

TO HEAD WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. OFFICE

BALDWIN

Guardsmark Names First Black Manager

Owen Baldwin, 43-year-old black man, has been named manager of the White Plains, N.Y. branch office of Guardsmark, Inc., according to an announcement by Ira A. Lipman, president of the Memphis-based, nation-wide security service company.

Lipman said Baldwin may be the first Negro named as head of a major office by any national security service company.

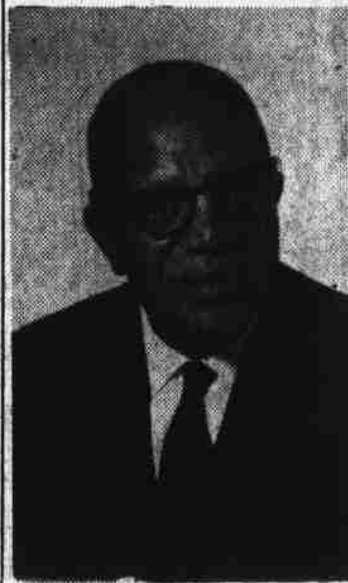

Baldwin, of 19 Cummings Avenue, White Plains, is a native of Durham. He succeeds Joseph Huben, who was transferred to Guardsmark's New York City office.

A veteran of 11 years of Army service, including a tour in Korea during the war with North Korea, Baldwin joined Guardsmark in 1971 as a guard. He rose through the ranks to his current position.

He attended Morgan State College in Baltimore, where he played both football and baseball. He is the first black member of the Valhalla, N.Y. Rotary Club.

Baldwin's mother, Mrs. Nell Baldwin Rice, was the first black principal of a public school in Westchester County. She currently is principal of the Martin Luther King Elementary School in Yonkers.

He is the father of four daughters. One is attending Yale University as a pre-law student and a second is attending Duke University's School of Nursing. Both on four year scholarships. An older daughter is married and the youngest is attending high school in White Plains.

HAWLEY

G. C. Hawley Retiring As School Head

G. C. Hawley, who has been associated with North Carolina public schools for 37 1/2 years, and who is to retire July 1 as principal of Carver Elementary School, Mount Olive, was honored at a dinner recently at Southern Belle Restaurant in Mount Olive.

Prior to becoming principal of Carver at the time of consolidation of two schools to form Carver and Southern Wayne Senior High, Hawley was principal of Creedmoor elementary school. During his years at Creedmoor, the elementary school grew from a three-teacher elementary school with an enrollment of 100 to a school with a faculty of 44 and an enrollment of 1400. In recognition of this achievement, the name was changed to G. C. Hawley High to honor the principal for his faithful work and accomplishments.

FOUR DEGREES

Hawley received the bachelor of arts degree and also the degree of bachelor of sacred theology both from Lincoln University, Penn., and the master of arts degree from North Carolina Central University, the master of education degree and advanced principal's certificate, both from the University of Pittsburgh.

He has maintained homes in both Oxford and Mount Olive for the past 12 years. He has successfully co-mingled teaching and preaching and school administration. He is assistant pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, chairman of the board of trustees of that church and also chairman of the board of trustees of Oxford Community Center. He is also secretary of the Town of Mr. Olive Planning Commission, where he is also chairman of the Human Relations Council and is past master of Blooming Star Lodge No. 53. He is a member of the board of trustees of Granville Hospital, a member of the local, state and

DCC Members Asked to Aid in Freeze Survey

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has announced the creation of the Price Freeze Impact Exchange which will receive and transmit price freeze data on an hourly basis to the Cost of Living Council.

The purpose of the Exchange will be to provide pertinent information which will hopefully counteract distortions recently created in the economy which are adversely affecting businesses and consumers. These distortions in the economy have occurred because of the current price freeze.

The Price Freeze Impact Data Exchange will provide data on production and marketing in both industry and agriculture and will indicate projected shortages in certain goods and services caused by the price freeze.

In a letter to the membership of the Greater Durham Chamber of Commerce, President J. B. Brame has asked the assistance of the organization in supplying the Exchange with information pertaining to the individual member firm. Included with the letter is a survey sheet which the membership is asked to fill out and send to the Price Freeze Impact Data Exchange, 1615 H. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20006.

U. S. Chamber officials believe that with enough business input from across the country, the data, resulting from this input and provided by the Exchange, will provide guidelines to help prevent potential economic problems.

include Milprint in Milwaukee and Nicolet Paper Co. in DePere. Mrs. Young is the widow of the former civil rights leader who served as Executive Director of the National Urban League until his death in 1971.

TV to be Used to Help Reduce Educational Disadvantages

A major effort that will use television to help reduce the educational disadvantages confronting minority groups in the United States was announced recently by the U. S. Office of Education.

