Morrison's Cafeteria to Begin Operation In Northgate this Fall

Morrison's Cafeteria, one of the fastest growing chains of cafeterias in the country, will begin operation in Northgate Shopping Center in the fall. Morrison's will occupy the space now in use by Longworth Cafeteria and Spinnaker Inn, which are owned by Szabo Food Service. Szabo has been increasing its activity in industrial feeding, gradually closing out its public cafeterias. Morrison's plans extensive renovation of the location, beginning immediately after the closing of Longworth to take place at the end of the day on Tuesday. The refurbished facilities will open on or before Nov. 1. Morrison's, with home offices in Mobile, Ala., will completely re-do the Northgate location. They plan new lighting, new carpeting, installation of a sprinkler system and some modification of the floor plan, which will provide for a private dining room. Norman George, general manager for Northgate Shopping Center said, "Morrison's is highly selective in their locations, and we are pleased with the interest they have shown in Northgate. Their fine reputation in quality food service and attractive decor has preceded them in this area, and we look forward to their opening here." Morrison's also has a location in Charlotte.

Weeds and your Food Dollar

Were it not for pesticides, you would be paying many times what you are presently spending for groceries. "Not only do weeds choke other plants," says E. S. Dunham, professor emeritus, University of Minnesota, "but they steal water and other nutrients from the soil." At harvest time, weeds interfere with the cutting crops. Weeds also reduce the flow of water in irrigation ditches, poison livestock, affect the taste of milk and other products, and provide living quarters for damaging insects. Your food dollar is made bigger before you go to market by the farmers who have employed the wise and careful use of herbicides in modern agricultural practices.

Guideline Retreat Will Mean Black Defections

ATLANTA, GA. — Any retreat from the guidelines which tripled Black participation at the 1972 Democratic Convention represents "gambling with the affections of the party's most loyal supporters," a Democratic Party Commission was told here recently. State Rep. Julian Bond told the National Democratic Commission on Delegate Selection and Party Structure that Black voters were "less interested in labels than performance." "We will increasingly be guided by the old maxim: 'We have no permanent friends, no permanent enemies, only permanent interests,'" Bond said. Also appearing was U. S. Representative Andrew Young (D-GA) who defended the guidelines, saying "The spirit of the reforms must be maintained." Young said that the McGovern-Fraser guidelines, adopted by the party after the 1968 convention, had increased Black participation at national conventions from 5% in 1968 to 15% in 1972.

War Prisoners' Children Eligible for Assistance

Are you the son or daughter of a North Carolinian who was a prisoner of war or missing in action for more than ninety days? If so, you may qualify for free education and training benefits at almost any university, college, junior college, community college or technical institute in North Carolina. John J. Tolson, III, Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, recently expressed concern that children of certain North Carolina veterans who were prisoners of war or who are still missing in action may not be aware of scholarship legislation enacted by the 1973 General Assembly. These scholarships are administered by the Department's Division of Veterans Affairs, but the selection of recipients is made by the State Veterans Affairs Commission. This bi-partisan Commission is comprised of ten members, five of whom are the commanders of the major veterans organizations in the State. In commenting about the change to the law, Secretary Tolson stated that children of veterans of all wars — World Wars I, II and the Korean Conflict, not just Vietnam, who were prisoners of war or missing in action more than ninety days are eligible. Similar scholarships are available to children whose veteran parent was killed or died in war-time service or died as a result of a service connected condition incurred in war-time service as defined in each of two additional eligibility categories. Secretary Tolson, in discussing the State's scholarship program, emphasized that prospective applicants should contact their local Veterans Service Officer who can provide detailed information and assist them in completing the application and getting the necessary documents to determine eligibility. Except in special eligibility categories all available scholarships have been awarded for the school year commencing this fall. Applications for next year (1974-75) should be submitted this fall and winter to ensure timely consideration. Eligibility requirements and the meaning of "war-time service" are set forth in the scholarship law. Secretary Tolson commented that it's too soon to tell what impact the records loss at the Military Personnel Records Center in St. Louis will have upon processing applications. A disastrous fire there in July destroyed millions of service records. Some records are available through the U. S. Veterans Administration if a veteran had previously had dealings with the V.A.

