A Nashville native, Hudson launched his broadcasting career while still in high school at WSOB in Nashville. He joined Rounsaville Radio, Inc. in 1956 and soon assumed production and announcer duties at WOBS in Jacksonville, Fla.

He advanced at Rounsaville, accepting management responsibilities at WYLD in New Orleans, WCIN in Cincinnati and WBJW in Orlando, Fla., before being named Vice President and General Manager of WVOL in 1972, the former WSOB, the station where he started his career 16 years before.

Upon accepting his resignation to launch the first black TV station in the nation, R.B. Johnson, President of Rounsaville, said of Hudson, "I have witnessed his growth with our company from the position of staff announcer to corporate vice president. He has a working knowledge of every facet of broadcasting."

Lawson, a graduate of Fisk University, is a former director of the Progress Association for Economic Development in Nashville, an agency affiliated with the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

In addition, he has owned a business consulting firm, specializing in finance.

"Under Jim Lawson's direction, Channel 17 will be ready to go on the air at the earliest date authorized by the FCC," Hudson said, "and we will serve the total community, but in a unique way we will present black programming and culture as only black people can do, for the entire community to share and appreciate."

The general offices, studios and transmitter of the TV facility are located at 410 38th Avenue, North in Nashville.

In Durham she met James Lewis Page, a former Shaw student who was operating a cafe and later was a produce merchant. In 1909 they were united in marriage. To this union were born four children: Lois Thelma (Mrs. Whittier Collins of East Orange, N.J.), James Waverly, Benjamin Frank, and William Douglas.

Her niece, Mrs. Naomi Walker Thorpe, has been a daughter to her.

Mrs. Page joined White Rock Baptist Church under the ministry of Dr. Augustus Shepard. She had been a member for sixty-six years. Her membership in the Sunday School had extended over the years. She was a member of the Philathea Bible Class and served as leaders along with her late husband of District 23. The present district organization was reset up and the Page Family became a member of District 8, now known as A. T. Torrence District and they have been ardent supporters.

Mrs. Page was most instrumental in assisting her sons to develop the grocery produce business which their father had begun, located on Fayetteville Street and known as the J.L. Page and Sons Grocery. She inspired her family to give one thousand dollars to the church in memory of their father and on November 25, 1956 the church dedicated a bronze tablet to his memory.

Mrs. Page was one of Fayetteville Street's oldest and best known resident and devotee of her time to her flowers and her "grandbabies!"

Survivors include four children, Mrs. Lois Thelma Page Collins, East Orange, New Jersey, James Waverly, Benjamin Frank and William Douglas, Mrs. Naomi Walker Thorpe, eleven grandchildren; six great-grandchildren, several nieces, nephews and other relatives.

 percent also a record at that time. The general placement rate in jobs over the year has hovered around the 50 percent mark.

"There is no question we are doing a better job in our placement efforts, due in no small way to the work of not only the 2,400 local state employment service offices but the know-how of the international unions in getting their trainees placed," Brennan said.

With an annual budget of $183.4 million, the 65 Job Corps centers each year provide residential education, vocational skills training and rehabilitation for about 45,000 disadvantaged youth, aged 16-21. The centers and youths enrolled on Oct. 1973:

Civilian conservation centers-6,554 young men in 34 centers (average size: 200 enrollees);

Large urban centers for men-6,300 enrollees in four centers (average size: 1,500 enrollees);

Large urban centers for women-4,820 enrollees in 11 centers (average size: 400 enrollees);

Residential manpower centers-2,745 young men and 891 young women in 13 city centers (average size: 280 enrollees); and Extension centers-190 young women and 70 young men in three centers.

Conservation centers are generally in national parks and forest and are operated by the Departments of Interior and Agriculture and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

The large men's and women's centers and smaller inner-city or near-city centers are operated under contract by industrial corporations, universities or national voluntary agencies.

The three extension centers in cities house advanced enrollees while they gain work experience with outside employers or learn higher skills.

Job Corps is administered by the Labor Department's Manpower Administration. The program trains young men and women who are out of work, out of school, and cannot get jobs because they lack employable skills. Average length of stay in Job Corps is about six months.

 Americans thought they had left behind in 1954."

Mr. Wilkins also wired Sen. Henry M. Jackson and Rep. Harley O. Staggers, that the "NAACP appreciates your position and depends upon you to see that the amendment is omitted in the conference committee." In that telegram the civil rights leader stated that House members who voted for the anti-busing amendment are thus in favor of Jim Crow public education which the courts outlawed as unconstitutional in 1954 and the Congress enacted legislation against in 1964."

Vigorous objection to the anti-busing amendment had come also from Leonard H. Carter, western regional director of the NAACP. "If the energy crisis is going to be used by our government to deny black citizens their constitutional rights," he said, "it may well be that all support of black Americans and their white supporters will be lost in the appeal for cooperation in the energy conservation effort." He termed the amendment "a racist effort to halt school desegregation."

XMAS SERVICE HELD AT REST HAVEN HOME

And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, In as much as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. St. Matt. 25-40.

On Thursday Afternoon December 13 at 4:00 o'clock P.M. The Lillie McDade Community Circle, The Minerva Womack Mission Circle, and The Adult Ladies Sunday School Class of White Rock Baptist Church met at the "Rest Haven Home" on Hansen Road, with Mr. & Mrs. Cain as our guest.

A beautiful Christmas service was rendered with Mrs. Rosette Southerland mistress of ceremonies. Mr. John Carter Washington, introduced the group, and rendered the music.

After several selections of Christmas Carol was sung Mr. Robertha Steele gave a Christmas prayer followed with the scripture lesson taken from St. Matt. Chapter 2: verses 9-20, read by the secretary Mrs. Lessie Wilson. Mrs. Hattie Johnson read a Christmas Poem subject "That Good Will." Composed by Mr. John Carter Washington. Followed by singing "Joy To The World." Words and Consolation and Cheer was given by Mrs. Southerland. She spoke of the darkness of this world, and Jesus Is The Light of the World. "He himself said" I am

Come a Light into the World, that who soever believeth on me should not abide in darkness," she gave us three words that would help us in the New Year. Listen, Think, and Act, she advise us if we would use these three words; in our life great success would sure to follow. The patients, along with the visitors expressed themselves in testimonies of praises and Thankfulness for the service and for the coming Christmas Season. Gifts was given each person of the home. This part of the service was closed with another poem subject:

which has a heavy lift capability, but expects to fly other aircraft during his career.

"Marine Aviation is more flexible, since you can train initially for helicopters or jets and then later in your career, retrain into other types."

Why did the young, black officer select the Marines? "I was impressed with how Marine officers carried themselves," he answers. "They are down to earth, gutsy. And I like to have some land under my feet at night."

After aviation, McMillan's second love is motorcycling. He owns two. He enjoys his flying the most, however, and feels it is a career choice that should be considered by others.

There are several ways to become a Marine Aviator, and Lt. McMillan suggests that those who want to learn more about these career opportunities contact a local Marine Officer Selection Officer or recruiter.
