MRS. BROOKS

Mrs. C. Brooks Appointed Nat. Arts Consultant

Charlotte K. Brooks, an authority on reading and the teaching of English, has been appointed national language arts consultant by D. C. Heath and Company, publishing division of Raytheon Company.

In her new consulting post, Mrs. Brooks will meet with teachers, administrators, and parent and professional groups throughout the county discussing reading and language arts programs, and conducting teacher-training seminars.

Mrs. Brooks is an adjunct professor at American University. An educator with the Washington, D.C. school system for more than 20 years, she served as a classroom teacher and, subsequently, as head of the Department of English for the system.

She has also taught in Baltimore and, under the Fulbright exchange, in Birmingham, England.

A program speaker at conferences of the National Council of Teachers of English, Mrs. Brooks is a member of the Council's Commission on Reading.

She will serve as local arrangements chairman for the NCTE's Secondary School English Conference to be held in Washington, D.C. next March. She is a frequent speaker at conferences of the International Reading Association of which she is also a member. Mrs. Brooks is a member of the board of trustees of the Center for Applied Linguistics and is a consultant on the Right to Read Program of H.E.W.'s Office of Education.

Mrs. Brooks is a consulting author of D.C. Heath's new Communicating series of language arts books for elementary school students. She has also authored a secondary school English text series, a teaching methods text, an anthology of American literature, an anthology of African literature, and a series of five fiction books featuring children of different African nations.

Educated in schools in Pennsylvania, Greenville, Mississippi, and Washington, D.C., Mrs. Brooks received her B.A. in English from Howard University and her M.A. from New York University. She has continued her education at Oxford University, Harvard University, and the University of California, among others.

Mrs. Brooks spent two summers lecturing in England under a Winifred Cullis Lecture-Fellowship, a summer studying schools in England under a Gulbenkian grant, and a summer traveling and writing in Africa under a Ford grant.

Mrs. Brooks and her husband, who is active in developing multimedia programs for schools, live with their son at 472 M. Street, S.W., Washington, D.C.

TARBORO NEWS

By Sylvester Brown, Reporter
504 St. John Street
TARBORO, NORTH CAROLINA

Considering the other progress Tarboro has made in recent years, we can not leave out Dr. M. A. Ray, who has opened his new and modern dental office. He has a receptionist and an office girl. His fine service is highly appreciated by the people of Tarboro.

Mrs. Vivian Smith and Mrs. Mable Brown were co-hostess to the College Women Club at Mrs. Smith's home last week. This was their first meeting since last spring. After the business session, the hostess served a delicious repast which was enjoyed by all.

The teachers in the county held their first meeting of the year at Carver School, Pinetops with Mrs. Lolita Brown Bullock presiding. She is the president of the unit for the year. Following the meeting, Mrs. Lucy Ruffin, a primary teacher at Bullock School, was elected Teacher of the Year for Edgecombe County. The unit now is making plans to attend the district meeting which will be held in Rocky Mount in October.

Mrs. Sallie Jenkins entertained the Four Season Club at home in Pinetops. She was a gracious hostess, giving prizes for games played and serving her guests. Mrs. Lolita Bullock presided as she is the president. They made plans for the year.

We are delighted to know that Mrs. Hazel S. Parker is recovering nicely from her accident she had in the summer. She suffered a broken arm.

Mrs. S. E. Thomas

journeyed to Raleigh to witness Billy Graham's Crusade. Mrs. Janie Pettaway reported on a pleasant trip she had to the Elks Convention in Texas.

Recreation has been uplified as we have several beautiful tennis courts, lighted and opened at night so the young people can have wholesome recreation. They are taking advantage of it. This concludes this week's doings.

questions on your family's move...

by Alice Bowman
Allied Van Lines
Home Moving Consultant

Dear Miss Bowman: My husband is being transferred. We will be moving while school is in session; we have no choice. Do you have any suggestions that will help my two children — who are 9 and 11 — adjust more easily to their new school? Mrs. M. H., Dobbs Ferry, New York.

Answer: Don't be overly concerned about having to move during the school year. Participants at a recent symposium co-sponsored by Loyola University, Chicago, and Allied Van Lines concluded that moving during the school year, rather than during the summer, may make it easier for a child to make friends. Moreover, several studies have shown no significant differences in school performances and achievement among children from families who moved often and families who stayed in one place.

BLACKS DOING THEIR OWN THING — Many black women are doing their own thing when it comes to hair styles these days. Results of that trend are much in evidence during the Fifth Annual African-American Day Parade in New York's Harlem September 23. This is described, for instance, as the corn row in a version for short hair.
