle Smith and her daughter, Tonya, of Syracuse, New York and Charles Alfred McDougle of N. C. A&T State University, Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perry, Winston-Salem (Mrs. Perry is Mrs. McDougle's sister); Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McDougle, their son and daughter-in-law, of Passaic, New Jersey (brothers of Mr. McDougle).

Prince Taylor, Lincoln's golden-voice alumnus, was both master of ceremonies and soloist. He was also a member of the sponsoring committee of which Mrs. Alice Battle was chairman, R. D. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Lillie Lee Atwater, secretary; Robert Edwards, program chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Farrington, fund-raising co-chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. James Riggsbee, W. D. Peerman, Mrs. C. H. Barnes, Mrs. Barbara Booth, Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Davis, refreshments; Mrs. Betty King and Mrs. James Baldwin.

The McDougles were presented flowers with streamers in the old Lincoln High colors, an all-expense paid holiday trip to Freeport in the Bahamas and a $400 check for incidental expenses. It is reported that they will make the trip during the last week in August.

Alumni and former co-workers came from various places in the state and nation. Mayor Howard Lee spoke in tribute from the community-at-large. Dr. Robert C. Hanes, superintendent of Chapel Hill-Carrboro Schools, represented five former superintendents with whom the McDougles had worked, as well as the present school staff.

Rev. J. R. Manley, pastor of First Baptist Church where the honorees are members, represented the church. Members of the School Board present were: Mrs. Mary Scroggs, Chairman and her husband; Edwin Caldwell (Lincoln alumnus) and his wife; Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Silvers, Dr. and Mrs. Sam Holton, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Weatherly, Dr. and Mrs. Ken Howard, Attorney and Mrs. Emory B. Denny (Mrs. Denny is the school board member).
