Sec. Marshall Promises

NO REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF JOBS UNDER FEDERAL PROGRAMS

WASHINGTON - There will be no reduction in the number of jobs under federal programs designed to lessen unemployment, Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall said in announcing the Labor Department's fiscal year 1980 budget.

Marshall said, however, that fiscal 1980 will be a year of "moderate austerity" for the Labor Department, along with other federal agencies.

He emphasized, though, that this does not mean a reduction in the department's important programs, including those that help the jobless, the disadvantaged and the poor.

Although spending under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) will decline by $700 million, this decrease, Marshall said, will be offset by the Targeted Employment Tax Credit, which will cost an estimated $600 million in fiscal 1980.

The only true cut will be a reduction of $100 million in the Summer Youth Program. This saving will be accomplished by making 15 years of age, rather than 14, the entry level for participation, Marshall said.

In a statement concerning the budget, Marshall declared that "fiscal restraint is necessary to demonstrate that the federal government is willing to take the lead in the fight against inflation."

Marshall pointed out that President Carter's total federal budget will hold the deficit to $30 billion.

"The Labor Department budget reflects these fiscal realities," Secretary Marshall said. "But it also reflects the important principles. The Carter Administration has no intention of reducing its program for the poor, the disadvantaged and the unemployed in order to pare the federal deficit.

"Our budget also reflects the continued determination by this Administration to continue its fight against unemployment."

Marshall said the Administration realizes "that there are few things as inflationary as that will increase the federal deficit as much as high unemployment."

Marshall pointed out that the Department's programs to combat unemployment will rely more on the private sector.

He said this is reflected both in the Targeted Employment Tax Credit and in the expansion of the Private Sector Initiative Program.

"Both of these important programs will be... (Continued On Page 10)

Chavis Urges Blacks Seek Four Keys To Freedom

Wilmington 10 defendant Rev. Benjamin Chavis, Jr. was allowed by prison officials to break a three year long prison imposed silence last Sunday when he made an address at Russell Memorial C.M.E. Church. Apprehensive about reprisal of prison officials, Chavis urged the capacity audience to use four keys to freedom—knowing self, that is black history and culture—keeping the faith, that is the freedom struggle tradition—knowing God, that is the God of liberation—and giving of oneself to the freedom struggle.

Showing the charisma he exemplified beginning eleven years ago, until he was last imprisoned in 1976, the young black activist minister more than once roused the audience which responded with amens, patting feet, applause, and other expressions.

"Whenever you begin to talk about freedom and liberation for those who are oppressed and for those who are exploited, inevitably you are bound to run into conflict or you are bound to be confronted by those who have a vested interest in maintaining racial oppression," Chavis said.

Yet, after careful consideration and prayer, I decided to go ahead on and preach on this sensitive (Continued On Page 10)

K-Mart Store Controversary

Local NAACP President Says Group Will Not Support Boycott

BY KELVIN A. BELL

The Durham Branch of the NAACP announced that it would neither participate in, nor support a boycott or demonstration at the Durham K-Mart store because of their beating of a black man. This announcement was made by Branch president George Frazier following swearing-in ceremonies, Sunday, at St. Joseph's A.M.E. Church.

The announcement, toward the end of the ceremonies stirred some controversy as several people in the audience misinterpreted the statement to mean that the NAACP would not support any boycott of K-Mart. Frazier clarified this point by saying that should there be an issue which comes up in the future, it would have to be weighed and a decision arrived at by the officers and executive committee.

As emotions continued to spark, Frazier closed the ceremonies indicating that there was not an appropriate forum for discussion.

PROGRESS????
"Some of us think that because they think you have freed four or five times," said McKissick, referring to the Emancipation Proclamation and to Constitutional amendments. "that made by Soul City developer Floyd B. McKissick, Jr. as he spoke at the swearing-in ceremonies.

McKissick, who was the first black man admitted to the University of North Carolina Law School, recalled a tune by Jimmy Lunsford called "Four or Five Times": "You might think you're free because you are free" — so much so that the youth do not want to go out and fight for their rights as they did in the 60s."

