The first state law fixing 10 hours as a legal workday was passed in New Hampshire in 1847, according to "Important Events in American Labor History."

The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks (BRAC), AFL-CIO, under a contract with the U.S. Labor Department, is training enrollees with Job Corps Women's Center's and placing them in well paid jobs as railroad office clerks. The program is being conducted in Kansas City, Los Angeles, Tulsa, Cleveland, and Charleston, W. Va.

Three times as many black children (43 percent) as white (14 percent) live in families where the father is absent, unemployed, or out of the labor force, according to a special study conducted by the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Standing In Line Line For Car Tag Soon To End

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK—For the owners of North Carolina's four million motor vehicles, today's deadline for displaying 1974 automobile license tags marks the beginning of the end of the annual agony they have had to face of standing in long lines to purchase new plates.

This may also be next to the last year they will all face a single deadline for having new tags on their cars, if recommendations for a staggered system of registration expiration dates are adopted. This year the usual February 15 deadline was extended one month for the convenience of truckers who were delayed out of state during the truck work stoppage last month.

Beginning next year according to Department of Motor Vehicles commissioner Body C. Miller, streamlined procedures developed with the assistance of Research Triangle Institute will go a long way towards eliminating the sometimes lengthy and irritating waits for new tags.

The new procedures can result in savings to the state of several million dollars over the next five years, Miller said.

They are among several changes the Department of Motor Vehicles is putting into effect after consideration of a vehicle registration systems analysis by Research Triangle Institute. Senior members of the Institute staff making the study include computer applications analyst Ms. Nileen Hunt and department manager Robert H. Thornton.

"Starting in 1975, one-year plates will be replaced by durable five-year plates," Miller said. "Then for each of the next four years we will issue an annual renewal sticker to be attached to the permanent tag."

The stickers will be available by mail order.

Miller predicted that this method of renewing license plate registrations will be significantly less painful to motorists than queuing in line at motor vehicle license service offices.

Mailing of the full-size license plates has not been encouraged because of high postage costs, the commissioner said.

Individual mailings under present postal rates would run to 30 cents. Validation stickers, however, can be mailed for ten cents.

the late Theophilus E. McKinney, then dean of Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte, to bring together black social scientists, who were generally excluded from other professional organizations within their fields, so that they could interact more frequently with each other. However, ASBS has never excluded non-black social scientists and other interested persons from participating.

Dr. Ralph H. Hines, Vice-President, Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee, is program chairman.

Mrs. Smith and Mr. Chambers, as well as ASBA officers will be available for interviews during the conference.

Hazards of Immersion In Cold Water

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Early season boatmen and fishermen were warned by the American Red Cross that open waters are still cold, despite warm weather, and can be killers if one falls into them.

Many early spring drownings are caused by sudden immersion in cold water, Edmond Mongeon, national director of Red Cross water safety, said.

"The water has a numbing effect, preventing the victim from getting to shore quickly. In many areas of the country, rivers, lakes and ocean waters makes them immobile."

Fatal cooling of the body is more apt to occur in water than in air, Mongeon explained, because wetting rapidly decreases the insulating effect of clothing. Loss of body heat occurs at two of four times the rate in air, he said.

Mongeon advised that users of open waters in early spring wear two or three suits of thermal underwear as well as other suitably warm clothing. Suits such as those worn by scuba divers can be protective if the boatman or fisherman falls into cold water.

As a general rule, the Red Cross recommends that boatman stay with their capsized craft. But there are exceptions, and the victim of a boating accident must decide whether special circumstances, such as cold water or proximity to falls or rapids, justify swimming away from the boat to safety, Mongeon said.

A person who frequently engages in water sports should expect to find himself accidentally in the water on some occasion, he added. "More than 60 percent of the people who drown in this country each year had no intention of being in deep water."

It is desirable that the boatman, while afloat, utilize the "buddy" system having a second boat nearby to help in case of accident, he concluded.

heading "Business" and the theme of "Black Capitalism, Opportunities, and Involvement," two black businessmen will share the podium at 8 p.m. in the Biological Sciences Auditorium for talks in their individual fields. The speakers are: W. J. Kennedy, III, President of N. C. Mutual Life Insurance Co., Durham, and William Toles, Sr., public relations director for IIT-Continental Banking Corporation.

Mrs. Inez Kaiser, president of her own firm, Inez Kaiser and Associates, Inc., of Kansas City, Mo., makers of women's wear, will speak to the group Tuesday, April 2, at 8 p.m. in Gross Auditorium, with a special fashion show to be a feature of the presentation.

On April 5, with "Black Expressions" the theme under a "Fashions of Black" topic, black students will present a program of black art, music, and drama at 8 p.m. in Baldwin Auditorium, with the Modern Black Mass Choir again featured in this public program.

There will be an intercollegiate gospel singing concert on Sunday, April 7, at 3 p.m. in Baldwin Auditorium with participants attending from Duke, Durham College, East Carolina University, Fayetteville State, Wake Forest, N. C. Central University, Shaw University, UNC-Chapel Hill, and UNC-Greensboro. A cash prize and trophy will be awarded to the winning group, according to Chairman Miller.

Final events of the fortnight will take place April 10 and 11 under the heading "Education" and the theme: "The Future of Black Students At Predominantly White Institutions."

Speakers at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 10, will include Duke President Terry Sanford and Duke's first black trustee, Dr. C. E. Boulware, of Durham. A discussion period will follow the meeting in Gross Chemical Auditorium.

A "round-up" discussion by Duke black students in a Thursday afternoon seminar from 2-4 p.m. in Room 317 Perkins Library will close the program. The seminar theme will be: "Black Students in White Universities: Problems and Prospects."
