International Black Exposition, To Take Place In Washington, DC

Enterprise, education, economics and entertainment, but above all, excellence, are words George Grogan uses to describe World-Wide Black Expo '73 which will take place in Washington, D. C. August 10-16.

Housing Field Director Takes HUD Position

Floyd W. Wicker, Director of Field Operations with the Low Income Housing Development Corporation for the past three years, has accepted an appointment as Housing Management Officer with the Greensboro Area Office of the Department of Housing & Urban Development.

first international black exposition, Grogan should know, staged at the new Robert F. Kennedy Stadium and D. C. Armory, it will feature exhibitors from the United States and 42 African and Caribbean countries, seminars on business and cultural activities, scholarships for design, mechanical and artistic expression, and name stars.

"We still have some space left for exhibitors who seek exposure to an estimated 300,000 potential inter-racial consumers," said Grogan, explaining that research indicated that this audience estimate is conservative. He adds that crowds will be attracted by daily shows featuring top-flight stars such as Nina Simone, Ray Charles and Nancy Wilson, international entertainment, and sports events.

will be seminars conducted on all aspects of running a business. One of these will be conducted by National Bankers Association.

"But, formal education makes better businessmen from the start," said Grogan, "so we've established a $50,000 scholarship fund to be turned over to the advisory board on opening day. What makes this fund unique is that it will go to students least likely to be recognized by other sources. Recipients will be announced after the close of the exposition.

On opening day, four other scholarships of $1,500 each will be awarded. They'll go to students in the arts, selected on an international basis.

Mrs. Chisholm May Quit Before 1976

First Woman Elected of Cong. May Leave Post

WASHINGTON — (NBNS) — The first black woman elected to Congress, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, has decided that she will be out of politics "definitely by 1976, but I expect to get out before then."

Mrs. Chisholm, who ran for the Democratic nomination for president last year, represents Bedford-Stuyvesant in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Commenting that she may not seek re-election to Congress in 1974, she said if she does run then, it will definitely be her last campaign.

As her primary reason for the decision, which had been rumored for some time now, Mrs. Chisholm cited the frustrations with what she considers the ineffectiveness of Congress. When she leaves the Hill she says she wants to establish a political institute in the nation's capital to be affiliated with a number of universities here.

"They have no organized system of getting legislative work done," Rep. Chisholm said in expanding on her criticism of the Congress.

"All day long you're running back and forth for quorum calls. We're constantly hearing those bells in our office, and we're jumping up and down like jumping jacks. You can't think clearly that way. There's no continuity of thought," she continued.

Last year, Mrs. Chisholm—who earns $42,500 from her congressional salary—also made $30,419 in lectures fees last year, particularly on college campuses.

She said she expects to continue these lectures and also plans to write and spend a good amount of time each year in a new home she has built in the Virgin Islands.

New Publication Explains Work Rights in the U. S. Civil Service

Today, there are approximately three million Americans employed in Federal civil service jobs. And that figure does not include the hundreds of thousands of state, county and municipal employees. All these workers, no matter what their job classification, have in common certain rights and liabilities that do not affect employees in the private sector. On the one hand, for instance, civil service employees do not have the right to strike. On the other, they do have recourse to the courts for settling their job status and rights.

A new book, SECURING AND PROTECTING YOUR RIGHTS IN CIVIL SERVICE by Attorney Samuel Resnicoff (Arco Publishing Company, 219 Park Avenue South, New York) advises government workers of their rights, privileges and benefits. In addition, it offers specific guidance for employees seeking redress in the event of disciplinary or other adverse action. The book answers such questions as: What should I do in the event of reclassification, demotion, reorganization or transfer? What action should I take if I believe I'm being denied promotional rights? What procedures should be followed if I am working on an assignment beyond my job classification and not receiving commensurate pay? How should I handle job injuries? Am I in a position to claim a disability pension? What does endorsing a check "under protest and with waiver of rights" mean? It would be difficult to think of a situation not covered in the text.

SECURING AND PROTECTING YOUR RIGHTS IN CIVIL SERVICE is must reading for anyone with a civil service job problem. And in this day and age of political turmoil, a sluggish economy and governmental cutbacks, this information is invaluable to anyone who wants to know just where he stands legally in relation to his job.
