Driving At Night . . .

Thirteen Tips For Women

- Thirteen can be a lucky number for women motorists who travel at night. They'll have safer, more-trouble-free trips if they follow these precautions compiled by Jack Morton of the Service and Parts Sales Division of Chrysler Corporation.
1. Always lock your doors, both when you're away from your car and driving.
 2. Travel with your fuel tank at least half full so that you won't run out of gas.
 3. Park under a light in a shopping center parking area or on the street.
 4. Approach your car from an angle which allows you to check underneath it for waiting assailants.
 5. Check the inside of your car before unlocking the door. Someone with a passkey may have gained entrance and be waiting for you.
 6. Tell someone at home your estimated time of arrival so that if you're later than you planned, he or she can check your travel route and/or alert the authorities.
 7. Plan alternate routes in case of traffic or weather tie-ups. Drive these routes during daylight if possible so that your alternate route won't be in unfamiliar neighborhoods.
 8. Drive in the center lane when possible, avoiding
- the outside or shoulder lanes where trouble can occur more easily.
9. Listen to your radio (or CB) for traffic conditions.
 10. Use your flashers at the first sign of trouble, even while you're still driving in the traffic lanes.
 11. Carry handkerchief, flashers, or some means to alert traffic you're disabled, and learn to raise the hood of your vehicle to signal trouble.
 12. Remain in your car with your windows closed and doors locked until a wrecker, police car, or other safety vehicle approaches to help.
 13. Keep your car properly maintained and in good running condition. Check the fluid levels (gasoline, transmission and brake fluids, engine oil, wiper fluid, and water in battery) frequently. Make sure your windshield blades and headlights work properly, the heating and defrosting systems are operating to keep the windows clear, and the tires have correct pressure and enough tread to provide traction on slippery surfaces.
- Morton says that, of course, these thirteen thoughtful travel tips apply to men as well as women motorists and to daytime as well as after-dark trips.

YES, WE ALL TALK

By Marcus H. Boulware, Ph.D.
SPEECH EXCITEDNESS

What makes a speech dull? Well, it is traceable to the way in which a speaker deliver his talk.

If the speaker is not enthusiastic about what he has to say, how can the listeners become interested?

Often it is not the words spoken but rather the liveliness with which the message is delivered. Jesus had crowds following Him because He was excited about what He was saying. "I am the way, the truth and the light," He once said. He Himself was convinced of the positiveness of His gospel, and thereby He convinced His hearers that if they would confess their sins and believe, Almighty God is sufficient to supply all of their needs.

One thing I liked about one French general who fought in World War I, he was enthusiastic when he spoke. I didn't understand much of what he said, but his voice had a liveliness which knew no bounds.

Any parent can remember how enthusiasm rang in the voice of a daughter who wanted to go to play with friends. "Please, mother, let me go!" There was no half-heartedness about it. It even showed in the child's eyes and face, because she wanted permission to play.

CARMICHAEL

Often saying that multi-racial organizations would not work toward the liberation of black people, Carmichael said that whites had no place in the All African Peoples Revolutionary Party (AAPRP). The AAPRP, he said, is organizing in several countries in the Caribbean, South America, and Africa and the U. S.

Calling on black Americans to support the African revolution Carmichael pointed to the support of Irish Americans of the struggle of Irish liberation and the "Jews" sustenance of Israel" as examples of the support people of African heritage should give the African freedom struggles.

Before that objective can be accomplished, he said, "we must become conscious and must build within us a dynamic system that makes us more conscious."

He said that Alex Haley's television play "Roots" was predominantly positive because it heightened consciousness of blacks and their relationship to Africa. He went on to say that it was a mistake for capitalist television networks to present "Roots" when they did.

Several students and faculty disagreed with Carmichael's analysis of "Roots" saying that Haley's book had been exploited and the play was a perversion of the slave family.

Questioned about the refusal of administrators at Shaw University to allow him to speak on the campus where SNCC was founded, and where he received an honorary doctorate three years ago, Carmichael said the AAPRP could have organized the students to demand his speech but decided not to.

Many students at the predominantly black Shaw University, located in Southeast Raleigh, appeared for the speech and expressed disappointment at the administration's decision. One student "they treat us like babies, but expect us to function as adults. This is surely an insult to us all".

One Shaw administrator, Rev. C. T. Vivian, a former aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King was also critical of the administration for not allowing Carmichael to speak saying the school was imitating white institutions. "Sometimes imitators will imitate the worst characteristics of the imitated". He said that the main question raised by the affair is "whether we should tell them (students) what they can hear or allow them to hear it and decide what they will believe."

Ironically, it was white legislators in the early 1960's who refused to allow controversial speakers, particularly

Communists to speak on state supported campuses, including UNC. Students protested, lobbied, demonstrated and eventually the law was repealed. However, during that period, private institutions in the state, following Shaw's lead, allowed a wide variety of speakers with controversial messages, including Carmichael.

Several persons on Shaw's campus said that it was due to a desire to avoid controversy that Carmichael's lecture was not permitted. Rev. Vivian said "with today's world the way it is any black worth listening to has got to be controversial."

Acting President Fields referred questions to Vice President Tommy Kee who could not be reached. A spokesperson for Vice President Kee referred inquiries to the Director of Public Relations, who could not be reached.

One administrator, Vice President Kalan Gosh, said that he did not approve a request for Carmichael to speak but referred the request to President Fields.

Carmichael said he waived his usual fee to speak at Shaw because he had received an honorary degree from the institution and had been requested to do so by students.