Under the new television programming authority provided in the Emergency School Aid Act (1972) five grants totaling more than $11.3 million have been awarded non-profit groups to produce television series and spot announcements for national viewing. Aimed at elementary and secondary school pupils, the productions will focus on such areas as bilingual-bicultural education, mathematics, "lifelong" skills, and reducing interracial tensions among students.

The five projects are: Educational Development Center, Inc., Newton, Mass., received $4,023,037 to develop 52 half-hour programs designed to encourage an interest in mathematics among elementary school children. To enliven a subject many children find dull, the series will draw upon illustrations from science, the arts, technology, and nature to show how the abstract principles and numbers that comprise the world of mathematics can be applied to a child's real-life needs and experiences. As part of the production phase of this project, the series will be evaluated for effectiveness during use in several hundred classrooms in ten major cities.

Bicultural Children's Television, Inc., Oakland, Calif., received $3,500,000 to produce 65 half-hour programs which will evenly blend English and Spanish in programs exploring the cultural diversity of our Spanish-speaking population and the important role these groups have played in the development of America. The series - as yet unnamed - will seek to alleviate the school-readiness problems of Spanish-speaking children and at the same time broaden the cultural horizons of English-speaking children. Its home base will be a magic, make-believe village populated by changing groups of young school children and permanent characters such as Don Quixote, and old man who finds wonder and adventure everywhere, and Sancho Panza, his disbelieving companion. The village will serve as a door on the whole world and film sequences, animation, music, and all the other techniques in television's lexicon will be used to entertain as well as inform the viewing child. Information on the 65 shows and their goals will be widely disseminated to Spanish-speaking groups and to educators. Previous work in developing the show was funded by the Office of Education under a $2.4 million grant awarded under Title VII (Bilingual Education) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

HEW Official Quits In Protest Of Pres. Nixon Policies

WASHINGTON - (NBNS) - Dr. Arthur Lesser, the head of federal health services for crippled children and low-income expectant mothers, resigned his position last week to protest the Nixon Administration's plans to dismantle his agency and make the director "a figurehead."

Lesser charged that "this is the first step in the elimination of categorical programs. It is another disregard for the intent of Congress."

Congress provides funds for some health services by specific category, such as maternal and child health care. The

A Mandatory Warning on Sprays Sought

The Food and Drug Administration recently proposed a mandatory warning on all labels for feminine deodorant sprays.

To minimize any possible risk to users, the FDA would require the following language on each can: CAUTION-For external use only. Spray at least 8 inches from skin. Use sparingly and not more than once daily to avoid irritation. Do not use this product with a sanitary napkin. Do not apply to broken, irritated, or itching skin. Persistent or unusual odor may indicate the presence of a condition for which a physician should be consulted. If a rash, irritation, unusual vaginal discharge, or discomfort develops, discontinue use immediately and consult a physician.

FDA knows of no medicinal or hygienic benefits derived from these sprays. Under the proposed regulation the Agency will consider misbranded any feminine deodorant spray which uses the words "hygiene," "hygienic" or similar words implying medical usefulness.

FDA acted on the basis of adverse reaction reports from consumers and physicians. The reports complain of itching, burning, and blistering after use of feminine deodorant spray products. In some cases urethritis and cystitis have been reported after the first irritation or rash.

Although FDA judges that the reported reactions are not sufficient to justify removal of these products from the market, they are considered sufficient to warrant the proposed mandatory label warnings.

FDA's proposal appears in today's FEDERAL REGISTER. Sixty days will be allowed for industry and public comment. Comments should be addressed to the Hearing Clerk, DHEW, Room 6088, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

New Black Subscription Agency To Begin Operation August 1

NEWARK, N. J. - With the increasing advent of prolific Black Publishers, appears a subscription agency representing over 300 national and foreign Black Periodicals.

True Connection Subscription Agency, a subsidiary of the Black Press Clipping Bureau, Newark, N. J., will make its initial offering beginning August 1, to libraries in 15 countries around the world. Magazines, journals and newsletters listed in the 1973 Black Press Periodical Directory, (an annual feature of the Black Press Clipping Bureau) will be offered in one, two and three year subscriptions at discount.

Lawrence T. Jackson, Research Director at True Connection Subscription Agency, explains why libraries will be the first target of promotion; "We feel that much of the material found in many of the Black Periodicals is so relevant, so important, to developing honest dialogue between ourselves (Blacks) and others, that we must attempt to reach as many people as we can. The libraries offer this immediate exposure to millions of readers. We hope that this effort will lead to a broader circulation of Black Views'. Libraries in Africa (Senegal, Nigeria, Liberia, Ethiopia, Ghana); Asia (Korea, Japan, China, India, Philippines) and Europe (England, Ireland, France, Germany, Switzerland) will be among the first to receive offerings along with libraries across the United States.

