

Geers Return From Retired Persons Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Cruse Geer of 2614 Fayetteville Street and Mrs. Ruby West returned home this week after attending a major regional conference of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association in Atlanta.

They were among more than 1,000 older Americans from 11 southern states and the District of Columbia who attended the three-day conference, designed to explore ways in which older Americans can contribute to the achievement of national goals and to the solution of age-related problems.

Principal speakers at the meeting included former White House press secretary Bill Moyers, editor-in-chief of "Bill Moyers" Journal and author of "Listening to America"; Dr. Kenneth McFarland, guest lecturer for General Motors Corporation; Dr. Arthur Larson, international lawyer and director of the Rules of Law Research Center at Duke University; and former Congressman and White House special assistant Brooks Hays.

In addition, a series of special interest workshops were conducted on issues such as health education, crime and safety, no-fault insurance, consumer protection, community service and political involvement.

With a combined membership of more than 5.5 million, AARP is the nation's largest organization committed to helping older Americans achieve retirement lives of purpose, dignity and independence. The two associations conduct a vigorous federal and state legislative program and sponsor a number of programs and services to help older persons meet their insurance, travel and health needs and maintain active involvement in community and national affairs.

Tara fans: On August 28 the musical version of "Gone with the Wind" opens in Los Angeles, having already opened in London and Japan. From L.A. Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler will march to Broadway.

Bicycle enthusiasts: Have you seen those things they call bike sails? They're clear plastic sheets that slip into a bracket on your handle bars. And then? Pedals weigh!

Burton/Taylor fans: As of this writing the famous couple are getting a divorce. Tune in next month.

Movie buffs: It isn't brand new anymore, but if you haven't already seen it, try to catch the flick "Paper Moon" and the father/daughter team of Ryan and Tatum O'Neal. It's Tatum's show, and we all can take a lesson in charm from her.

Watergate followers: Did you know that now you can get a Senator Sam tee-shirt? It has a photo-sketch of Sam Ervin on it and is, they say, known as the Last Honest Man tee-shirt.

Clear complexion seekers: Healthy skin begins with clean skin. You should wash your face with warm water and a medicated soap such as Postex two or three times a day. And to hide those blemishes while treating them, use Fostril, a medicated, flesh tinted cover-up that acts as a drying agent.

New Directions In Concert at First Presby'n

THE NEW DIRECTIONS will be presented in concert by the Music Ministry of First Presbyterian Church of Durham on Saturday evening, October 13, at 7:30 p.m., and on Sunday morning, October 14, at the 11:00 a.m. Morning Worship hour.

The NEW DIRECTIONS is a singing group of forty-eight young people in their teens and early twenties which is both versatile and contemporary. This group has made concert tours throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, Jamaica, and Haiti entrancing audiences with their up-tempo sound and message-music of modern-day Christianity. They were featured during Billy Graham's Great South Eastern Crusade in the spring of 1972.

In 1968 a group of teenagers from Alamance County in North Carolina started meeting together weekly for the purpose of growing in the Christian life. It was not long before their vision exceeded the boundaries of their own county and so they launched out on faith and toured Southeastern and Southwestern United States and Mexico for 18 days to tell others of the joy, purpose, and "new direction" they were sharing their faith and enthusiasm, and so everywhere they went they would not only speak out but sing! The response was so encouraging that is seemed God was directing them to start a full time witness ministry centered around music - and so at the conclusion of their 1968 Mexican tour "The New Directions" was born. At first they were based at the YMCA in Burlington, but as time progressed, the ministry grew in scope to the extent that in November of 1970 they stepped out in faith, separated themselves from the YMCA, incorporated and became a full time contemporary Christian outreach youth ministry.

The NEW DIRECTIONS group was founded by J. L. Williams, a graduate of the Duke University Divinity School; he is also the director. The NEW DIRECTIONS operates from full time offices in Burlington and Charlotte with numerous outreach programs on college campuses.

