Hunt's Press Aide Gary Pearce said Hunt would not abolish the commission because Hunt was eager to see the commission work. The Commission is now comprised of four blacks and 25 whites.

Beginning with the swearing in, the black appointees stuck together. They all sat together on the back row. Leo Hatton said that he hoped the Commission would be able to nominate black judges to Gov. Hunt.

The state has currently 106 superior court judges and only one of them is black. While saying that he would appoint a fair number of black judges, Hunt has made it clear that he does not intend to make up for past discrimination in the appointment of a substantial number of blacks to judgeships.

Attorney C. C. Clayton, an official of Soul City and a member of the N. C. Association of Black Lawyers said at a recent meeting of the N. C. Black Democratic Leadership Caucus that the lack of black judges perpetuates racism in the state's courts and fills the state's prisons with blacks.

HONORS

Michaux has also been a real estate and insurance broker for many years and was an officer of four family-owned corporations, including the Union Insurance and Realty Company, in business for more than fifty years.

He has served three terms in the House of Representatives of the North Carolina General Assembly, between 1973 and 1977. He was chairman of the Highway Safety Committee of the House of Representatives in 1977, vice-chairman of the Manufacturing and Labor Committee in 1975, and vice-chairman of the Higher Education and Judiciary Committees in 1977.

Winters is president of John W. Winters and Company, Madonna Acres, Inc., Biltmore Hills, Inc., and Regina Construction, Inc. He is vice president of Vanguard Investment Corporation.

Winters served as a Raleigh city councilman from 1961 to 1967, and served in the North Carolina Senate in the 1975 and 1977 sessions. He served as vice chairman of the Senate's Committee on State Government.

He was born in Raleigh and grew up in New York City, where he graduated from Boys' High School in Brooklyn. He attended Shaw University and Virginia State College and holds the honorary LL. D. degree from Shaw.