Free information and a detailed brochure, also free of charge, may be obtained by writing or phoning: True Connection Subscription Agency, Div. Systems Catalog, 78 Merchant Street, Newark, New Jersey 07105, (201) 344-8545.

Select House Committee Asks For Wide Range Prison Reform

The House Select Crime Committee recommended a program of wide ranging prison reform last week. The Committee felt that reform would lower the high rate of "repeaters" in prisons around the country, and would help prevent prison insurrections.

"...The present system has created and nurtures even more serious threats to security and public safety caused by frustration and desperation that drives men to rebellion," the House panel said.

The Committee pointed out that American taxpayers spent $1.5 billion to keep 400,000 men and women in prison two years ago, and that 80% of the crimes committed were committed by former inmates. F.B.I. reports show that two thirds of all people released from prison are re-arrested within four years.

jobs after release from prison. "creation of a national corrections academy to improve the quality and training of prison guards and other personnel."

"general granting of 'all rights of citizenship including the right to compensation for work, to receive and send letters freely, express political views, be protected against summary punishment by state officials, and be free from legal disabilities upon release,' to all inmates.

Also proposed was the creation of a national correctional ombudsman to investigate complaints by federal prisoners, and to coordinate efforts of states ombudsmen also recommended by the panel to investigate state prisoner complaints.

United Farm Agency, Inc. maintains 500 sales offices in 35 states and twenty-three regional customer service centers. National headquarters are in Kansas City, Mo.

1973 Outstanding Young People of Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA - Two young black men were among the ten Outstanding Young People of Atlanta, announced recently. The young people were honored in a ceremony in Atlanta's Underground with Vice Mayor Maynard Jackson featured as the honored speaker.

Named were W. Levis Prather and Fred J. Thompson. Mr. Prather is a public relations assistant at The Coca-Cola

Company. A graduate of the Business Methods Institute of Chicago, he studied at DePaul, Northwestern and the University of Maryland. An active participant in numerous business-community related activities, Mr. Prather serves on the Board of Directors of Atlanta's National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Black Image Theater. In addition, he serves as special assistant to the president of the National Association of Market Developers and editor of NAMD's EMPHASIS Magazine. Also, he works with the Atlanta Opportunities Industrialization Center on special projects.

Mr. Thompson is a 32-year old native Atlantan and is presently Director of the Atlanta Urban League's Housing Center. During the past three years, his activities have been quite varied - including, but not limiting themselves to: professional and technical assistance to sponsors and developers of low-cost housing, rehabilitation, planning, zoning practices, code enforcement, residential and land-use patterns. He has also been active in administering budget and debt-management counseling to low-and moderate-income families who either are attempting to purchase homes, or those homeowners whose mortgage payments are delinquent or in default.

Cox Says Jury's Probe 'Far From Complete'

WASHINGTON - Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox Thursday said the grand jury's investigation into the bugging and coverup is far from complete.

Cox said it is premature for him or anyone to conclude who should be prosecuted in the case.

Cox issued his statement after CBS news reported that indictment of four former presidential associates had been urged by the original three-man prosecution team headed by Asst. U.S. Atty. Earl Silbert.

last Friday. Cox said Silbert's report as saying the grand jury's investigation is 85 per cent complete.

Cox said, "Although it will be my usual policy neither to confirm nor deny such speculation as the CBS report, the unusual circumstances make it appropriate to point out that the grand jury investigation is not nearly complete. It would be grossly premature for us or anyone else to reach even tentative conclusions as to who should or should not be prosecuted."

"The Black Family in White America" Topic of NUL Session

"The Black Family in White America" will be the subject of one of the several plenary sessions to be held as part of the National Urban League's 63rd Annual Conference in Washington, D. C., July 22-25, at the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Appearing on the panel, scheduled for Wednesday, July 25, will be Dr. Andrew Billingsley, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Howard University; Dr. Douglas G. Glasgow, Dean, School of Social Work, Howard University and Billy J. Tidwell, Senior Research Associate, Gary Income Maintenance Experiment.

The Black Family will be only one of a series of important issues affecting black communities to be discussed at the conference which officially gets underway on Sunday night, July 22, with a keynote address by Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., Executive Director of the National Urban League.

Other sessions will come to grips with such crucial issues as revenue sharing, cutbacks in federal programs, health, housing, the political system, and manpower.

Among the speakers scheduled for major addresses at the conference are Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger; Former General Counsel of the Treasury Samuel R. Pierce Jr.; Governor Linwood Holton of Virginia; Congressman Louis Stokes (D-Ohio), Former Assistant Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Samuel C. Jackson.

A special feature of the conference will be a panel presentation on Tuesday night, July 24, that will bring together for the first time the four black women now serving in Congress. They will be joined by women legislators from the state and local level. The panel will be questioned by a group of distinguished journalists.
