didn't run and blacks who do run. They just want to punish blacks." Paul said that his client was questioned for more than a week about the murders and didn't run and is now being punished because he didn't run.

Meanwhile state officials have been mum on the case. Governor James Hunt was questioned about possible constitutional violations in Stewart's case which is the first death penalty case under the state's revised death penalty statute. At first, Hunt was unaware that his staff employed in the N. C. Human Relations office had been sending weekly reports about the case and the potential for racial divisiveness. Hunt instructed a secretary to keep him informed of the reports called "crisis reports."

On June 10, Smith and Stewart were charged with murder, visiting his father in Dunn, went into the Executive Lounge, all all-white club in downtown Dunn and ordered a beer. While drinking the beer, several witnesses said Clark was approached by a white man, Glen Ray Tart, who asked why was a "nigger" drinking a beer in a white club? Witnesses told police that Tart attacked Clark, beat him to the floor, took out a pistol and shot Clark twice. Standing above Clark who was then lying on the floor, Tart was said to have fired two more shots into Clark. Clark was dead on arrival at the town's hospital.

Tart, meanwhile, was arrested, charged with murder and jailed pending posting a $25,000 bond. He still remains in jail.

Attorney Jerry Paul argued on June 23 that his client, David Stewart, was entitled to bond as a constitutional right and because others charged with murder in the district were allowed to have bond. Paul did not mention the Tart case or other cases where whites have been given bond at that time.

Paul said this week that he'll continue to try to get bond for Stewart but the atmosphere in Johnston County is one of "punishment." He called it a "self-fulfilling prophecy. They want to punish blacks who and held without privilege of bond.

ELECTRAS
and SEVEN GOOD REASONS TO BUY ONE

- 1—SAFETY! Lots of people want ... in fact, prefer the greater safety of a large car. Puts more between you and disaster.
- 2—ROOM! Some families are unable to travel in smaller cars. One Electra is better than two small cars.
- 3—COMFORT! Bigger, wider seats. More leg room. Longer wheel base makes for easier riding.
- 4—PERFORMANCE! Smooth engine performance. Easy to handle. And factory-rated service close by.
- 5—SELECTION! In all our history we have never had a better selection — 225s and Limiteds — Sedans and Coupes. It's like custom ordering your Electra. But it's right off our lot ready for delivery.
- 6—PRICE! We're beginning the countdown. Prices are the best of the year. See example.
- 7—MILEAGE! EPA tests show Electra gives up to 22 miles per gallon on the road. Many of our customers report the same. The mileage you get, of course, varies with the type driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment.