The NEW DIRECTIONS are booked solid in churches and universities, and everywhere the group sings concert, many people find standing room only.

After the Saturday night concert at First Presbyterian Church many young people may want to remain for "rap" sessions with the NEW DIRECTIONS. The Sunday morning hour will feature another full concert by the group. The public, and especially the youth, are cordially invited to attend.

Among the consultants and lecturers in the program will be Alvin F. Midget of Charlotte, and Thomas Ramsey of Greensboro, both professional planners.

Direction of the program will be by the faculty of the department. In addition, professional planners and graduates of master's degree programs in planning will serve as instructors and resource personnel. Instructors include James Ward and Owen Williams, both with master's degrees in city and regional planning.

Jack and Jill Gives Program For Youths

The Jack and Jill of America Foundation sponsored a program for minority group male youths for a six week period on the campus of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia during July and August.

This innovative and sensitivity training program included 100 Blacks, Native Americans, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos and Cubans 16-18 years of age from various parts of the United States. The youths served as volunteers in Day Care Centers in Atlanta as a part of the program.

The appellation court ruled that the Louisiana action was similar to a Mississippi Law recently held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The rulings highlighted Justice Department legal actions during September to achieve equal opportunities for blacks and other minority group members.

FAIR HOUSING-The Justice Department's Civil Rights Division filed two housing discrimination suits last month and sought to join in a private fair housing suit.

In addition, the Justice Department asked to intervene in a suit challenging a civil rights ordinance enacted by the City of Upper Arlington, Ohio, on the grounds that it contains discriminatory language.

Courts Order Black Teachers Reinstatement

WASHINGTON-The U.S. Department of Justice won two important appellate court rulings in September in school desegregation cases, Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson announced recently.

Mr. Richardson said the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in Richmond, Virginia, reversed in part a trial court's decision that denied a Justice Department request that 10 black teachers be rehired in Chesterfield County, South Carolina.

The Department had charged that the teachers were dismissed on racial grounds. The appellate court ordered them reinstated and directed that they be awarded the wages they would have earned since their dismissals.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in New Orleans, Louisiana, overruled a trial court decision that denied the Justice Department's request for an order requiring the Louisiana State Board of Education and the Evangeline Parish school district to stop providing textbooks and transportation to students attending the segregated, all-white Evangeline Academy.

The appellate court ruled that the Louisiana action was similar to a Mississippi Law recently held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The rulings highlighted Justice Department legal actions during September to achieve equal opportunities for blacks and other minority group members.

One suit charged a home builder in Dayton, Ohio, with quoting higher prices to black prospective buyers.

NCCU Geogra'y Dept. Offers Crash Course

North Carolina Central University's Department of Geography will begin a nine-week "crash" course in city and regional planning for its junior and senior majors and minors next Monday, according to Dr. Theodore R. Speigner, chairman of the department.

"Members of public and private agencies have indicated a need for more and better trained planning persons for the state," Dr. Speigner said. He said that among the agencies asking N. C. Central to train planning personnel was the N. C. Department of Natural and Human Resources.

Students will attend the course on Mondays and Thursdays at 7 p.m., beginning October 8. Activities will include formal lectures, directed group discussions, and technical presentations using case studies.

As geography majors and minors, the students in the course will have been exposed to such concepts as land use planning before beginning the course, Dr. Speigner noted. Completion of the course will result in the awarding of a certificate.

Students completing the course, Dr. Speigner said, will be prepared to begin work in city and regional planning offices at the apprenticeship level. "This planning program will greatly increase the reservoir of black planners in the state," Dr. Speigner said.

Direction of the program will be by the faculty of the department. In addition, professional planners and graduates of master's degree programs in planning will serve as instructors and resource personnel. Instructors include James Ward and Owen Williams, both with master's degrees in city and regional planning.

Among the consultants and lecturers in the program will be Alvin F. Midget of Charlotte, and Thomas Ramsey of Greensboro, both professional planners.
