

REFLECTIONS

FROM NCCU
By Mary Bohanon

MARY BOHANON

The longer I live I become more and more convinced that this misunderstanding amongst ethnic groups can be solved. This solution is embedded in the educational processes that stimulate the student to express himself intelligently and freely without fear of retaliation.

The pendulum is swinging towards the positive. It is during this period that the student seems to be searching for his way of life. There should be no calculated impediments to stymie his search even when the student finds the teacher erring. The understanding should be clear at the first meeting of the class that the teacher is not infallible. All schools of thought should be presented so that the student receives a myriad of choices. By so doing the student no longer has a narrow view toward other philosophies of life.

AN EVENING IN A GARDEN

I remember
How the fragrance of the flowers
Mingled with that of yours,
As you tinged the air
With your pixie-like laughter
While I sought the joy of embracing you.
I remember
Golden light smiling between our faces.
Your beauty was mystic
As you sat in the cool evening air
Like a dark-eyed princess
Within the realm of a daydream.
I remember
How two familiar faces stared back
At us from a lotus pool filled with pennies.
We kissed and the gay sound of the Children who pointed and giggled
Seemed miles away.
I remember
Your heart-melting gaze
When you whispered,
"If this love is a dream,
I pray we never wake."

HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION

While here I sit in this class today,
mindless education holds its sway,
assaulting by brain with endless tripe.
Its a wonder I have not gripe
about all this garbage I have to take.
S'pose its 'cause I'm only half-awake.
With my heading resting against the wall,
my mind wandering, asleep I fall.
Shortly I rouse just in time to hear
"...Let's get smashed tonight, you bring the beer."
whispered by a nearby learned student to an academic of like bent.
I am regrettably awake once more,
listening to the lecture, still a bore.
In a vain attempt to keep my sanity,
within my mind I climb a dead oak tree.
...Oh, how long can this torture last?
The bell should have rung long time past.
...a long time past.

I SEE

In her I see poise
In her I see charm
In her I see beauty
In her I see a figure of numbers
I see the surface, so really I don't See her.

GRIEF

The shadow of sunset dances against the sky
while tiny rays of warmth disturb
the pleasant stillness
of seclusion,
birds fly in endless circles,
flapping their wings
in the cool breezes
of the passing day,
while
My ocean-overflows with tears

ABANDONED

I reached out to touch you,
You were not there.
I vainly cried, "I need you!"
Knowing you would not hear.
I searched for remnants of solace,
Finding bolts of pain.
I arose to start anew,
For you had walked out on the morning.

A 'VANILLA BREAKFAST'
STARTS THE DAY RIGHT

Early-morning-melancholia can usually be brightened by eating a good, flavorful breakfast. Reach for your pure vanilla extract in making these early-morning dainties.
Cream together 1/2 cup butter, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Keep on hand as spread for pancakes, waffles, toast, French toast or hot breads.
Add vanilla to taste to hot cooked cereal or milk for cold cereals. (It makes skimmed milk more palatable for the dieter, too.) Almost any canned or fresh fruit tastes "fruitier" if tossed with a few drops of vanilla extract.
Vanilla is not only a classic enhancer of hot chocolate and cocoa, but a few drops give a delicious fragrance to hot tea, coffee or coffee alternates.

SKYLAB 3

HOUSTON--Launching day for Skylab 3 is November 11. The crew is the first all-rookie group to visit the orbiting space laboratory. If all goes well, they will spend Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day in space.

OPENING DELAYED

DALLAS--The Dallas-Fort Worth Airport has delayed its grand opening of the world's largest airport until January 13. Six major airlines asked for more time to train employees to use the sophisticated new equipment.

READY

AUSTIN, TEX.--When the owner of Jim's Frontier restaurant caught a man in the act of cracking his safe, he asked him what he was doing. The robber said, "I guess I'm getting ready to go to jail."

Second Black Marine Lt. Col. C. L. Davis Commands Jet Squadron

A Marine fighter squadron that became famous in World War II when there were no black Marine aviators is today commanded by one.

He is Lt. Col. Clarence L. Davis, who joined the Navy 20 years ago to pay his way through medical school. Davis learned to fly, became a Marine aviator and has been flying ever since.

The squadron is VMA-214, known as the "Blacksheep." Sixteen A4M "Skyhawk" jet fighters are assigned to it at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station near Santa Ana, Calif.

Lt. Col. Davis thus became the second black officer to command a tactical Marine squadron. The first, Lt. Col. Frank Petersen, commanded a Phantom squadron in Vietnam.

Davis saw action in Vietnam as a helicopter pilot, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross and 20 air medals. Twice his gunship was shot down as he supported American, Vietnamese and Korean troops in 1968 and 1969.

His intellectual interests are as widespread as his flying experience. Lt. Col. Davis is a trained chemist and an experienced data processing officer. He has flown approximately 2,500 hours in jets, 1,000 hours in propeller-driven fixed-wing aircraft and 400 hours in helicopters, including 400 combat missions. He also has completed jump school.

Known as "Clancy" to friends and comrades in the air, he has become an expert chef in spare hours, specializing in seafood, steaks and soul cooking at his home in Tustin, Calif.
