

MRS. McLESTER

Mrs. Mc Lester has attained the status as an outstanding educator and as a leader of both adults and youth. In 1971 she received THE CITIZEN-TEACHER AWARD from the Kiwanis Club of Durham for the Durham City Teacher who best exemplified the highest ideals of teaching and citizenship; in 1971 she also received the Distinguished Service Award for meritorious service as a teacher and counselor in the City of Durham from the North Carolina Resource-Use Education Conference. In 1972, she was presented another plaque from the Young Adult Missionary Department of the Morehead Avenue Baptist Church for leadership, loyalty, service and spiritual guidance through the years to its members. In 1973, she has received numerous certificates of Merit from the North Carolina High School Drama Association, the Union Christian Bible Institute, The YWCA etc. During the Spring of 1973, she was voted and received the Durham Teachers nomination for the TERRY SANFORD AWARD for educators of the State of N. C. Mrs. Mc Lester brings to this office a wealth of varied experiences. She holds membership in numerous professional, civic and religious organizations and holds active positions in several Boards of Directors locally, and state-wide. To extend her Missionary Service, she is currently Junior Supervisor of Durham County Junior Missionary Union, Junior Supervisor of District 7, Group 2, which covers five counties, and a member of the Executive Board of the Lott-Carey Foreign Mission Convention, headquarters in Washington, D. C. and editor of the Woman's page of the "Lott Carey Herald", the official publication of the Convention. To enhance her knowledge with practical information, she has traveled extensively to the major countries of Europe and Mexico for the last five years.

177 among 1,853 life companies, with in excess of a billion dollars of insurance in force on the lives of nearly a million policyholders, over 1,500 employees servicing them in thirteen states and the District of Columbia, Kennedy can be said to have "substantive influence over a large segment of the nation's black population." Similarly, his board memberships with prestigious firms in the FORTUNE 500 list like RCA and NBC as well as the Urban National Corporation are suggestive of his "influence in a decisive way" on policies and programs beyond his own firm's activity. W.J. Kennedy was also cited by Omega Psi Phi Fraternity as one of its outstanding young business leaders at its recent conclave held in St. Louis, Missouri.

The term, GI, used in World War II, was derived from two words, government issue.

EMPLOYMENT

Nonfarm payroll employment (as measured through the establishment survey) was also unchanged at 75.5 million in July, after rising steadily in previous months. Over the year, it has risen by 2.9 million. Among the major industry groups, jobless rate increases for workers in construction and trade were offset by reductions in other industries, notably among manufacturing workers. At 3.8 percent, the unemployment rate for factory workers, was down sharply from the levels of 1971. This decline was most marked for workers in durable goods manufacturing, whose jobless rate receded to 3.3 percent in July, its lowest point since late 1969 and in sharp contrast with its 1971 average of 7 percent.

then 5 years with Home Credit Co. Allen joined Central Carolina Bank in 1971 as a loan officer. He is assigned to the Hillsborough Road office of the bank. Allen is married to the former Miss Brenda Thompson of Hillsborough and they reside on Rt. 1, Hillsborough.

Mallard, a Durham native, was graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1971. He joined CCB early in 1972 as a management associate. Following his training, he was assigned as a loan officer in the bank's central office. He is married to the former Jean McDevitt of Durham and resides at 2500 Nation Ave.

week earlier, with his son and daughter, aged nine and 10, when the fatal accident occurred.

According to Wiley's son, Daniel, the water was rough and choppy and Wiley was walking alongside the cabin when he lost his balance, grabbed a railing for support, and fell into the water when the railing apparently gave way.

Attempts by the youngsters to save Wiley were futile, and they subsequently headed for shore to seek help.

Late last year, Wiley announced plans to step down as head of NWRO to form a more broadly based organization with a new strategy for securing rights for the nation's poor, the Movement for Economic Justice, which would deal with tax reform, better pay, and consumerism. A native of Bayonne, N. J.,

Wiley was raised in Providence, R. I., and received a bachelor's degree from the University of Rhode Island. It was during his tenure as associate professor of chemistry at Syracuse University that Wiley became active.

According to the dean of students at Syracuse, Wiley decided in 1964 to leave teaching and devote his full efforts to social activism by taking a post with the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) in New York.

Wiley remained with CORE less than two years, leaving New York for Washington to found NWRO after he founded a short-lived organization called the Poverty Action Center. The National Welfare Rights Organization eventually attracted a membership of more than 200,000 people with 800 chapters across the country.

An example of Wiley's degree of organization and effectiveness occurred in 1969 when he and his group joined a group of welfare mothers to take over an office floor of the D.C. Department of Welfare in an effort to speed up the processing of welfare families requesting food stamps.

To the embarrassment of welfare workers, the welfare mothers cut the processing time in half, leading Wiley to comment, "The D.C. Welfare Department has retreated from here."