STRATEGIC PLANNING

Comparing our plight to that of the Jews, who in the 1920s could not go on the beach in Miami and also had no medical schools, McKissick pointed out that they organized, as a people, a ten-year plan: pooled their money, went back and bought Miami Beach and half of Miami, then turned around and bought the rest of Miami ten years later. He continued by saying that changes must be made in our strategy, policies, and objectives to insure our survival, because times have changed.

"We have not made any economic progress" because the white man has made so much economic progress that we are, by relative standards, somewhere between 1948 and 1949, said McKissick.

SWORN TO OFFICE

Others sworn in along with Frazier were: Mrs. Josephine Turner as First Vice-President; W.W. Sanders as Second Vice-President; J.E. Cromatie as Treasurer, and Mrs. Annie Mae Bynum as Secretary.

In his acceptance of the presidency Frazier said "I would like to remind you that the business of, and the role of the NAACP is (Continued On Page 6)

OIC's Rev. Sullivan Launches Massive Mobilation Effort To Stimulate Youth Jobs' Training

WASHINGTON D.C. - A nationwide mobilization effort with the goal of "taking one million youths off the street corners" was launched today at an emergency executive assembly of OIC of America Inc., attended by some 150 OIC leaders representing 46 states and 150 rural and urban American communities.

Citing a "clear and present danger of a possible total second generation of disadvantaged youth who might never enter the labor force," OIC founder and chairman Rev. Leon H. Sullivan announced the plan at a Congressional reception marking the 15th anniversary of the organization.

"We need balanced lives as much as we need balanced budgets," Rev. Sullivan warned. "We need a new comprehensive youth policy to build America's future as much as we need a new comprehensive defense policy to protect America. The stop-gap jobs and training programs of CETA are not going to solve the problem. Neither will the 1978 Full-Employment Law be enough."

The Sullivan plans calls for OIC leaders across America to hold rallies for youth employment in the churches to dramatize the need for youth training and jobs and to mobilize public and private sector leaders to works together to get more help to our unemployed youth in all OIC cities.

Rev. Sullivan also called on the 96th Congress to build emergency safeguards into its FY 80 Appropriations Bills. Praising the Executive Branch targeting of funds, he urged the President to use OIC and community-based organizations which already are in place and prepared to reach the grassroots disadvantaged.

At the reception, which honored more than 100 Senate and House members for their support of OIC and community-based organizations legislation, principal awards were presented to former Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.) and former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, for his support of OIC throughout its 15-year history, and newly elected Rep. William Gray (D-Pa.), a Philadelphia OIC board member, the first OIC leader to be elected to Congress.

At the conference Rev. Sullivan, a black Baptist minister from Philadelphia, declared, "We will be coming back to the nation's capitol with thousands of our clergy, business supporters and our alumni at our national convocation June 10-14."

United Church Of Christ Aids Zimbabwe Refugees

UNITED NATIONS— Dr. Charles E. Cobb, Executive Director of the United Church of Christ Commission for Racial Justice presented a check for $9,657 to John Kelly, Regional Representative of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, for the purchasing of badly needed medical supplies for Zimbabwean refugees. This represented the proceeds from "The Evening in Solidarity with Zimbabwe and the Wilmington 10," held in November. Dr. Cobb promised more yet to come.

A similar "Evening in Solidarity..." will be held in Philadelphia later this month, of which the proceeds will also be given to Zimbabwean refugees.

Dr. Cobb, also a member of the Working Committee of the Churches' Human Rights Program for the Implementation of the Helsinki Final Act of the World Council of Churches, said, "I have travelled throughout the African Continent, and personally witnessed the plight of the refugees, especially the children." He urged his fellow churchmen to follow suit and help in this struggle for human survival.

Dr. Cobb said that "The United Church of Christ Commission for Racial Justice has been supportive of the African Freedom Struggle from Angola to Zimbabwe. Our Washington, D.C. Field Office monitors activities on Capitol Hill, as they relate to Africa.

"This is a small contribution to the Zimbabwean refugees of which a large part are children, but it is my sincere hope that this effort will spur other church and non-church organizations to follow suit."
