Project Food Sponsors Sewing And Craft Workshop at Pearson

Parents from the Burton and Pearson School areas learned to sew for themselves and do many crafts this summer.

The class began June 11. Several parents were taught to sew, crochet and in general to make use of many articles that one usually discards in the garbage can. Household articles were made from egg cartons, juice cans, plastic rags from six packs, onion bags and fabrics.

The program was sponsored by Project FOOD (Focus on Optimal Development). Director of the program is Mrs. Annabelle Selph who also serves as director of the Durham City School Lunchroom program. Materials were purchased by Project FOOD and donated by interested persons and agencies.

Members of the class shown with their crafts and garments made by them are Mrs. Pat McLaurin, Mrs. A. W. Perce, (Consultant and teacher) Mrs. Majery Lewis and Miss Ann Holloway. Each person made the clothing shown in the photo. The suit being used for demonstration was made by Mrs. Perce. Several other parents participated but did not complete the course.

One of your neighbors teaches ladies to bake things.

Helping youngsters and adults find their way around the kitchen is one way we lend a friendly hand to our neighborhood.

Our business, of course, is to provide electricity. But our purpose is to help people.

We do it in many different ways.

Teaching tomorrow's homemakers to conserve electricity is just one example.

We also show our farm neighbors how to produce more economically. We help to protect the environment. We create boating, fishing and recreation areas for you and your family. And we take part in hundreds of civic and charitable groups.

These activities are important to us. Because this is our neighborhood, too.

Most of us grew up here, and we know the people. That's why serving you doesn't really seem like work.

It's more like helping a neighbor.