A memorial service for Wiley was held at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington, followed by a march to Lafayette Park, where friends and former colleagues read from Wiley speeches.

He is survived by his wife, Wretha, two children, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wiley of Providence, R.I.

states, "If the inmate elects to have a MINOR offense heard by the region committee, he should understand that the committee MAY determine that the offense should be classified as MAJOR and may impose appropriate punishment(s)." This statement indicates that an inmate must "pay the price" for an impartial tribunal (or constitutionally guaranteed right), if, in fact, impartial tribunal is what it is.

There is adequate and recent law to support the constitutional rights of prisoners involved in disciplinary proceedings and particularly peculiar to the contentions of Turner and Ross.

One simple request of the defendants "have established, printed and submitted for the Court's approval, policy and guidelines granting prisoners at Caledonia Prison Farm procedural due process of law." Another is that the defendants be required to "establish clear, precise written rules and regulations governing prisoners' conduct, which offer clear guidance to the inmate as to what kind of conduct is forbidden, prescribing minimum and maximum punishments for each offense...."

The complaint states that plaintiff Turner is now eligible for parole and plaintiff Ross eligible for promotion to Honor Grade status but the filing of this complaint will probably hurt their chances of obtaining these privileges. Will they, too, have to "pay the price" for exercising a constitutionally guaranteed right? Or will the complaint be thrown into file "13".

HENDERSON

Annual Convention to be held in Las Vegas in December, 1974.

Although the 12,650 man organization has been recognizing "distinguished achievement" of their members with the "Laurel Wreath" award for many years, and annually considers several hundred candidates for the honor, only twenty-six men have been so recognized in the fraternity's nearly sixty-year history.

Henderson is the second Durham citizen to be so honored. The late Charles Clinton Spaulding, Sr., third president of NORTH CAROLINA MUTUAL, received his "Laurel Wreath" in 1945.

Winners in the Olympic Games of ancient Greece were crowned with a wreath of branches from the laurel tree. Since then the wreath has become a symbol of distinguished achievement. And, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity with its purpose of "achievement in college and later life" adopted the wreath to focus attention on members with outstanding accomplishments in professional, civic and religious life as an inspiration for youth.

Carter stated that Henderson's many national and local accomplishments along with his nearly forty years of unique service in the fraternity caused him to be singled out for recognition. His service on the boards of many business, professional and religious organizations ranging from his chairmanship of the Durham Housing Authority and Hampton Institute to his service as United States representative on several government inspection and

YES WE ALL TALK

By Marcus H. Bouliware, Ph.D. SUPPORTING MATERIALS

QUESTION: I am hearing too many speakers make statements without support; how do we know if they know that they are talking about? Mrs. C.M.B.

ANSWER: You don't know unless they use some support to "back up" what they are saying. Unless a speaker knows what he is talking about, he can hardly expect the audience to pay much attention to him. Making an audience identify review teams in Africa and a number of national groups like the Mortgage Bankers Association of America are suggestive of his creative leadership and achievement.

its thoughts, feelings, attitudes, and beliefs with the purpose of a speech is no simple task. Some forms of speech support include the personal experience, the experiences of others, incidents, examples, illustrations, statistics, and you name it. Sources for this kind of information can be found in the library, through conversation and interviews, on radio and television, through attending lectures, reading magazines and newspapers.

QUESTION: The younger generation of college speakers seem to have no care for acceptable posture. What would you recommend? S. P.

ANSWER: A speaker's posture is one determinant of an audience's response to him. Therefore, the speaker should stand before his listeners in a manner that indicates stability and assurance. His posture should be poised but not stiff, relaxed but not sloppy.

The male speaker does not wear a hat of cap while speaking before an audience. Generation gap or not, this cannot be tolerated.

When buying vegetables, select those that are fresh and crisp. "Quick sale" items are poor buys as a rule, says Mrs. Ruby Uzzie, extension consumer marketing economist, North Carolina State University. Also, check for signs of moisture in prepackaged items since moisture hastens decay.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Emma Strong take this occasion to thank all of the many friends who remembered us in our bereavement. Your many expressions of sympathy strengthened us at a time when we were saddened in spirit. We will always remember with affection and gratitude your demonstration of concern for our welfare.

up a Center for Civil Rights, the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the university and former head of the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights said recently.

"Our nation is now in retreat from the civil rights advances of the last 20 years," Father Hesburgh said in explaining the purpose of the center. "And there is urgent need for research into America's recent civil rights history, for analysis of current civil rights issues, and for recommendations designed to meet the problems of today and of the immediate future."

CRANSTON ADDS AMENDMENTS TO FHA BILL

WASHINGTON - (NBNS)- Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) introduced two amendments to Federal Housing Administration legislation currently before the Senate. One would give some 340,000 persons "who have been stuck with defective FHA homes" the right to file claims for repairs. The other would unfreeze $72 million to provide low-interest loans to rehabilitate 12,258 older housing units.
