

THE WINNERS LAUGH AND BLOW UP BALLOONS — Two lucky buyers of a nursery school in Fresno, California received a surprise windfall this year when they became the 200,000th customer of a national real estate firm headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri. Miss Elizabeth Kenney, second from right in back, and Miss Mary Alice Lawson, right, new owners of the Humpty Dumpty Nursery School in Fresno celebrate the occasion with Norman C. McCain, United Farm Agency, Inc., president, who shows the happy children how to blow up the balloons. McCain gave the school a 1974 station wagon, and it'll be used to haul youngsters back and forth to classes. His firm, which handled the sale, marked the 200,000th sale in its 49-year history. The company operates in 36 states with 525 sales offices. The milestone sale was made by Floyd and Orene Eckert, United representatives at Clovis, California, since 1951. Also present for the ceremonies was Carl E. Lind, senior vice president, from the company's San Francisco office.

Environmental Mini-Gardening

Environmental, indoor mini-gardening, with an emphasis on ecology, is sweeping the country. Everybody's growing something, whether they live in a house, apartment, trailer or barn. And the more "natural" the look, the better they like it.

Some exciting new items are on the market to give the do-it-yourselfer a helping hand and a greener thumb. North American International has created a complete new division, The Good Earth, for such products, and according to Jack Fowler, president, they are moving faster than the proverbial hotcake.

The Good Earth has created a Terrarium Kit, packaged in a charming wooden crate, 6 x 6 x 15 inches, which with its natural rope handle, can itself be turned into a hanging planter.