Census Study Refutes Herald Southern Black Migration Myths

WASHINGTON — A recent study compiled by the Census Bureau and released last week refutes the widespread myth that Southern blacks who migrate to northern cities cause a substantial increase in inner city unemployment and welfare caseloads. According to the report, Southern-born blacks who have moved to the big cities of the North are more likely to be employed and married and living with their spouses than Northern-born blacks. Compiled by statistician Larry Long, the report examines selected social characteristics of Southern-born blacks living in the Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington metropolitan areas. It showed that Southern-born black males have higher labor force participation than blacks born in the North. In the Nation's Capital, for example, 67.1 per cent of Southern-born blacks aged 18 and older living there in 1965 were still with their spouses five years later, compared to 50 per cent of the Washington born. In Chicago, 70 percent of Southern-born blacks aged 16 and older who lived in the area in both 1965 and 1970 were employed in 1970, while 65 per cent of those born in New York were employed at the time of the census. According to Dr. Robert Hill, research director for the National Urban League which just concluded its 63rd annual conference here last week, the results of the study were not surprising. "Too many people think blacks migrate from the rural South to the North to get on welfare," said Hill. "That's nonsense. They move North to get jobs and advance themselves like anyone else. I'm glad the Census Bureau report confirms this." Another Census report indicates that mobility continues to be prominent among Americans, especially among young males and the college-educated. The report on interstate migration shows that of the 186.1 million Americans five years and older, over 17 million moved to another state. It also revealed that California continues to have the greatest overall migration. While 1.8 million persons moved to California between 1965 and 1970, 1.4 million left there for other states. The largest volume of population flow between specific states involved New York residents moving to New Jersey.

CHICAGO: Beating the high cost of food at the markets, youths with the help of an official the city's dept. of Human Resources cultivate a garden plot on a vacant lot in the inner city. The project called "Neighborhood Farms" is a part of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's Neighborhood Summer Program, and involves 140 families, and 43 vacant lots. They hope to start 300 gardens on vacant lots next year. (CHICAGO OUT) (UPI)

Sterilization Suit Delayed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — U.S. District Court Judge Robert Varner has delayed indefinitely a decision on whether to allow two black Montgomery girls to move their $5 million sterilization suit from his court to a state court. After listening to an hour of arguments by attorneys for both sides, Varner said he wanted more time to study the plaintiffs' request that the suit be dismissed without prejudice. The girls, Minnie and Mary Alice Reif, sued federal agencies and local hospital and family planning officials on the grounds they were sterilized without their informed consent.

HEW Cuts Back Spending For Publicity

WASHINGTON — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger issued a memorandum to agency heads last week ordering them to submit plans by Aug. 15 to cut back the 1,200-person public affairs staff and trim its number of publications, publicity contracts, and 73 outside consultants. "There is no place for self-serving, promotionally-oriented material in government," Weinberger said in announcing cuts in the $175 million-a-year public affairs operation. "There can be no justification for spending tax dollars needed to help the poor, the infirmed, the aged, and others in unneeded publications."

Senate Passes Job Training Bill

WASHINGTON — By an 88-to-5 vote, the Senate last week passed a bill to revise federal job training programs and continue federal funding of community action anti-poverty projects. The bill, like President Nixon's revenue sharing program, would leave planning of manpower training projects largely to the cities and states. Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), a principal sponsor of the bill, said the program will call for 1.8 billion for the current fiscal year, although the authorization is still indefinite. The bill now goes to the House for action.

Some Vicious Work By Nixon's Dept. of HEW

It has just been disclosed (N.Y. Times — Friday, July 27) in information sent to Congress that the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare failed and refused to spend one billion one hundred million dollars appropriated by Congress for the Health Services Administration and the National Institute of Health. This was about 22% of the total funds appropriated. They refused to allow the National Cancer Institute to spend $59,000,000. They cut the National Heart and Lung Institute by $44 million. They cut the Federal Mental Health programs by $200,000,000 below the amount appropriated by Congress. Naturally it is the workers and the poor who suffer most because they cannot afford the current high costs of hospital and medical care. HEW could and did find the money to help pay the cost for the welfare authorities in Montgomery, Ala., to sterilize two little girls whose mother was illiterate and did not know what she was signing when she was induced to put her mark on an authorization for the sterilization. HEW could and did find the money to help North Carolina Health and Welfare Authorities to sterilize, as a child, Nial Ruth Cox, on the ground that she was mentally retarded. She was not mentally retarded at all. She was just poor and black. Since then she has become a trained nurse in New York City, and you have to be at least a high school graduate and have an I.Q. above normal just to get into nurses' training school. She told on TV that she had to turn down a proposal of marriage because she felt she was only half a woman. Argument Halted On Very Short End SACRAMENTO, Calif. — He said he would kiss her, but he bit off the end of her nose instead, a woman told police. Ariene Enas, 26, was taken to Sacramento Medical Center for treatment of a wound three-quarters of an inch in diameter. The entire tip of her nose was missing, officers said. Carl Moore, 41, was arrested for investigation of mayhem, they added.
