NCCU Honors Vet Teacher, Ms. A. Jenkins

Mrs. Ann M. Jenkins, who has taught library science at North Carolina Central University since 1946, was honored by her fellow faculty members in the School of Library Science recently.

A gift to Mrs. Jenkins, who has announced her retirement, was presented during a full-day orientation session for the library science school's students.

Mrs. Jenkins has been associated with the School of Library Science since its creation in 1941. "As a student, she took the first course offered here," said Dr. Annette L. Phinazee, dean of the school.

Mrs. Jenkins earned the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science in library science degrees at N.C. Central. Her master's degree in library science is from the University of Michigan.

The assistant professor of library science has served in recent years as coordinator of the school's undergraduate program, which provides the basic courses for library certification for public school teachers.

She is also president of the library science school's alumni association.

"Mrs. Jenkins has always taken a person interest in her students," said Dr. Phinazee. "I have found her to be a most loyal faculty member—not only doing what she supposed to do, but giving her full support to the dean and the school in every day."

TARBORO NEWS

By Sylvester Brown, Reporter

504 St. John Street

TARBORO, NORTH CAROLINA

At this time the reporter will be glad to receive and report news items of interest for people in this area.

Much news has been made in Tarboro, but just bits of it will be reported. A few days ago some of the old timers were in town, better known as Woodrow Edmonds and Dr. Vernon Clark. Prior to that Dr. Willie Williams and Dr. Frank Weaver passed through the Edmonds serves as principal of the Grey-Culbreth Junior High School in Chapel-Hill; Drs. Clark and Williams are on the faculty of North Carolina Central University and Dr. Frank Weaver is an assistant Superintendent of Durham City Schools.

The social clubs are still active. Among them are the Chatter Box, The Four Seasons, The College Women and the Retired Teachers. The fall season promises to usher in many exciting activities. The Sportsman Club holds many attractions with a variety of entertainment each week-end.

People in our city do travel. At this time, Mesdames Nan Bryant, Annie Johnson, Ethel Whitehead are in California; Mrs. S. E. Thomas just returned from California a few days ago after visiting her niece and brother. Miss Gladys Mathewson, her niece is living out there now. Mrs. Jennie Taylor has just returned from the national meeting of her sorority, Delta Sigma Theta. The meeting was held at Atlanta, Georgia where some 5,000 or more members heard many exciting challenges and rededication to the goals of the sorority in the coming years.

While on tour, Mr. and Mrs. Cary J. Bullock and their two children, Karen and Cary, Jr. toured several of the southern states from Tennessee to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith attended the marriage of their nephew, Robert Hughes, in Charlotte.

We are proud of the fact that many of our young people are staying in Tarboro as jobs are very plentiful here as a result of industry and the Technical Institute. Many are happy to live in Tarboro now. The Kappas reported a very interesting and stimulating annual meeting in Miami, Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pitt attended.

Athletics are playing a big role as usual. Carter Suggs brought great honors home from Russia after winning the 100 yard dash and relays in the state.

The senior high school lost their first game 20-6 to Rocky Mount Senior High. Many good athletes have gone to different colleges, but we do not know where at this time.

Miss Tammie Bridges spent her vacation in Raleigh visiting Mrs. Minnie Ruth Woodson, state supervisor. Mrs. Mable J. Brown is recovering at home after surgery at Duke Hospital.

Thomas Reeves, one of our outstanding coaches, passed away a few days ago at Fayetteville State. The town has lost an outstanding citizen. Mrs. Queen L. Weaver, a former resident, lost her mother in Mt. Gilead. We extend our sympathy to all the families.

This ends our script for this week.

Annual Revival Set For Chapel Hill Church

The First Baptist Church at the corner of N. Roberson and W. Rosemary Streets, Chapel Hill, will begin a revival meeting this Sunday and extend through Friday, Sept. 21, 1973. The Pastor, Dr. J. R. Manley will open the revival Sunday at eleven o'clock with the message "God's Call for a Revival" based upon the Scripture, Joel 2, 15-17.

Special music for the occasion will be rendered by the Junior Choir of the church under the direction of Mrs. Marie Mann. The second service of the revival will be at 7:00 p.m. Sunday and the Evangelist of the week, The Rev. Raymond Lassiter, Minister of the First Baptist Church of Oxford, will preach. A special praise service before the service will be directed by the Mother's Mission Circle of Chapel Hill and Vicinity. Special music for the occasion will be rendered by the Junior Choir of First Baptist. The other services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening with a special praise service directed by one of the groups of the church and the Rev. Lassiter will be preaching.

The public is cordially invited to attend and urged to participate.

