PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

BABY TALK REGISTRATION UNDERWAY

Is there a new baby in your house this month, or is a new baby expected in March this year?

Are a first time parent? Are you wondering when your baby will smile at you? Or what kind of crib to buy? Why babies spit up so much?

You need "BABY TALK", a series of 12 free leaflets sent once a month during baby's first year. They are designed to help first time parents learn about a baby's development and parenting. The leaflets include helpful hints about clothing, baby equipment, safety and other areas of importance in a baby's life.

To receive "BABY TALK" call or write the Durham County Agriculture Extension Office. Contact Mrs. Bernadette Watts, Associate Home Economics Extension Agent, 721 Foster Street, Durham, NC 27701 at 688-6770. The only information that Mrs. Watts will need to enroll parents is their name and address and the name and birthdate of the new baby.

This program is sponsored by the Human Development Department of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

COALITION AGAINST POLICE BRUTALITY SETS SATURDAY RALLY

The Durham Coalition Against Police Brutality is announcing plans for a protest march and rally. The Coalition Against Police Brutality, a broad based coalition of community groups and individuals, was organized in June, 1978. Since that time the group has taken up 910 cases. The most recent cases those of Robert McAllister (a man shot by PSO Gorham while being questioned) and Bobby Sims.

The march will be held on Saturday, March 3, at 12:00 noon. The demonstration will begin on the corner of Fayetteville and Columbia Streets and end with a rally at Rotary Park across from Police Headquarters downtown. The march is being held to let the police/public safety and city officials know that the community will no longer tolerate police beatings and harassment.

The Coalition is demanding an end to all forms of police harassment and brutality, the firing of all officers involved in cases of brutality and the establishment of a genuine citizens review board.

The Coalition sees this demonstration as just the beginning of the Coalition's offensive program to stop the problem.

Raymond Andrews James Baldwin Prize Winner

Raymond Andrews is the first recipient of the James Baldwin Prize for his novel APPALACHEE RED. Dial published it on October 22, 1978, to wide acclaim. Mr. Andrews writes about the area in which he grew up, northern Georgia, and about the black neighborhood of a town called Appalachee. The story, beginning in 1918 and running through 1963, revolves around a mysterious, defiant entrepreneur called Appalachee Red.

Now a New York resident, Mr. Andrews has just completed his second novel for Dial. It is entitled ROSIBELLE LEE WILDCAT TENNESSEE.

A solid silver medal bearing a likeness of James Baldwin was presented to Mr. Andrews on February 14, 1979, by Mrs. on February 14, 1979, by Mrs. Helen Meyer, who was president of The Dial Press and Dell Publishing when the contract for APPALACHEE RED was signed, and who is now editorial consultant at Doubleday & Co. Mr. Baldwin also attended the presentation ceremony in the Dell Executive Suite and, on behalf of The Dial Press, gave Mr. Andrews a leather bound copy of APPALACHEE RED, inscribed personally by Mr. Baldwin.

Mr. Juris Jurjevics, editor in chief of Dial and editor of APPALACHEE RED, presided at the ceremony.

HUD itself, indirectly it is not being totally "accepted at face value."

The NUL's position is that equating the two processes muddles the issue and diverts attention from what it views as the growing severity of displacement of lower income urban residents as neighborhoods are revitalized and they are priced out of the housing market.

While abandonment means that some housing will be lost to low income people, it does not remove all opportunities for housing an area. However, the NUL stated the displacement means that housing opportunities for the poor are completely wiped out.

The seriousness of displacement has been detailed in a study, "SOS '78 - Speak Out For Survival," conducted in 1978 by the Washington Urban League. Based on a door-to-door opinion survey of some 300 low income black and Latino families, the study reported:

"The intensity of displacement pressures are suggested by findings showing an astonishing 66 per cent of homeowners had been asked to sell their homes, 83 per cent of them by real estate agents...But making it practically impossible for renters to resist displacement pressures, the study suggested were overwhelming economic, social and municipal service delivery problems characteristic of all low income neighborhoods and their residents."

The temperature on your home freezer should be kept at 0°F or below.
