

TIPS ON SAVING

and last longer than common incandescent bulbs.

*Turn your thermostat to its lowest setting when you leave home for more than a few days this winter. Check your manual to see if pilot lights can be extinguished safely.

*Contact your local utilities on insulating your home and improving the efficiency of your appliances.

SAVING ENERGY IN TRANSPORTATION

*Walk, take public transportation, or ride a bike for short trips. Short car trips are very wasteful of energy because the engine is operating "cold" and gives very poor gas mileage.

*Create and support car pools to get to work, school and shop.

*Encourage the use of bicycles in your community with safety lanes and laws.

*Take a bus or train on out-of-town trips.

*Keep your car engine tuned and tires properly inflated.

*Consider buying radial tires. They are safer, last longer and give better mileage.

*Slow down when you can do so safely. Most cars get the best gas mileage at 40-to-50 m.p.h.

*Avoid driving in rush hour if possible as gas mileage is poor in "stop-and-go" traffic. Drive smoothly as changes in speed and excessive braking increase gas consumption.

*When you next buy a car, shop for one that meets your needs, but gives the best gas mileage.

Students were selected on the basis of academic record and originality of film ideas submitted to the RTVMP faculty.

Carver, Roosevelt Selectees For Great Americans Hall of Fame

NEW YORK-George Washington Carver, Louis Dembit Brandeis, Franklin Delano Roosevelt and John Philip Sousa have been elected to the Hall of Fame for Great Americans at New York University. Results of the nationwide election were announced today (Nov. 1, 1973) by Russell D. Niles, director of the Hall of Fame.

Final selections were made from a ballot containing the names of 180 candidates nominated by the public over the past year. To be eligible for election to the Hall of Fame, candidates must have been dead at least 25 years and must have been American citizens who made significant contributions to the nation.

This year 134 members of the College of Electors cast their ballots for final selections. A majority, or 68 votes, was required for election. Dr. Carver was elected with the highest count of 104 votes. Judge Brandeis was next with 98 votes. President Roosevelt received 86 votes and Mr. Sousa 78.

Those nominees who received 20 votes but less than a majority will automatically be considered for the next-scheduled election in 1976. Nine candidates were thus renominated. They are Noah Webster, 57 votes; Andrew Carnegie, 49; Adolph S. Ochs, 42; John Frank Stevens, 38; Henry Ford, 29; Jefferson Davis and William Henry Welch, 28 each; Clara Barton, 23, and George Gershwin, 20.

Dr. Carver (1864-1943), the Black agricultural chemist, is best known for the hundreds of uses he discovered for the peanut. His efforts to improve the economy of the South included the teaching of soil improvement and of diversification of crops. His research on uses for the peanut, the sweet potato and soybean was carried out at Tuskegee Institute, which he joined in 1894 and where he remained for the rest of his life.

Judge Brandeis (1856-1941), Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court from 1916 to 1939, maintained a position of judicial liberalism throughout his 23 years on the bench. His "Brandeis" brief revolutionized the practice of law. It consisted of statistical, sociological, economic and physiological information that persuaded the U.S. Supreme Court that minimum-hours legislation for women was reasonable-not unconstitutional in the Muller v. Oregon case of 1908. Brandeis University is named after him. He wrote "Other People's Money" (1914) and "Business, a Profession" (1914).

The 32d president of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt (1882-1945), was the only president to be elected four times. He held office from 1933 until his death in his fourth term in 1945. He offered the depression-ridden people of the United States a New Deal in 1933. His New Deal, in effect, was a series of measures designed to set up governmental agencies to reorganize industry and agriculture under controls and to revive the economy by a vast expenditure of public funds. Social Security, the Works Progress Administration (WPA) and the impetus for the United Nations were products of his administration.

Mr. Sousa (1854-1932), bandmaster and composer, did much to improve the instrumentation and quality of band music. He composed about 100 marches, including "Semper Fidelis," "The Washington Post March," "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and "Hands Across the Sea."

Howard University Med School Professor Wins Browning Award

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Dr. Hildrus A. Poindexter, Professor of Community Health Practice at the Howard University College of Medicine and an internationally recognized expert in tropical medicine, has been named by the American Public Health Association as the winner of the 1973 Edward W. Browning Achievement Award.

"We must train more Black physicians with a view toward controlling all diseases, not just the diseases affecting New York and Washington," he said.

Dr. Poindexter is a graduate of the Harvard Medical School. During his long and impressive career as a teacher, researcher and physician, Dr. Poindexter has traveled to eighty countries, including South America and the Caribbean, to fight tropical diseases.

Dr. Poindexter, who is being honored for his "outstanding contribution in the prevention of disease," will be formally presented with a citation and a $5,000 award on November 5 at the Association's 101st Annual Meeting in San Francisco.

A member of the Howard faculty for more than 20 years, Dr. Poindexter became interested in tropical medicine several years ago when he realized most medical professionals harbored an ethnic bias against tropical diseases. "That bias still exists," he noted recently.