DAILY LIVING

An aspect of the aggressive character

William Thorpe

By WILLIAM THORPE

In our world, where money, power, and fame are considered so desirable, the aggressive person will often be looked up to and admired. Others are impressed and envious of his achievements. However, in his personal life it is not likely to be successful. Too driven to be able to relax, he is unable to be spontaneous and to enjoy things. Feelings of warmth, tenderness, and affection are not well developed in this what I could say; well-oiled, success-directed machine. He can respect the accomplishments of others but not simply and naturally like people. Rather, he thinks in terms of how they can be used in his pursuit of success.

The aggressive character operates on the general assumption that he is superior to others and that if he really tries, he will get what he goes after. He may feel that his own needs are important and to be respected; however, he is quick to disregard as unimportant the feelings and wishes of other people.

Now, it is easy to imagine the violence of his feelings when his wishes are disregarded, when somebody achieves something that he does not, or when he senses defeat. His fury is often channeled into defeating the other person, frustrating them, or gaining revenge. Yes, the aggressive character makes a dangerous adversary.

We may find that the world's outstanding leaders in politics and business often belong to this pattern or in this category. If we will analyze it, we perhaps will find this to be true.

You see, an aggressive character's friends tend to be business associates or acquaintances whom he may drop as he ascends the socio-economic ladder. He can be benevolent and helpful to others, but only to those who do not challenge his influence and superiority. It seems that it is hard for him to get married because of his lack of deep feelings. When he does, he picks a wife who has some outstanding desirable quality, great beauty, wealth, or prestige—rarely marrying for love. And his wife must play a difficult role, in other words, she must be desirable enough so that he can impress others with her, but yet not eclipse him in importance. Lastly, she must accept the fact that his family life will be secondary to his ambition and to his self-aggrandizement.

FROM BLACK

By John Hudgins

One of the things which should concern Black people in Durham, North Carolina is that we are living in a dangerous part of the land.

There is little protection for the actual lives of Black people anywhere in this city. Only a few weeks ago a Black couple was found murdered in Emory Woods, perhaps one of the most exclusive Black neighborhoods in the state. It is there that the mark material gain and affluence in Durham is glorified. Only a couple of years ago a ninety year old Black woman was found beaten to death in her home in the Hayti section of Durham. Hayti the exact opposite of Emory Woods, poor houses, poverty, low income, bad streets, barely enough material gain to survive. In that same year, a Black student was found beaten to death on the Campus of North Carolina Central University, once a predominantly Negro institution of higher learning. Somewhere between the two extremes.

Now I have told you this little item in order to make two points which I shall proceed to discuss. The first point is that no matter where you live in Durham if you are Black you can get killed. That's right in Durham, Murder knows no limits of income or place of residence if you are Black.

The second point is even more serious. The three murders above like many other Black murders in this city have not been solved. In two of them the local police and sheriff's departments have not even produced suspects. Little wonder there are so many Black murders in Durham. There is little or no protection for Black life in this city and county, and those who kill Blacks are not caught. There are two possible reasons for this set of facts. Either the authorities don't know what they are doing or they simply don't give a damn. I am tempted to answer the question for you but I think maybe this time you should be able to draw your own conclusion.

However let me leave you with something to make it interesting. In the few years that I have been in Durham, there has not been a single rape of a white woman case in Durham without somebody Black being hauled in. Check it out, the ugliest most animalistic, knock-kneed, bowlegged, pigeon toed, crossed eyes, snagged tooth, old white hag can even dream that she was raped by a Black man, and sure enough Durham authorities will arrest somebody, even if they have to go to New Jersey to do it.

Consider the facts, consider your life, Black people.

THE BEAUTY BEAT

Cover It Up

NEW YORK (ED)—Women who turn heads when they enter a room understand the slogan "If you've got it, flaunt it!" The problem is developing assets worth flaunting. No, you can't go to the Gypsies for a magic brew to create loveliness. But you can discipline yourself to do what's necessary to look artful use of artifice (makeup, that is) can turn plain Jane into "just look at Jayne".

One asset worth cultivating is the eye. With the proper dressing, your windows on the world will act as magnets, drawing all eyes toward you. It isn't difficult to learn the right way to apply mascara. liner, shadows—and the results are well worth it. But don't stop there. Consider scenery surrounding your eye.

If you have a flawless hand with brush and pencil, but don't do anything to conceal those tiny little imperfections under the eye—beautiful will become blah. The most common cosmetic eye trouble? Dark circles under the eyes that give you a gaunt, I-haven't-slept-in-weeks look. Maybelline Cover Stick conceals dark shadows, gives you a wide awake look and also minimizes blemishes not related to the eye area. This is an important plus, because the most artfully designed eye won't make up for a blotchy, blemished skin.

THE AGEING OF CYNTHIA

VIRGO

Virgo is the only female figure of the zodiac constellation. She contains 223 stars and the first magnitude star Spica, which is 60 light years longer than our own sun. So we see that Virgo has a lot more in her than just a good looking woman.

The Morehead Planetarium exhibits, photographs the general population of this planet in a graphic manner.
